

No New Statewide Taxes, Milliken Vows

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Relying on a "very austere" budget to keep spending down, Gov. William Milliken says he will propose no new statewide taxes in 1978-79.

People should have the money to spend on goods, not on taxes, Milliken said Tuesday. He also predicted "a very sharp turnaround in the economy" in 1977-78.

He said he does not anticipate a need for higher income, nuisance, gasoline, business or statewide weight taxes in the foreseeable future. Avoiding a tax increase in the upcoming fiscal year, he said, gives Michigan "a better chance of avoiding it in 1977-78."

However, he said he will renew his proposal for a special Southeast Michigan regional tax, such as a $10 per vehicle weight tax he previously suggested.

Milliken said he opposes new resident or nonresident taxes for Detroit workers. Michigan residents, he said, may find "minor adjustments" in some user fees, but an overall statewide tax boost is unnecessary if the legislature agrees to keep a lid on spending.

Milliken also said he would fight any legislative attempts to raise taxes.

"I am not going to recommend taxes for 1976. I think this is a very bad time to talk about reducing spendable income," Milliken said at a news conference. Reducing spendable income would have "an oppressive effect," he said.

"It is not my intention at all to recommend taxes, either on individuals or businesses," Milliken declared.

To operate on a tight budget, Milliken said he will propose "new thinking, new approaches and new ways" to tackle problems in his State of the State message Thursday. He also said he will "strongly and emphatically" urge the legislature to pass his $230 million construction bonding program and that he will renew his proposal to reorganize the Southeast Michigan Transportation Authority (SEMTA).

A "total approach" to upgrading and integrating Michigan's transportation system will be presented later in a special message to the legislature, he said.

Milliken refused to say how large his state general fund budget will be, but House Speaker Bobby Crim, D-Davidson, has said it will be a scant 4.5 per cent larger than the current $3.043 billion budget. If Crim is correct, the increase would not keep up with inflation.

Milliken said he bases his economic predictions on "the best judgments" of his Management and Budget Department, business economists and business and industry sources.

On other items, Milliken said:
—He is concerned that the legislature will not act quickly enough to make the new political ethics bill effective for this year's elections.

—He expects confirmation shortly from the federal government that he will have final veto power over the Navy's proposed Seafarer radio grid for the Upper Peninsula.

—He thinks President Ford will beat Ronald Reagan in the New Hampshire primary election.

Area Roads Open Quickly Despite Heavy Snowstorm

Southwestern Michigan dug out overnight and this morning from a soggy six to eight-inch snowfall that snarled traffic Tuesday and closed many schools and offices early.

An Allegan county man was killed as he stepped onto the road in front of a car as he cleared his driveway with a snowblower shortly before 8 o'clock last night.

Spokesmen for the road commissions in Berrien, Van Buren, Cass and Allegan counties said virtually all their roads were open in time for morning traffic today. However, a big majority of the schools in the four counties canceled classes today.

Myron Brunke, construction superintendent for the Berrien County Road commission, noted that the snowfall ended around 5 p.m. Tuesday. Snowplow crews worked the main roads as the snow fell Tuesday and then resumed plowing about 3 a.m. today. All roads were open by 8 a.m., according to Brunke, although they were snow-covered and slippery.

Herbert Teichman, Eau Claire area grower-weather observer, said he measured six inches of snow, but added that it was an extremely wet snow that compacted almost as it fell.

The Berrien road commission said the Coloma-Watervliet area got about two inches more than the remainder of the county.

Paul Kaiser, head of the Van Buren Road commission, and Harry Bush, head of the Paw Paw public works department, said the new snow measured about 8 inches across most of Van Buren.

The snow, which fell steadily from about 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday, forced the cancellation of all high school basketball games scheduled in the area last night. At least several school officials indicated the decision to close their schools today was made yesterday. Many schools sent their students home ahead of normal closing time yesterday.

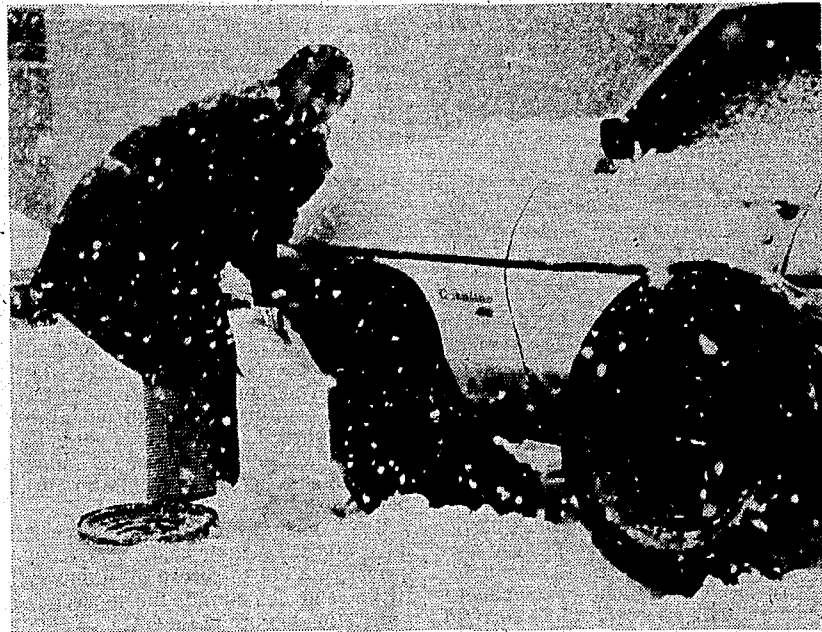

The Allegan county sheriff's department said Raymond Blowers, 53, of Otsego, was killed when he was hit by a car in front of his home just west of Otsego about 7:53 p.m. Officers said he was operating a snowblower and stepped out into the roadway. He was struck by a car driven by Richard Johnson, 24, of Plainwell, police reported. Blowers was dead on arrival at the Plainwell hospital.

Several personal injury accidents were attributed to the weather. The injuries, however, were said to be minor in nature.

At Buchanan, Donna Kenney, 17, Route 1, Buchanan, escaped without injury when her car became stuck on the Penn Central railroad tracks at the south edge of the city. A slow-moving Amtrak train hit the car and shoved it off the tracks, into another car standing nearby.

North Central Airlines canceled all its flights into Ross field airport here after the first morning flight Tuesday. A spokesman said operations were

BH City Attorney Seeks Retraction By Mayor Joseph

Benton Harbor City Atty. Yvonne Hughes has charged Mayor Charles F. Joseph with slander and threatened to take legal action if she does not receive a retraction of a statement Joseph made earlier this month about expenses by the city's law department.

In a letter to the mayor from St. Joseph Atty. Donald Bleich, who has been retained as her private counsel, Atty. Hughes demands a retraction of the statement "Are you aware that the Law Department spent over $510.00 which has never been accounted for?"

The letter charges that Joseph made that statement at the Jan. 5 city commission meeting with more than 100 people in attendance and that it was published in The Herald-Palladium the following day.

The story in the Herald-Palladium notes only that "Joseph charged that $510 had been spent by the city's law department without documentation."

Under Michigan law, a person charged with slander must be given the opportunity to submit a retraction before a suit for damages can be filed.

The letter to Joseph says that Mrs. Hughes was authorized to spend $510 to attend the National Bar association's annual convention under her contract with Benton Harbor signed by the mayor.

It also says the expenditure was approved on a city travel expense form and a city expense account form.

Speaker Crim Calls For Graduated Tax

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Urging his colleagues to "help put Michigan back on its feet again," House Speaker Bobby Crim today called for "fundamental tax reform" including a graduated income tax.

In remarks prepared for this, the opening day of the legislature, the Davison Democrat said 1976 priorities also should include a change in property taxes for schools.

Other recommendations he made were for changes in state and national welfare reform, greater enforcement of civil rights laws, a reform of workers' compensation, decriminalization of certain victimless crimes such as possession of marijuana, and reducing sexual and racial stereotypes in public school textbooks.

Crim, whose leadership position in the House is the most powerful job in the legislature, said he will renew his push to eliminate the constitutional ban against a graduated income tax.

He called on Michigan and other states with high jobless rates to form a coalition seeking more federal dollars for unemployment insurance, aid to dependent children, Medicaid and revenue sharing.

Crim vowed Detroit will never become another New York City and said the state's solution to economic problems "must be Detroit's solution." He said increases in state revenue sharing might be one solution. He told lawmakers that allowing Detroit to levy an increased income tax should be "the very last option."

Crim has tried twice before to get voters to eliminate Michigan's constitutional ban against a graduated tax.

"Further increases in our flat rate income tax will seriously damage the ability of low and middle income people to cope with the ravages of inflation," he said.

He said several proposals "to relieve the burden of school financing from local property taxes" are under study. He has indicated such proposals would put a limit on property taxes for schools, shifting the burden for part of these funds to the legislature.

Crim chided the governor's staff for frequent changes in deficit predictions and called for a "truth in spending policy." He said this would require specific estimates of the money the state expects to get, and "honest appraisals" of the money needed for state programs.

He said the zero budget

Pickup Truck Bags Three Deer

BANGOR — Three deer were struck and killed by a pickup truck on M-43, east of here last night, according to Van Buren county sheriff's deputies.

Deputies reported Bob Tanner, route 2, Bangor, was driving home with his wife and three young children, about 7:40 p.m., when he suddenly came upon a large group of deer standing in the road. The vehicle struck the three.

Tanner, this morning said, he had just crested a hill on M-43, when he came upon the group standing in the middle of the road, about a quarter mile east of 46th street, three miles east of here. He said he initially told police he thought about seven deer were standing in the road, but his wife feels there were from 10 to 12

Tanner said he came upon the deer so quickly he didn't have time to stop. He said the road was icy and snow covered. He said he was traveling around 40 m.p.h. when he struck the deer. Tanner said police gave the three deer to him. He said the deer were all does, two of them fully grown.

Tanner, his wife and three children, were not injured in the accident. But, he said the front end of his pickup truck was damaged extensively.

MRS. EDWINA MARTER
Murder-Kidnap victim

GULFPORT, Miss. (AP) — When banker Charles W. Marter paid $25,000 in a desperate attempt to win freedom for his wife, the woman may already have been dead.

"She had been dead several hours," Coroner Edgar Little said Tuesday after authorities were led to the crumpled body of the 36-year-old mother of two. She had been shot in the back of the head.

"The pickup was made this morning," Little said of the ransom paid by Marter, "and the arrest at about 3:30 this afternoon, so that's quite a time span."

Little said only an autopsy will tell for sure when the woman died. He said he will conduct the examination today.

An unemployed shipyard worker was held without bail today, charged with murder in the kidnapping and death of Edwina Marter.

The FBI said Marter, vice president of Gulf National Bank here, paid $25,000 in a futile attempt to buy his wife's life.

Dist. Atty. Albert Nacaise refused to say whether the ransom was recovered. He did say that the man arrested, Richard Gerald Jordan, 29, of Hattiesburg, Miss., led police to the victim's body. But Nacaise said no weapon was found.

The body was found in a thicket in a wooded area north of here.

Jordan, a stocky man wearing a red jump suit, appeared in Harrison County Court Tuesday evening and Judge Gaston H. Hewes appointed Gulfport attorney Rhett Russell to represent him.

Nacaise read the charges to Jordan and advised him he did not have to enter a plea in the absence of an attorney. The case is to be brought before a grand jury, which will be empaneled on the first Monday in March.

Conviction carries an automatic death penalty in Mississippi.

Police said Jordan had worked at a shipyard at Morgan City, La., returned to Hattiesburg last week, then left again, saying he wanted to land a job on an offshore oil rig.

Jordan was taken from a taxicab in Gulfport by police who were checking all cars after losing their quarry in a hot pursuit following the ransom drop.

Mrs. Marter was kidnapped from her home in suburban Mississippi City Monday afternoon. Nacaise said one of her children, a 3-year-old, was left in the house unharmed.

The FBI said Marter then

An Indiana & Michigan Electric Co. employee told Benton Harbor police his company car was stolen while he was doing a good turn for another employee.

Duane Seel said he parked his car, motor running, in the 300 block of West Main street Tuesday about 3 p.m. and helped another employee free his car from snow on the opposite side of the street.

Then, Seel told police, he turned to see his car being driven away. He and the other employee chased the 1970 Chevelle with I&M markings but lost it in traffic in St. Joseph, he reported.

About four hours later, Berrien sheriff's deputies followed tracks in the snow from the I&M car, stuck in snow northeast of Buchanan, and took three juvenile boys into custody.

Two 15-year-olds, from Benton Harbor and Baroda, and a 14-year-old from Buchanan, were lodged at the Berrien county juvenile home pending petitioning to juvenile court on charges of car theft.

Were it left to me to decide whether we should have government without newspapers or newspapers without government, I should not hesitate to prefer the latter. — Thomas Jefferson.

Ethical Campaigning Hits A Snag

Mud slinging in political campaigns has been as American as apple pie and motherhood since George Washington's refusal to accept a third term in the Presidency opened the doors to partisan grubbing for public office.

While lambasting an opponent flies in the face of all advertising dicta that selling one's self is best accomplished by doing just that, the temptation to take a whack at the opposition is an overwhelming compulsion within most humans.

The public vilification is an extension of the small scale gossiping which is part of the warp and wool in living.

Sometimes it is effective. At others, it backfires.

Following his unsuccessful effort to defeat Ulysses S. Grant for a second term, Horace Greeley, the brilliant, sometimes erratic New York editor, remarked he was uncertain if he were running for the Presidency or the penitentiary. Grant's campaign managers circulated a totally false tale that in his earlier years Greeley's family had to put him in an insane asylum. The truth was he was hospitalized for many months because of a chronically weak constitution.

Grover Cleveland's experiences covered both sides of the coin. He defeated James G. Blaine in 1884 mainly on the strength of rumors circulated that his Republican opponent was anti-Catholic. He lost to Benjamin Harrison in 1888 because he vetoed a number of veterans bills strongly agitated for by ex-Union soldiers.

In 1892 the Progressive party fielded a candidate who cut more effectively into Harrison's strength than it did Cleveland's. The Republicans unveiled a truthful story that Cleveland had fathered an illegitimate child. Rather than ducking the complaint, Cleveland acknowledged the paternity. This was a bold stroke in a late 19th century America whose social code was much starker than today's outlook. Nonetheless, Cleveland became the only comeback President in history.

In more recent times there has been a move to demand that candidates

"talk to the issues" and forego personal diatribes.

Responding to the undercurrent, 19 states have adopted Fair Campaign Codes for state and local offices.

They have two purposes. One is whatever protection they can provide over and above local libel laws which have never been a deterrent to mudslinging.

The other is to uplift public confidence in the election process.

New York has the stiffest of the lot. It forbids "misrepresentation of any candidate's qualifications," and "attacks based on race, sex, religion or ethnic background."

Two days ago the Supreme Court declared the New York version goes too far.

It centered its attention primarily on the misrepresentation feature in the statute. This could be applied to almost any campaign speech, all nine justices agreed, and could effectively defeat the public's right to know through choking off legitimate campaign oratory.

The Court advised the New York advocates to try their hands at writing a narrower bill to screen out fabrications, and let stand the personal vilification feature of the law.

As we gather from the opinion, the Court feels the robust description of an opponent as a damn fool is still all right; that it should not be necessary to resort to the circumlocution of describing the opponent as behaving in a farcical manner; perhaps even going so far as to uphold categorizing an opponent as resembling the south end of a horse headed north.

On the other hand, a candidate should be wary in accusing his opponent of taking a bribe unless he can prove the charge.

The distinction is appealing as being reasonable.

The percentage of dimwits running for office usually outnumbers those with even a modicum of common sense.

So what's the harm in drawing a clear picture?

Keeping Right Time Is Ticklish Business

This leap year business — 1976 is one — is a headache not only to perennial bachelors but also to calendar makers, who were worrying about it many years before Julius Caesar decreed the first leap year in 45 B.C.

Calendars in general use before Caesar's time were based on years presumed to be exactly 365 days long, whereas, according to the time it takes the earth to complete its orbit around the sun, a year really is 365 days, five hours, 48 minutes and 46 seconds long.

By the time Caesar came along, the errors which had been accumulating for a long time at the rate of more than five hours a year amounted to a total of three months. Winter was coming in what the calendar said was fall, fall was occurring in summer, etc.

It seemed silly to Caesar to have to get into his long underwear — or the Roman equivalent — before summer (according to the calendar) was over. So he fixed up the Julian calendar, which brought the calendar and the sun back together and provided for an extra day every four years to take care of the annual discrepancy of more than five hours. Thus the leap year system was born.

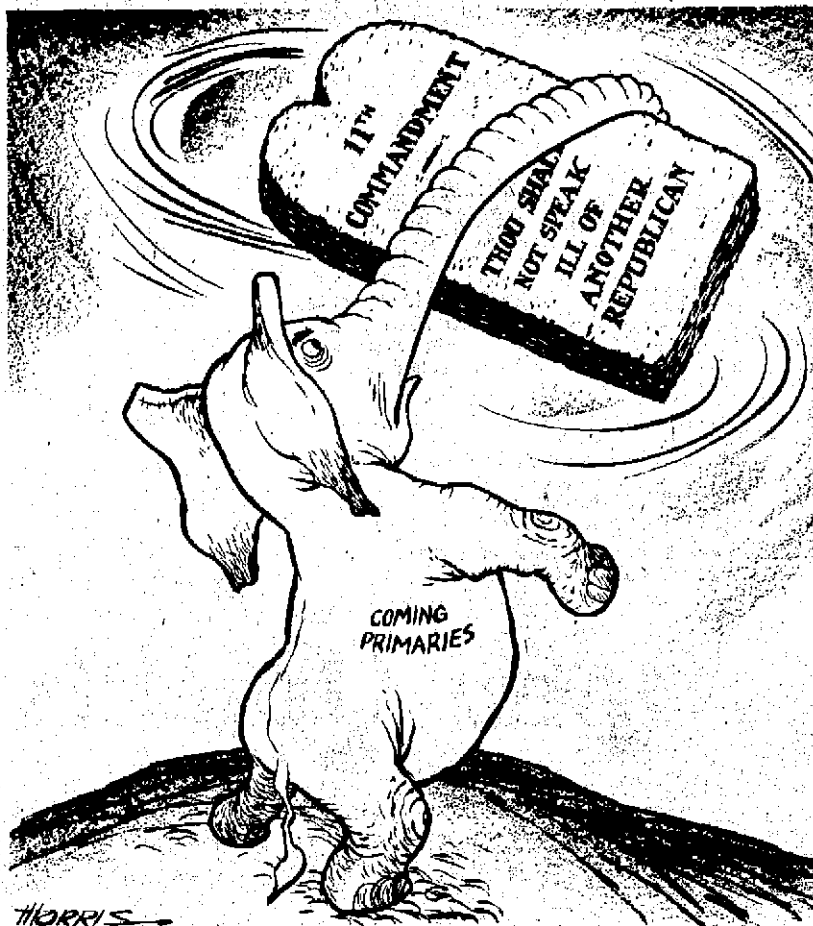

The trouble with Caesar's calendar was that it added 24 hours every four years when it should have added only 23 hours, 14 minutes and four seconds. Caesar's calendar created a discrepancy of one day every 128 years, so by 1583, when Gregory was pope, the calendar again was approximately 10 days off.

Gregory abolished 10 days by having Oct. 15 follow Oct. 4 and modified the Julian leap year rule by providing that century years (those with numbers ending in 00) should not have extra days in the future except when such century years were divisible by 400, like the year 2000, for example.

The Gregorian calendar still falls by 26 seconds a year to coincide with sun time, so in 3,323 years it will be off a full day. Some scientists have recommended the introduction into the Gregorian system of a new corrective device. In addition to skipping leap year in century years not divisible by 400, these scientists would skip extra days on century years that are divisible by 4,000.

AMERICANS DON'T WANT TO BE SLAVES

The well-written letter of Mr. Cummings about the Kavanagh Philosophy rang a bell with me at my first reading, and I expect it did so with many readers.

On second thought, however, I am less concerned about the legal restraints and the protection they will provide my child.

We have seen enough laws enacted to protect people against themselves, from prohibition to speeding, to learn that a law in itself will do no good.

Maybe Mr. Kavanagh is showing true wisdom in favoring scrapping the legal restraints and leaving it to the individual to exercise his own moral restraints.

It is up to me and my neighbor to demonstrate our morality and responsibility. We can raise our children with a moral strength to say no to the junkie. We can prove our moral strength and stay with our own family. And if we object to pornography on TV, we can turn it off or change channels.

Maybe drugs and philandering and pornography would be legal; but that wouldn't make it respectable. Respect is bestowed by those around you, but more important is self-respect. And that is bestowed by your own moral outlook.

If you do what you know is right, you can live with yourself, even if others disagree with your views. And the best of them will respect you for it.

True, we can turn all our responsibilities over to the government and let them fight our battles, determine our ethics, shape our morals. All we have to do then is pay our taxes, do our work, keep our mouths shut and act as the slaves we are.

As for me, I FEEL Americans prefer not to be slaves. They want to shoulder their own responsibilities, make their own decisions and enjoy the freedom to live their own lives as citizens, not as Subjects of some Ruler.

Benton Harbor theatre patrons are in for a thrill! The pre-historic dinosaurs, of which so much has been discovered and written in recent years, will be brought to life upon the Liberty theatre screen next week, in "The Lost World." The bringing to life of these gigantic animals who inhabited this world long before history commenced is the result of the pioneering spirit of Waterson R. Rothacker. This picture is the first in the history where these creatures of 10,000,000 years ago are with reality reincarnated in the movie. The feat marks a cinema epoch.

The grip contagion is spreading more rapidly in Benton Harbor than most persons suppose. A leading physician estimated this morning that fully one half the population of the city was afflicted with the disease to a greater or a less extent. The danger is not in the grip itself but in the ills which follow.

Conductor Osborne enjoys the distinction of being the tallest employee of the St. Joseph and Benton Harbor steel railway company. He is six feet five inches in height and is obliged to stoop down when passing through the car door.

He warned that failure to comply with his order "will necessitate the closing of those several prison facilities herein found to be unfit for human confinement."

Ford Clearing Path For Others

If President Gerald Ford's political position undergoes further erosion, we will face the peculiar situation in which an incumbent President turns out to be a stalking horse for some other candidate — Elliot Richardson, for example. Paradoxically enough, the shrewd Ronald Reagan operatives now wish Ford were somewhat stronger. As long as Ford stays in the contest, the others will have to stay out in order to divide the anti-Reagan vote. But Ford is like the cork in the bottle, and when it blows, look out. The Republican field could get crowded.

The extraordinary events at the recent southern Republican Conference in Houston, Tex., provide a good example of the Ford camp's ability to generate problems for itself.

In the first place, it is almost incredible that Vice President Nelson Rockefeller was chosen as Ford's emissary to the Southerners. Rockefeller has never been especially popular among Republican regulars, but in the south he is Typhoid Mary.

To make matters worse, if possible, Rockefeller comported himself in a way that obliged him to offer personal apologies later on to individuals present. Would you believe the Vice President speaking as follows to party leaders whose support the President desperately needs? — "You got me out, you (bleeps). Now get off your (bleep)" and work for Ford. Many present compared Rockefeller's performance with Richard Nixon's disastrous press conference in 1962.

In a harshly worded order issued Tuesday, U.S. District Court Judge Frank M. Johnson Jr. threatened to close the prisons unless the state cleans up the system at once. He said the system, home for 5,000 inmates, is plagued by "rampant violence and jungle atmosphere."

"It's going to take whopping sums of money to comply with the order," said Bob Lamar, an attorney for the corrections board. "I don't know where it's going to come from."

Attorneys representing plaintiffs in a federal court suit that led to the ruling estimated it would cost the state between $20 million and $100 million to implement. Corrections officials declined to speculate immediately on its financial impact.

Gov. George C. Wallace withheld immediate comment on the ruling pending results of state-wide voting Tuesday on a $6 million bond issue for prison construction. In late returns, the bond issue was ahead by a margin of more than two to one.

In issuing the order, which called in part for the doubling of the staff at the state's four main prisons, Johnson said, "The living conditions in Alabama prisons constitute cruel and unusual punishment."

The judge said he realized that "prisoners are not to be coddled, and prisons are not to be operated as hotels or country clubs. However, this does not mean that responsible state officials, including the Alabama legislature, can be allowed to operate prison facilities that are barbaric and inhumane."

He warned that failure to comply with his order "will necessitate the closing of those several prison facilities herein found to be unfit for human confinement."

The magic of the Kennedy name has dwindled steadily in the public opinion polls since Ted Kennedy firmly announced that he would not seek the presidency. Not only are Kennedy's prospects for winning the nomination as a compromise candidate at the convention extremely slim, but his remaining support does not appear to be deliverable to his family surrogate.

There are several reasons for the Kennedy decline. The first is pragmatic. Party leaders have been slowly drawing up sides, preferring to play the odds on a horse that will actually be in the race instead of one back in the stable. The voters ditto.

The second is political. Kennedy simply doesn't fit the image of the sort of agreeable, inoffensive fellow who would be most likely to become a compromise choice at a deadlocked convention (assuming one believes the delegates will be too divided to settle upon one of the active candidates, which I don't). Kennedy is controversial. He takes definite stands on issues. He has made friends, but he has also made enemies, as his two brothers did before him.

The third reason is bad publicity. The Kennedy legacy took a terrible buffeting the past few months, and Camelot wound up looking more crummy than classy. The public learned that Robert Kennedy, while attorney general, approved a wire tap on Martin Luther King. It was revealed that President John Kennedy met intimately many times with the moll of a Mafia man who was planning to kill Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro for the CIA. There were clues that Kennedy may have known about and possibly ordered a series of unsuccessful efforts to disgrace or murder Castro.

On top of the Rockefeller disaster, Ford campaign manager Howard "Bo" Callaway launched a bitter attack on Reagan as an inept governor of California and an irresponsible Presidential candidate, only to be embarrassed when reminded that he had once indicated that Reagan would be welcome as a running mate for Ford.

Nor was the Southern Republican Conference exactly the place to launch such an attack on Reagan. The 300 politicians attending were at least friendly to Reagan, and many of them know him personally. Callaway's performance was another political stink bomb.

As a matter of fact, it is going to be a bit difficult for the Ford spokesmen to depict Reagan as irresponsible or as an extremist, since, after all, he governed the largest state in the nation for eight years, to the general satisfaction of the citizenry. The comparison with the situation Rockefeller left behind him in New York scarcely needs to be underlined.

Even more shocking to Ford strategists than the 40-32 Reagan lead in the Gallup Poll were the results of a secret poll taken in Illinois. In this Midwestern state, unlike New Hampshire and Florida, Ford was supposed to be invulnerable, and earlier this year Callaway was claiming an 85-15 margin for him. But the latest Illinois poll shows Ford at 48, Reagan at 36, with 16 undecided. Though Reagan trails, he is closing the gap. If he comes out of the early primaries with any momentum, Illinois could be very bad news for Ford.

Kennedy Magic Begins To Fade

WASHINGTON — The earliest, and probably the safest, political prediction that can be made in this presidential campaign is that it is not a good year to be a Kennedy candidate.

That applies both to Edward Kennedy, the family heir, apparent, and to Sargent Shriver, the in-law who is counting on sentimental rub-off to help him win the nomination.

The magic of the Kennedy name has dwindled steadily in the public opinion polls since Ted Kennedy firmly announced that he would not seek the presidency. Last week, he had only the support of 21 per cent of Democrats in a poll conducted for NBC News, a decline from 28 per cent in November.

The NBC poll was also bad news for Sarge Shriver, who has placed heavy emphasis in his campaigning on reviving the spirit and ideals (in his rhetoric, at least) of the Kennedy Administration. He is trying to rebuild the same coalition of ethnic groups and moderate liberals that won the presidency for Kennedy in 1960. For instance, Ted Kennedy inherited substantial black support after his brothers' deaths, and Shriver is trying to capitalize upon that by making a major effort in the Mississippi Democratic precinct caucuses on Jan. 24.

Ethical Campaigning Hits A Snag

Mud slinging in political campaigns has been as American as apple pie and motherhood since George Washington's refusal to accept a third term in the Presidency opened the doors to partisan grubbing for public office.

While lambasting an opponent flies in the face of all advertising dicta that selling one's self is best accomplished by doing just that, the temptation to take a whack at the opposition is an overwhelming compulsion within most humans.

The public vilification is an extension of the small scale gossiping which is part of the warp and woof in living. Sometimes it is effective. At others it backfires.

Following his unsuccessful effort to defeat Ulysses S. Grant for a second term, Horace Greeley, the brilliant, sometimes erratic New York editor, remarked he was uncertain if he were running for the Presidency or the penitentiary. Grant's campaign managers circulated a totally false tale that in his earlier years Greeley's family had to put him in an insane asylum. The truth was he was hospitalized for many months because of a chronically weak constitution.

Grover Cleveland's experiences covered both sides of the coin. He defeated James G. Blaine in 1884 mainly on the strength of rumors circulated that his Republican opponent was anti-Catholic. He lost to Benjamin Harrison in 1888 because he vetoed a number of veterans bills strongly agitated for by ex-Union soldiers.

In 1892 the Progressive party fielded a candidate who cut more effectively into Harrison's strength than it did Cleveland's. The Republicans unveiled a truthful story that Cleveland had fathered an illegitimate child. Rather than ducking the complaint, Cleveland acknowledged the paternity. This was a bold stroke in a late 19th century America whose social code was much starker than today's outlook. Nonetheless, Cleveland became the only comeback President in history.

In more recent times there has been a move to demand that candidates

"talk to the issues" and foresake personality diatribes.

Responding to the undercurrent, 19 states have adopted Fair Campaign Codes for state and local offices.

They have two purposes. One is whatever protection they can provide over and above local libel laws which have never been a deterrent to mudslinging.

The other is to uplift public confidence in the election process.

New York has the stiffest of the lot. It forbids "misrepresentation of any candidate's qualifications," and "attacks based on race, sex, religion or ethnic background."

Two days ago the Supreme Court declared the New York version goes too far.

It centered its attention primarily on the misrepresentation feature in the statute. This could be applied to almost any campaign speech, all nine justices agreed, and could effectively defeat the public's right to know through choking off legitimate campaign oratory.

The Court advised the New York advocates to try their hands at writing a narrower bill to screen out fabrications, and let stand the personal vilification feature of the law.

As we gather from the opinion, the Court feels the robust description of an opponent as a damn fool is still all right; that it should not be necessary to resort to the circumlocution of describing the opponent as behaving in a farcial manner; perhaps even going so far as to uphold categorizing an opponent as resembling the south end of a horse headed north.

On the other hand, a candidate should be wary in accusing his opponent of taking a bribe unless he can prove the charge.

The distinction is appealing as being reasonable.

The percentage of dimwits running for office usually outnumbered those with even a modicum of common sense.

So what's the harm in drawing a clear picture?

Keeping Right Time Is Ticklish Business

This leap year business — 1976 is one — is a headache not only to perennial bachelors but also to calendar makers, who were worrying about it many years before Julius Caesar decreed the first leap year in 45 B.C.

Calendars in general use before Caesar's time were based on years presumed to be exactly 365 days long, whereas, according to the time it takes the earth to complete its orbit around the sun, a year really is 365 days, five hours, 48 minutes and 46 seconds long.

By the time Caesar came along, the errors which had been accumulating for a long time at the rate of more than five hours a year amounted to a total of three months. Winter was coming in what the calendar said was fall, fall was occurring in summer, etc.

It seemed silly to Caesar to have to get into his long underwear — or the Roman equivalent — before summer (according to the calendar) was over. So he fixed up the Julian calendar, which brought the calendar and the sun back together and provided for an extra day every four years to take care of the annual discrepancy of more than five hours. Thus the leap year system was born.

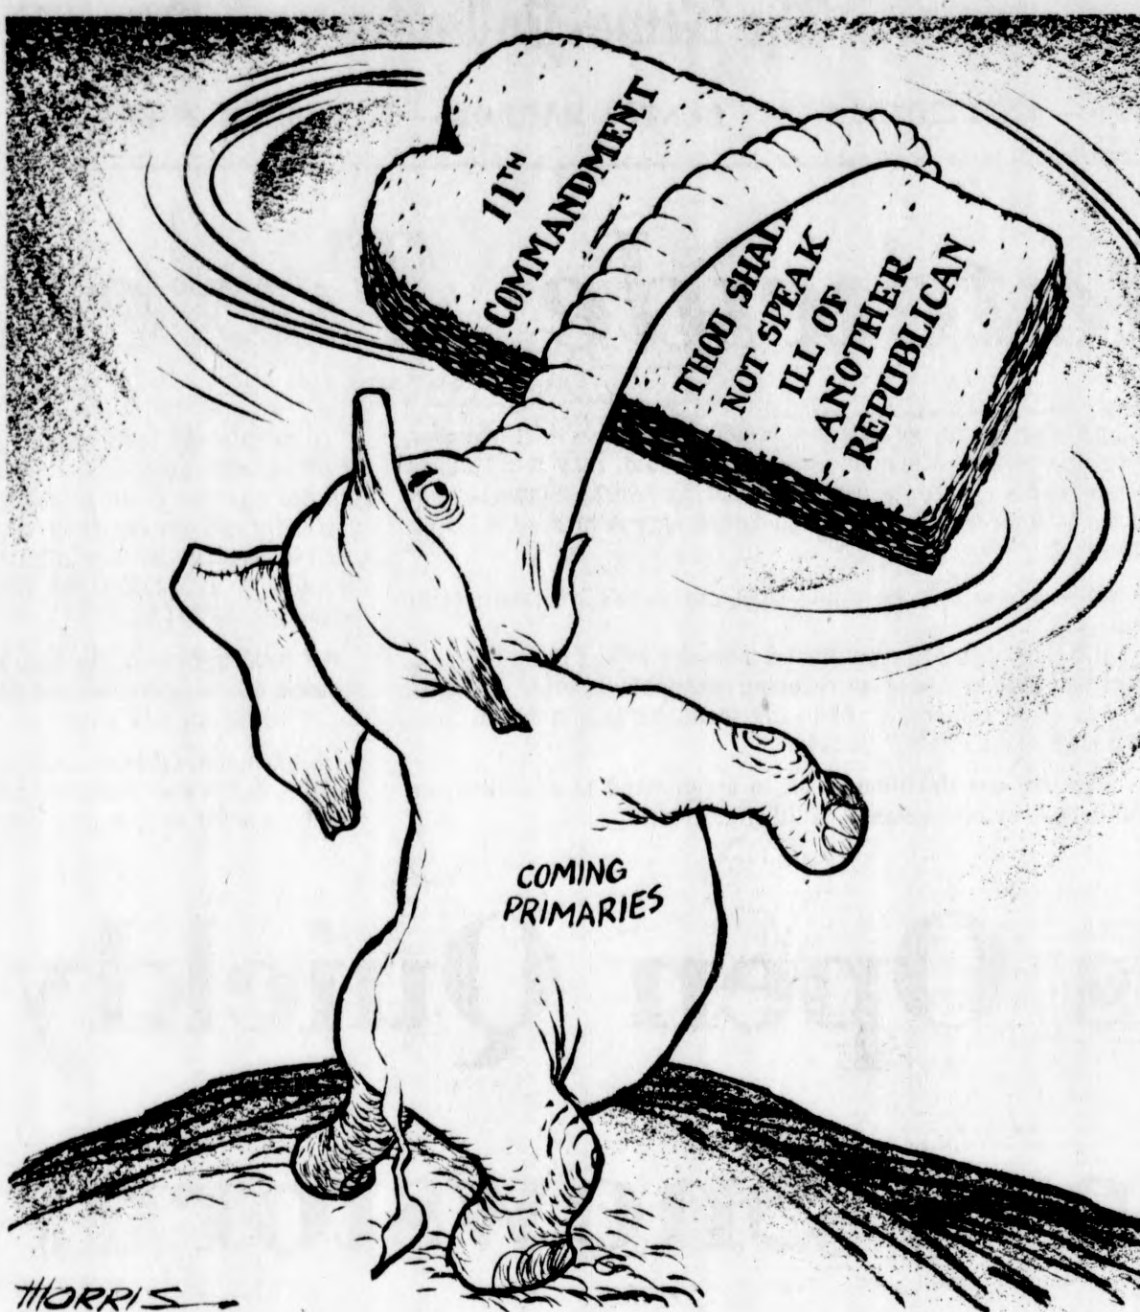

The trouble with Caesar's calendar was that it added 24 hours every four years when it should have added only 23 hours, 14 minutes and four seconds. Caesar's calendar created a discrepancy of one day every 128 years, so by 1583, when Gregory was pope, the calendar again was approximately 10 days off.

Gregory abolished 10 days by having Oct. 15 follow Oct. 4 and modified the Julian leap year rule by providing that centenary years (those with numbers ending in 00) should not have extra days in the future except when such centenary years were divisible by 400, like the year 2000, for example.

The Gregorian calendar still fails by 26 seconds a year to coincide with sun time, so in 3,232 years it will be off a full day. Some scientists have recommended the introduction into the Gregorian system of a new corrective device. In addition to skipping leap year in centenary years not divisible by 400, these scientists would skip extra days on centenary years that are divisible by 4,000.

Such an additional correction would hold the calendar error down to one day in every 20,000 years. It is one issue which can be left without any guilt feelings, to the folks living around the year 4000.

Niles Girl's Future Bright After Open Heart Surgery

By MIKE WYNGARDEN
Staff Writer

Peggy McClure, 13, couldn't keep up with her seventh grade classmates at Niles Brandywine junior high school. She had shortness of breath, was often fatigued, and was small for her age.

But doctors at Mercy hospital in Benton Harbor say those problems are all over for Peggy now. The daughter of Mrs. Mary Jane McClure, 2718 East street, Niles, Peggy is the first child to undergo open heart surgery in a southwestern Michigan hospital.

Surgeons at Mercy worked three hours Jan. 5 to close a hole between two chambers of Peggy's heart. She had a heart murmur in the right atrium of her heart since birth, doctors said, which caused some blood to recirculate through her heart rather than through her body. The operation was performed by Dr. George Just, pulmonary and cardiac surgeon at Mercy, who was assisted by Dr. G.H. Mir, pediatric cardiologist at Mercy.

The two doctors opened Peggy's heart and inserted a temporary pump which took over the function of the heart. Her heart was electrically stopped and the pump took over, by-passing the flow of blood from the area of the heart being worked on. The doctors then closed up the hole between the two chambers of the heart and a half-hour later, electrically started up Peggy's heart again.

The two doctors termed the operation a success. Peggy is scheduled to be released from Mercy either today or tomorrow. She will be able to resume normal activities within two months, the doctors said, and in every way will be able to lead a normal life.

Dr. Just said that while the heart defect would not have been immediately fatal if the operation was not performed, Peggy's life expectancy would have been dramatically shortened. She also would have been a very fragile adult, Dr. Just said, and would have suffered complications in giving birth.

Nurses at Mercy said Peggy recovered rapidly from the operation and was anxious to get out of the hospital. Peggy says she is also anxious to do some of the things she never had the ability to do before — especially to try out for cheerleading.

Mercy hospital is the only hospital in Berrien, Cass or Van Buren counties which performs open heart surgery, according to Mercy hospital authorities. More than 100 open heart operations have been performed at Mercy since the hospital first started offering the surgery in 1973 and the hospital is now averaging two open heart operations a week.

Benton Construction Dips For Second Straight Year

The permit value of construction work in Benton township declined for the second straight year, but the 1975 decline of $185,342 from 1974 showed a leveling-off trend.

Permit value of construction work in 1974 tumbled more than $1.8 million from 1973.

The statistics were compiled in an annual report by township Building Inspector Chester Shuck.

During 1975, the township building inspection department issued 622 building permits for all types of construction work, totaling an estimated $3,255,949 — down by $185,342 from the $3,441,291 valuation of all work in 1974. The department issued 584 permits in 1974.

The department in 1975 issued seven permits for single-family dwellings, valued at $141,000. The department in 1974 also issued seven such permits for dwellings valued at $142,100.

Permits for apartment building also were comparable, with two issued in 1975 and in 1974. However, the total valuation of the apartments started in 1975 was $955,000, compared to $850,000 in 1974.

While 14 commercial and industrial buildings were started last year compared to 10 in 1974, their value was less — $678,369 compared to $948,751 in 1974. The department issued five permits for agricultural buildings, valued at $14,450, compared to four such buildings valued at $29,900 in 1974.

Permits for alterations and additions in 1975, followed by 1974 figures are:

Commercial and industrial, 65 for $863,413, compared to 59 for $636,612; dwellings, 381 for $359,609, compared to 343 for $795,459; and agricultural buildings, eight for $8,650, compared to two for $900.

Total permit valuation of township construction before 1974 included, $5,327,030 in 1973; $3,427,847 in 1972; $5,911,554 in 1971; and $5,707,603 in 1970.

SJ Elks Honoring 'Mr. Softball'

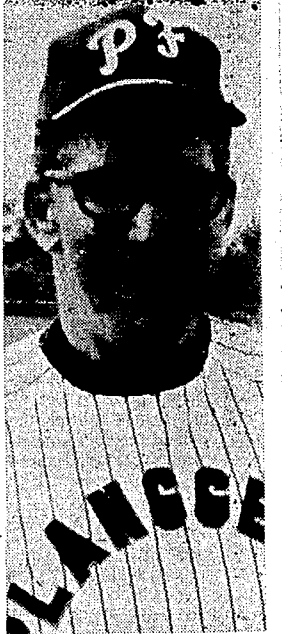

Richard (Rich) Plangger, manager of Plangger's softball team, will be honored at a banquet at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Jan. 19 by St. Joseph Elks and presented with their "Citizen of the Year" award.

Robert Dasse, exalted ruler of St. Joseph Elks lodge, No. 541, said Plangger is "Mr. Softball" of the Twin Cities and Southwestern Michigan. Dasse said Plangger is well-known for his playing ability and his efforts in providing opportunities, facilities and activities for anyone interested in the game.

Plangger assisted the St. Joseph Elks in their boys' and girls' softball leagues but Dasse said naming him "Citizen of the Year" was not for that specific project but his overall promotion of softball. Plangger built a softball diamond at Benton township park.

Committee for the banquet is comprised of past and present teammates of Plangger. The dinner is open to Elks and their guests. Tickets are $3. They are available from committee members, St. Joseph lodge officers' and at the lodge, 518 Broad street, St. Joseph.

Nutrition Council Will Meet

The Berrien County Senior Citizens Nutrition project advisory council will hold its annual meeting at 2 p.m., Jan. 22, at the Gateway plaza, 251 Cass street, Niles, according to Ruth Brock, project director. Officers will be elected and the council's activities will be reviewed and planned, Mrs. Brock said.

Liquor Violation Charges Filed

Three Twin Cities area supermarkets, two southwestern Michigan wholesale distributors and the Niles Elks Lodge have been charged with violation of state liquor license laws.

Hearings on the complaints filed with the Michigan Liquor Control commission will be held Tuesday, Jan. 20, at the Northwood fire station, 2617 North Burdick, in Kalamazoo.

Schneck's supermarket, 810 Napier avenue, St. Joseph, is charged with selling alcoholic beverages to a minor. Sassano, Inc., operator of Hilltop Foods, 1332 Hilltop road, St. Joseph; and Miller's Market, 4066 Red Arrow highway, Lincoln township, are charged with receiving aid or assistance from a wholesaler in stocking shelves.

The distributors — Bud Kerly sales, 2660 Lawrence avenue, Stevensville; and John Nate Beverages, 602 North Front street, Dowagiac — are charged with allowing salesmen to assist retail licensees in stocking shelves.

The Dowagiac distributor also proper records of transactions on or between Feb. 14 and Feb. 27, 1975.

The Niles Elks lodge, 104 North Third street, is charged with permitting liquor sold for consumption on the premises only to be taken elsewhere. The Elks lodge also is charged with permitting consumption or possession of spirits not purchased from an authorized state store and beer or wine not purchased from a licensed wholesaler, brewery or winery.

Coast Guard Auxiliary Offers Sailing Course

The St. Joseph Coast Guard Auxiliary will offer a five-week course on principles of sailing, beginning at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 28, at St. Joseph high school.

The course is open to all interested persons, regardless of age. A $5 fee is charged for a boating manual.

The five weekly two-hour sessions will be instructed by William Scott, an auxiliary member. Covered will be basic sail boat handling, sailing terminology, rigging and knots, rough weather procedures and the handling of other emergency situations.

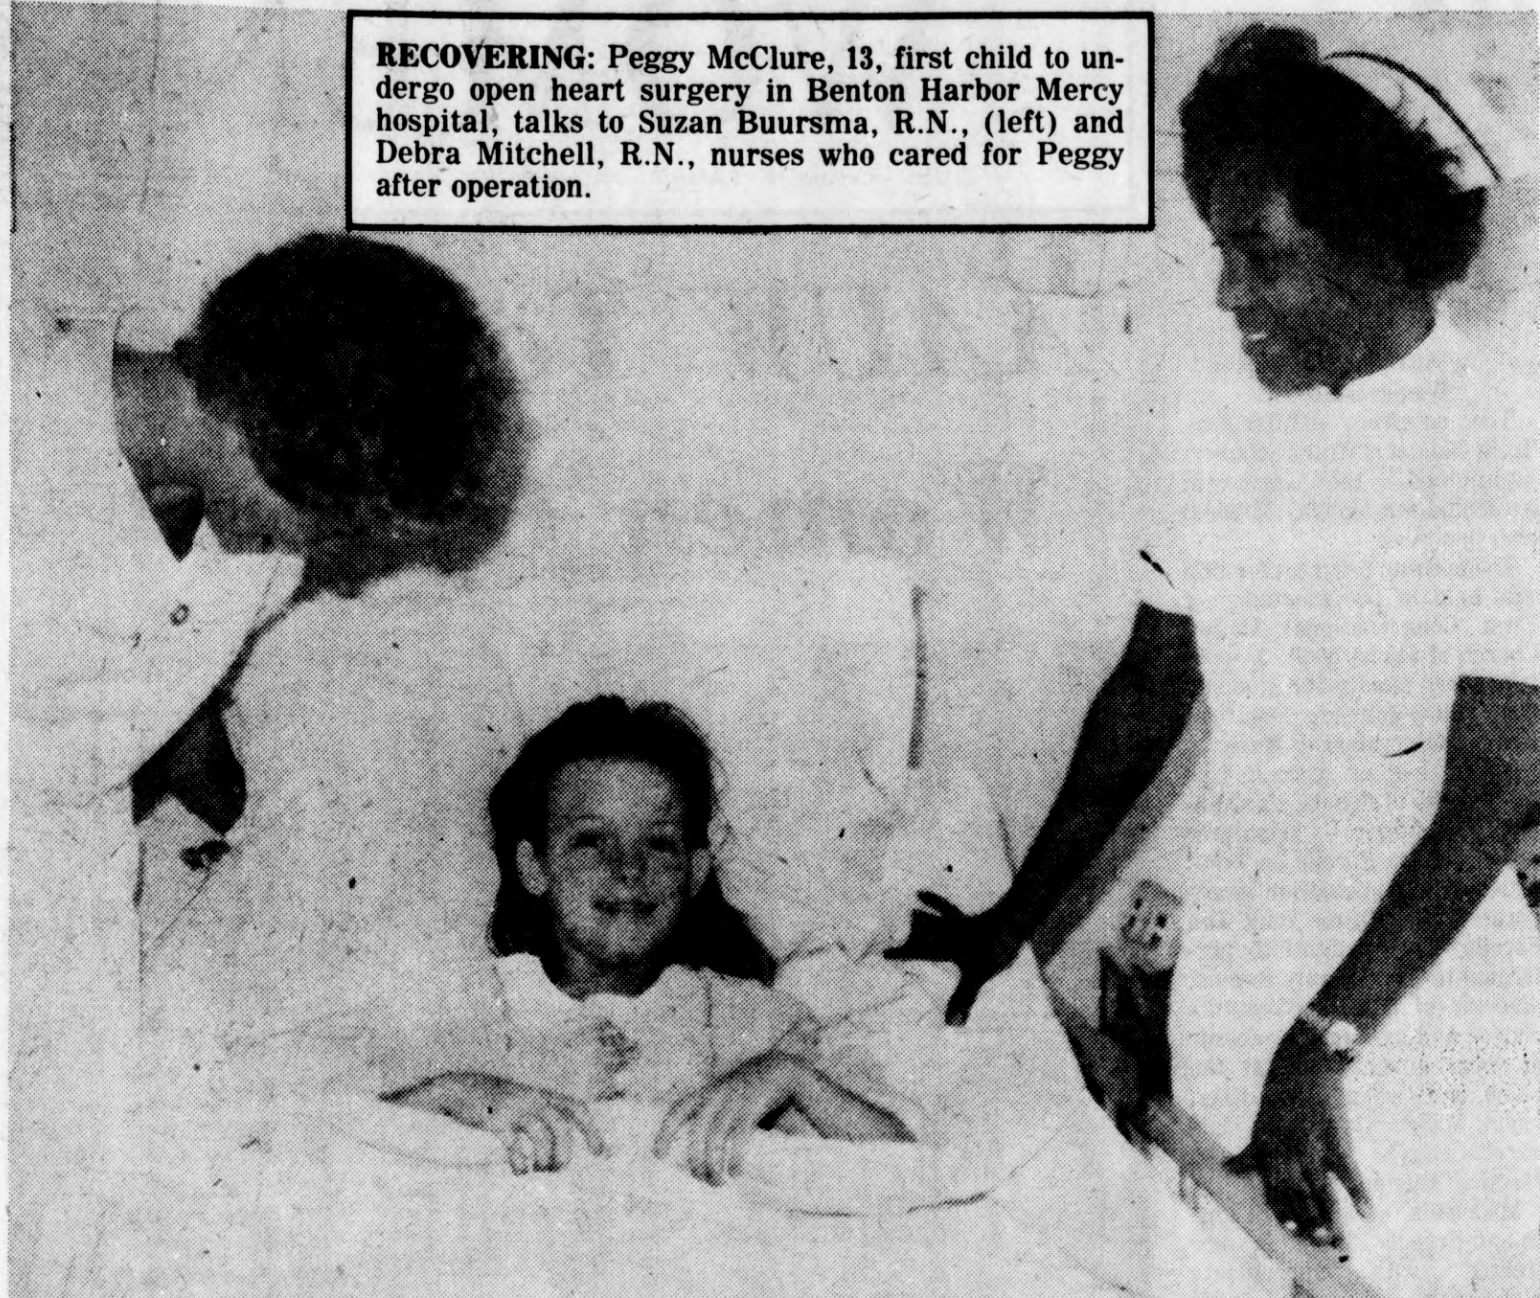

UAW Likes Jimmy Carter

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers said Tuesday its Florida political arm is supporting former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter in that state in an effort to derail George Wallace's bid for the Democratic presidential nomination. A spokesman at UAW headquarters in Detroit noted, however, that that effort "does not constitute an overall endorsement of Carter" by the union, nor does it mean the UAW will actively back Carter at the Democratic convention. But aides to union President Leonard Woodcock said he would visit Florida next month to help Carter's campaign.

Niles Girl's Future Bright After Open Heart Surgery

By MIKE WYNGARDEN

Peggy McClure, 13, couldn't keep up with her seventh grade classmates at Niles Brandywine junior high school. She had shortness of breath, was often fatigued, and was small for her age.

But doctors at Mercy hospital in Benton Harbor say those problems are all over for Peggy now. The daughter of Mrs. Mary Jane McClure, 2718 East street, Niles, Peggy is the first child to undergo open heart surgery in a southwestern Michigan hospital.

Surgeons at Mercy worked three hours Jan. 5 to close a hole between two chambers of Peggy's heart. She had a heart murmur in the right atrium of her heart since birth, doctors said, which caused some blood to recirculate through her heart rather than through her body. The operation was performed by Dr. George Just, pulmonary and cardiac surgeon at Mercy, who was assisted by Dr. G.H. Mir, pediatric cardiologist at Mercy.

NOW Will Sponsor Group Sessions

Berrien County NOW (National Organization for Women) is sponsoring monthly consciousness raising group sessions, beginning Thursday, Jan. 15, at 7:30 p.m. at St. Mark Lutheran church, Napier and Union, Benton Harbor.

Consciousness raising group sessions are a means by which women become aware of the social, cultural, economic, and political forces, both pro and con, which influence their life styles, beliefs, attitudes, and goals, according to Judy Phillips, Berrien Springs.

Mrs. Phillips has been appointed temporary chairman of the local chapter of NOW, following the resignation of Michael Kline who has moved to Washington, D.C.

Mrs. Phillips said the consciousness raising group session will meet on the third Thursday of each month with meetings open to all who are interested in attending.

Upton Gift To Music Club Designated For Students

Special Fund

Announcement was made at the Jan. 12 meeting of Monday Musical club of the gift of $2,000 from the estate of Mrs. Frederick S. Upton who died Sept. 24, 1975.

The gift was designated for the Lucy Butzbaugh scholarship fund which the club maintains to send area young men and women to Interlochen and Blue Lake summer music camps.

Mrs. Roy Parr, president of Monday Musical, also announced the receipt of a check for $1,000 from the Margaret Upton estate to be forwarded to the Michigan Federation of Music clubs of which Monday Musical club is a member.

Mrs. Upton held a lifetime active interest in music and served Monday Musical club as its president for five years and was a director of the Michigan Federation. At the time of her death, Mrs. Upton was a member of the club's program committee.

Monday's program was presented by a group of faculty members and students from the Margaret Upton Conservatory of Music at Olivet college. Funds for the conservatory building on the Olivet campus were given in Mrs. Upton's honor by her husband, Frederick S. Upton. The building was constructed in 1973-74.

Mrs. Parr also announced receipt of $1,000 from the Michigan Council for the Arts to be used toward Monday Musical's participation in a special July 4 program and in the Berrien County Bicentennial program.

The club is also a member of the National Federation of Music clubs.

Charming Program

By ARLYS DERRICK
Women's Editor
The carefree, exhilarating Trout Quintet of Franz Schubert highlighted the program presented for Monday Musical club this week.

The opening program for 1976 was held in the sanctuary of First Congregational United Church of Christ of St. Joseph. It featured faculty and students from Olivet college's Margaret Upton Conservatory of Music.

The melodious score in five movements of Schubert's Quintet in A Major — popularly known as Die Forelle or Trout because its composition incorporated the lilting song Die Forelle — was delightfully performed by Prof. Emily Byrens, director of Olivet's Women's chorus and assistant professor of vocal music there, at the piano, and students, Tina Klay, violin; Marcia Klay, viola; Margaret Byrens, cello; and Marshall Hughes, cello.

Madrigals by Orlando di Lasso and Francis Pilkington were treated with "appropriate melancholy and merriment by Olivet students, Susan Taylor of St. Joseph, Sarah Mahler, Tom Hart, and Marshall Hughes.

Songs included di Lasso's "O Eyes of My Beloved," "My Heart Doth Beg You'll Not Forget," "Oh, When My Husband Staggers Home," and Pilkington's "Rest, Sweet Nymphs."

A dramatic and moving performance in song was presented by Prof. Emily Byrens and Marshall Hughes with Prof. Danford M. Byrens, assistant professor of music at Olivet, at the piano.

The duo sang "Canticle II" by contemporary English composer Benjamin Britten.

The canticle is based on a quaint medieval poem telling the story of Abraham and Isaac. Prof. Byrens sang the alto part of Isaac while Hughes sang the tenor of Abraham. In duet they were the voice of God and a prayer from man.

First Women's Bank

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — When the First Women's Bank of New York opened its doors in New York City Oct. 18, 1919, it was hailed as the first all-women's bank in the country.

But records have shown the First Women's Bank of Clarksville began operating Oct. 6, 1919, about 10 months before the enactment of the 19th amendment giving women the right to vote.

The bank was started by Mrs. Brenda Runyon, wife of a prominent physician in this community straddling the Tennessee-Kentucky line, because she wanted something to do with her idle time.

Mrs. Runyon got the idea for the bank from a businessman whom she asked for advice on what she could do with her spare time, according to a June 1920 article in Ladies Home Journal.

"Some time later he asked me to come to his office and there he astonished me by suggesting that I start a woman's bank," Mrs. Runyon was quoted in the article. "I told him I knew nothing about banking except how to compute interest. He suggested that I could learn."

The bank opened with assets of $15,000 and took in deposits totaling more than $20,000 during its first day of operation, according to local records. The grand opening wasn't without a small amount of frivolity as men were presented with cigars and women were given brightly colored flowers.

An all-woman board of directors was elected in January 1920 and within 14 months the bank was able to pay a small dividend.

The bank remained operational for nearly seven years, until Mrs. Runyon injured her hip and could no longer take an active role in its operation.

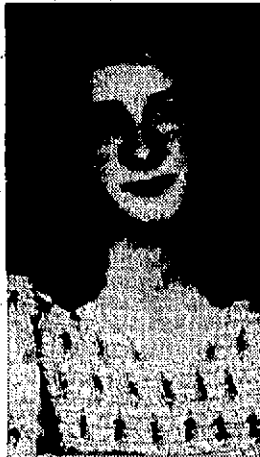

On June 9, 1926, it merged with the First Trust and Savings Bank, which is still operating.

The bank was not Mrs. Runyon's only interest. She was the first woman to serve on the local school board and persuaded officials to install rest room accommodations for women in the courthouse.

TC Symphony Announces Young Artists Winners

ELIZABETH NEE

JANE BEVERLY

SUZANNE KEENE

Elizabeth Nee of South Bend and Suzanne Lynn Keene of Portage are the winners of the Twin Cities Symphony's first annual Young Artists Competition.

A special prize was awarded during the competition Jan. 10 to Jane Beverly of South Bend.

All three young women will appear with the Twin Cities Symphony in concert Sunday, Feb. 8.

In addition to winning the appearances, Miss Nee and Miss Keene won $100 cash prizes named in the memory of Margaret Upton and Helen Baker.

Miss Nee won the piano division of the competition playing Beethoven's "Piano Concerto No. 3." Miss Keene won the string and woodwind division with her performance of Carl Nielsen's "Flute Concerto."

The judges recommended a special prize to Jane Beverly, who performed the Tchaikovsky "Violin Concerto." She will receive a $50 cash award and will also perform with the symphony.

Miss Nee, 13, resides in South Bend where she studies piano with Professor John Fisher of St. Mary's college. She plays with the South Bend Youth

Symphony. She won the second annual Indiana University at South Bend piano competition in 1975 and also won the South Bend Symphony Young Peoples competition the same year.

Miss Keene, 20, resides in Portage and attends Western Michigan university. A junior, she studies with Dr. Charles Osborne and is majoring in flute performance. She received an All-State scholarship in 1968 and received firsts at district and state Michigan solo and ensemble competition in 1970, 1971, and 1972.

Miss Beverly, 16, studies violin with Seymour Rubenstein in South Bend where she lives. She has played with the South Bend Symphony and Midwest

Chamber orchestra. She has competed in local solo and ensemble competitions, and in two college juries. She presented a solo concert in South Bend last year.

Judges were Dr. Jarry B. Ray, professor of music theory at Kalamazoo college; Chihiro Kuo, violin instructor at Indiana University at South Bend, and Dennis Bamber, woodwind instructor at the University of Notre Dame.

There were nine contestants in the competition. Kudo commented, "it is surprising to find such ability at such a young age." Bamber said, "although the level of performers was high, there was general agreement among us as to who the winners would be."

Bridge Tourney Openings Available

There are still openings in the annual bridge tournament sponsored by St. Catherine's Guild of St. Paul Episcopal church, St. Joseph.

Play will begin Monday, Jan. 19, and continue six consecutive Monday at the church.

Those interested in participating may contact Mrs. Charles Rhodes or Mrs. Gene Durren, both of St. Joseph.

Mrs. Rhodes and Mrs. Bart Kruse are co-chairmen of the event.

Mrs. Durren is in charge of reservations and M. Harvey Johnson is in charge of prizes.

Funds for the conservatory building on the Olivet campus were given in Mrs. Upton's honor by her husband, Frederick S. Upton. The building was constructed in 1973-74.

Mrs. Parr also announced receipt of $1,000 from the Michigan Council for the Arts to be used toward Monday Musical's participation in a special July 4 program and in the Berrien County Bicentennial pageant.

The club is also a member of the National Federation of Music clubs.

Charming Program

The carefree, exhilarating Trout Quintet of Franz Schubert highlighted the program presented for Monday Musical club this week.

The opening program for 1976 was held in the sanctuary of First Congregational United Church of Christ of St. Joseph. It featured faculty and students from Olivet college's Margaret Upton Conservatory of Music.

The melodious score in five movements of Schubert's Quintet in A Major — popularly known as Die Forelle or Trout because its composition incorporated the lilting song Die Forelle — was delightfully performed by Prof. Emily Byrens, director of Olivet's Women's chorus and assistant professor of vocal music there, at the piano, and students, Tina Klay, violin; Marcia Klay, viola; Margaret Byrens, cello, and Marshall Hughes, cello.

Madrigals by Orlando di Lasso and Francis Pilkington were treated with appropriate melancholy and merriment by Olivet students, Susan Taylor of St. Joseph, Sarah Mahler, Tom Hart, and Marshall Hughes.

Songs included Di Lasso's "O Eyes of My Beloved," "My Heart Doth Beg You'll Not Forget," "Oh, When My Husband Staggers Home," and Pilkington's "Rest, Sweet Nymphs."

A dramatic and moving performance in song was presented by Prof. Emily Byrens and Marshall Hughes with Prof. Danford M. Byrens, assistant professor of music at Olivet, at the piano.

The duo sang "Canticle II" by contemporary English composer Benjamin Britten.

The canticle is based on a quaint medieval poem telling the story of Abraham and Isaac. Prof. Byrens sang the alto part of Isaac while Hughes sang the tenor of Abraham. In duet they were the voice of God and a prayer from man.

Bridge Tourney Openings Available

There are still openings in the annual bridge tournament sponsored by St. Catherine's Guild of St. Paul Episcopal church, St. Joseph.

Play will begin Monday, Jan. 19, and continue six consecutive Monday at the church.

Those interested in participating may contact Mrs. Charles Rhodes or Mrs. Gene Durren, both of St. Joseph.

Mrs. Rhodes and Mrs. Bart Kruse are co-chairmen of the event.

Mrs. Durren is in charge of reservations and M. Harvey Johnson is in charge of prizes.

TC Symphony Announces Young Artists Winners

ELIZABETH NEE

JANE BEVERLY

SUZANNE KEENE

Elizabeth Nee of South Bend and Suzanne Lynn Keene of Portage are the winners of the Twin Cities Symphony's first annual Young Artists Competition.

A special prize was awarded during the competition Jan. 10 to Jane Beverly of South Bend.

All three young women will appear with the Twin Cities Symphony in concert Sunday, Feb. 8.

In addition to winning the appearances, Miss Nee and Miss Keene won $100 cash prizes named in the memory of Margaret Upton and Helen Baker.

Miss Nee won the piano division of the competition playing Beethoven's "Piano Concerto No. 3." Miss Keene won the string and woodwind division with her performance of Carl Nielsen's "Flute Concerto."

The judges recommended a special prize to Jane Beverly, who performed the Tchaikovsky "Violin Concerto." She will receive a $50 cash award and will also perform with the symphony.

Miss Nee, 13, resides in South Bend where she studies piano with Professor John Fisher of St. Mary's college. She plays with the South Bend Youth

Symphony. She won the second annual Indiana University at South Bend piano competition in 1975 and also won the South Bend Symphony Young Peoples competition the same year.

Miss Keene, 20, resides in Portage and attends Western Michigan university. A junior, she studies with Dr. Charles Osborne and is majoring in flute performance. She received an Interlochen All-State scholarship in 1968 and received firsts at district and state Michigan solo and ensemble competition in 1970, 1971, and 1972.

Miss Beverly, 16, studies violin with Seymour Rubenstein in South Bend where she lives. She has played with the South Bend Symphony and Midwest

Chamber orchestra. She has competed in local solo and ensemble competitions, and in two college juries. She presented a solo concert in South Bend last year.

Judges were Dr. Jarry B. Ray, professor of music theory at Kalamazoo college; Chihiro Kuo, violin instructor at Indiana University at South Bend, and Dennis Bamber, woodwind instructor at the University of Notre Dame.

There were nine contestants in the competition.

Kudo commented, "it is surprising to find such ability at such a young age." Bamber said, "although the level of performers was high, there was general agreement among us as to who the winners would be."

First Women's Bank

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — When the First Women's Bank of New York opened its doors in New York City Oct. 18, 1919, it was hailed as the first all-women's bank in the country.

But records have shown the First Women's Bank of Clarksville began operating Oct. 6, 1919, about 10 months before the enactment of the 19th amendment giving women the right to vote.

The bank was started by Mrs. Brenda Runyon, wife of a prominent physician in this community straddling the Tennessee-Kentucky line, because she wanted something to do with her idle time.

Mrs. Runyon got the idea for the bank from a businessman whom she asked for advice on what she could do with her spare time, according to a June 1920 article in Ladies Home Journal.

"Some time later he asked me to come to his office and there he astonished me by suggesting that I start a woman's bank," Mrs. Runyon was quoted in the article. "I told him I knew nothing about banking except how to compute interest. He suggested that I could learn."

The bank opened with assets of $15,000 and took in deposits totaling more than $20,000 during its first day of operation, according to local records. The grand opening wasn't without a small amount of frivolity as men were presented with cigars and women were given brightly colored flowers.

An all-woman board of directors was elected in January 1920 and within 14 months the bank was able to pay a small dividend.

The bank remained operational for nearly seven years, until Mrs. Runyon injured her hip and could no longer take an active role in its operation.

On June 9, 1926, it merged with the First Trust and Savings Bank, which is still operating.

The bank was not Mrs. Runyon's only interest. She was the first woman to serve on the local school board and persuaded officials to install rest room accommodations for women in the courthouse.

Begin Bicentennial With Balanced Food Budget

Add Creative Touch To Sunday's Leftovers

What better way to celebrate the Bicentennial than to balance the budget?

It's no small task, in these days of inflation, to balance that food budget while providing tasteful meals.

The secret? Careful planning and resourceful seasoning.

First and foremost for the budget-minded homemaker comes planning. Review what supplies are on hand and what is needed. Sketch out your menu for the week. Make a list. Lots of pennies are lost on impulse buying.

Coordination is the key. Make what you've got in the cupboard and what you put on the shopping list work together. Got spaghetti but no sauce? Include that in your list and plan an Italian dinner. Coordinate the items you buy, too. If you're having meatloaf one night, make enough for sandwiches the following day.

Watch for specials. Newspapers carry plenty of ads, notes on bargain prices and sometimes coupons. Supermarkets promote reduced prices at the shelf, too. Try taking a quick walk through the store before you start shopping to check the latest offerings. Make substitutions on your list as needed; pot roast may be cheaper than pork chops today.

It pays, literally, to be flexible.

If you catch a good sale, buy in quantity. But be sure the product is one you use.

Pay attention to fruits and vegetables in season. They cost less. Some vegetables are almost always a good buy — like carrots. So try them many ways — fresh and buttered, glazed, in a carrot cake. And you can always stretch a season by canning for later use.

Once back in the kitchen, the challenge is creative flavoring. The right seasoning can make Wednesday's chicken casserole taste delightfully different from Monday's baked chicken. According to a leading seasoning company, the five most popular condiments are salt, pepper, onion, parsley and garlic — so keep them on hand. Or use a prepared combination such as a seasoning blend, which contains all five.

Other spices are handy on the racks, too. Dill, great with fish, seafood or in a dip with fresh vegetables. Oregano, for that instant Italian flavor or curry for the Indian touch. Tarragon, a subtle accent for eggs, vegetables and casseroles. Cinnamon and nutmeg for cooked fruits and desserts.

And the list goes on. Your only limit is your imagination. It's a shade more work, but your family and your bank account will love it.

Whether you catch it yourself or select it from the supermarket's frozen shelf, fish offers a quick change of pace for the budget-conscious homemaker. Plus, frozen fillets give a good return on investment. The cost per pound may be slightly more than hamburger, but shrinkage is virtually nil. And fish is high in protein, too.

FILLET OF FISH CASSEROLE

One cup raw brown rice
Two and one-half cups water
One tablespoon butter
One and one-half teaspoons seasoning blend
Two cups sliced fresh mushrooms or two (four-ounce) cans mushrooms, drained
One tablespoon butter
One-half teaspoon seasoning blend
One-half cup chopped pecans
Two pounds fish fillets
One-half teaspoon seasoning blend
One lemon, sliced

In a shallow, three-quart casserole combine rice, water, butter and one and one-half teaspoons seasoning blend. Use foil or a lid to cover casserole tightly. Bake at 350 degrees for about 40 minutes, until all water is absorbed.

Thaw fish if necessary. In small skillet saute mushrooms in butter. Stir in one-half teaspoon seasoning blend. Remove from heat; stir in nuts.

Stir mushroom mixture into cooked rice. Top with fish fillets. Sprinkle fillets lightly with seasoning blend, using about one-half teaspoon. Arrange lemon slices over fillets. Butter an area on foil which is the size of top of casserole. Place buttered side of foil nearest fish; press foil around edges of casserole to seal. Bake at 350 degrees for about 15 minutes, or until fish flakes easily with a fork. Makes six servings.

FISH JAMAICA STYLE

One pound fish, boned and skinned
One tablespoon butter or salad oil
One teaspoon seasoning blend
One-half teaspoon crushed hot pepper or one-fourth cup pickled hot pepper rings, drained
Lime or lemon wedges

Thaw fish if using frozen product. Cut fish into one and one-half-inch chunks. Combine fish and all remaining ingredients in a one-quart casserole. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes or until fish flakes easily with a fork. Stir occasionally during baking. Makes about two cups.

This dish may be served as an appetizer or an entree. It is good hot or cold.

Using leftovers wisely is a great way to stretch the food dollar. And when you add a creative touch to leftovers, your family may rave as much about your new meal as they did about the Sunday roast which gave it its start.

An easy way to create different and delicious second meals is to use Chinese-style ingredients.

CHICKEN ENCORE

One-third cup dark raisins
One package (six and one-fourth ounces) fried rice mix
Two tablespoons butter or margarine
Two cups diced cooked chicken
One-fourth cup slivered toasted almonds
One-fourth cup bottled creamy onion salad dressing
Three slices bacon, cooked and crumbled

Pour a little boiling water over raisins; let stand five minutes to plump them; drain and set aside.

In heavy kettle or Dutch oven, saute rice in butter until golden brown. Add two cups water, and fried rice seasoning mix. Cover tightly and simmer 25 minutes or until water is absorbed. Add raisins, chicken and almonds to rice; mix well. Add salad dressing and mix well. Heat through. Serve topped with crumbled bacon. Makes four servings.

SWEET AND SOUR HAM STIR-FRY

One box (nineteen ounces) sweet and sour stir-fry entree
One-half teaspoon ginger
One and one-half cup cubed cooked ham
One cup cooked green beans
One cup diced canned yams

In large skillet, combine glaze mix from entree with one-fourth cup water and the ginger; heat, stirring, until mix dissolves.

Add ham and stir to coat with glaze. Add the sweet and sour sauce and mix well. Add beans and yams and heat through. Makes four servings.

CHICKEN PARISIENNE

One-fourth cup butter or margarine
Two pounds frying chicken parts
Two slices bacon, diced
Six small whole white onions
One carrot, cut in long thin strips
Two cloves garlic, mashed
One and one-half tablespoons flour
One cup dry burgundy
One-fourth cup brandy
Salt and pepper
One tablespoon minced parsley
One can (four ounces) mushroom stems and pieces
Eight ounces (four to five cups) mung bean egg noodles

In skillet, melt butter. Add chicken; brown well. Remove chicken; pour off butter and reserve two tablespoons. Add bacon, onions, carrot and garlic to skillet; cook a few minutes.

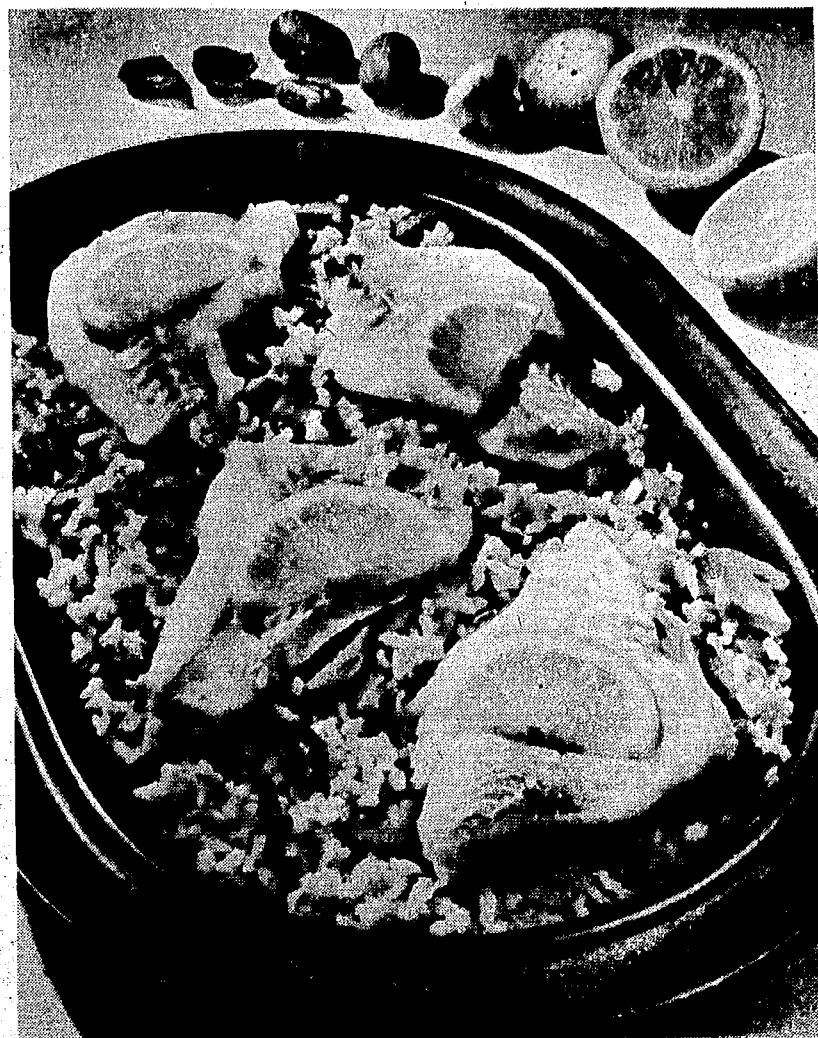

Add reserved butter. Remove from heat; blend in flour until smooth. Add wine, brandy, salt and pepper; heat. Add parsley and mushrooms (partially drained). Add chicken; spoon sauce over. Cover; simmer 45 minutes.

Meanwhile, cook noodles as directed on package; drain in colander. To serve put noodles in large dish; arrange chicken on top; pour sauce over. Garnish with additional parsley if desired. Makes four to six servings.

SWEDISH SKILLET

Two tablespoons minced onion
Butter or margarine
One and one-half pounds meatloaf mix (ground beef, pork and veal)
One egg, slightly beaten
Two and one-half cups milk
One cup soft bread cubes
Two teaspoons salt
Pepper
Dash nutmeg
One cup light cream
Eight ounces (three cups) ready-cut macaroni
Chopped dill or parsley

In large skillet cook onion in one tablespoon butter until soft; remove with slotted spoon to mixing bowl. Add meat, egg, one-half cup of the milk, bread cubes, one teaspoon salt and dash pepper to onion; mix well. Shape into one-inch balls; roll in flour.

In same skillet, brown meatballs using additional butter as needed. Remove with slotted spoon and keep hot. Blend two tablespoons flour into drippings; gradually stir in remaining two cups milk, one teaspoon salt, nutmeg, cream and pepper. Cook, stirring, until sauce boils one minute. Return meatballs, cover and simmer 15 minutes.

Meanwhile, cook macaroni as directed on package; drain in colander. Add macaroni to meatballs and sauce; heat a minute. Garnish with dill. Makes four to six servings.

QUICK-ASA-FLASH SPAGHETTI

Eight ounces thin spaghetti
Four slices bacon, diced
Cooking oil

One-half cup thinly sliced onion
One-fourth pound sliced boiled ham, cut into strips
One-fourth cup butter or margarine
Three-fourths cup chicken broth
One-half cup chopped parsley
One cup grated parmesan cheese

Cook spaghetti as directed on package; drain in colander. Meanwhile, in skillet, cook bacon until crisp; remove and crumble. Add enough cooking oil to drippings to make one-fourth cup. Add onion; cook until soft but not brown. Stir in cooked spaghetti, ham, butter, chicken broth, parsley, parmesan cheese and bacon pieces. Toss and serve immediately. Makes three to four servings.

PINEAPPLE-GLAZED CARROTS

One pound carrots, sliced
One (thirteen and one-half ounce) can pineapple tidbits, undrained
One-half cup water
Three-fourths teaspoon seasoning blend
One tablespoon butter, at room temperature
One tablespoon flour
Three to four tablespoons orange juice or orange-flavored liqueur

In medium saucepan combine carrots, pineapple with syrup, water and seasoning blend. Bring to boil. Reduce heat, cover and simmer for about 30 minutes or until carrots are tender. In small cup blend butter and flour to make a roux. Stir roux into carrots and pineapple. Cook and stir over high heat until sauce boils. Reduce heat. Stir in orange juice and simmer for one minute. Makes about three cups.

Fondue Style Treat For 'Apres Ski'

Any skier can tell you that "apres ski" means after ski. It also means hearty appetites.

These two new recipes create a perfect menu for apres ski.

Alpine Beef Sandwiches are actually a fondue style treat that lets everyone "do their own thing." Have meat, sliced and rolls, buttered ahead of time. Apres ski, stir together a flavorful gravy mixture in a fondue pot or saucepan. It's quick to do with the help of an envelope of onion gravy mix.

Each guest cooks his or her own thinly sliced steak in the fondue pot. A little of the gravy mixture spooned on each sandwich adds extra flavor.

Marinated Relish Salad is a perfect accompaniment for Alpine Beef Sandwiches. A brilliant array of winter vegetables marinates ahead in a tangy dressing that gets extra zip from prepared yellow mustard.

Dessert and a hot beverage round out your apres ski menu.

ALPINE BEEF SANDWICHES

One pound sirloin or round steak
One cup water
One-half cup dry red wine
Two tablespoons soy sauce
Two tablespoons butter or margarine
One envelope (seven-eighths-ounce) onion gravy mix
Six hamburger rolls

Trim all fat, gristle and bone from steak; cut into very thin slices. Combine water, wine, soy sauce, butter and contents of gravy mix envelope in fondue pot or saucepan; heat to boiling. Dip slices of meat into simmering gravy mixture using fondue forks. Cook several minutes or until done. Serve on rolls, spooning some of the gravy mixture over each sandwich. Makes six servings.

MARINATED VEGETABLE SALAD

One-half head cauliflower
Three carrots, scraped and cut into thin sticks
One small bunch broccoli
One onion, peeled and sliced
One-half cup oil
Two tablespoons vinegar
Two tablespoons prepared yellow mustard

Separate cauliflower into florets; combine with carrot sticks in saucepan with one-half-inch salted water. Bring to boil; simmer, covered, three minutes. Drain and chill.

Remove stems from broccoli (chop stems; save to cook and serve for vegetable at a later meal). Add broccoli buds and sliced onion to cauliflower and carrots. Mix together oil, vinegar and mustard. Pour over vegetables and toss lightly. Chill. Makes six servings.

Cook spaghetti as directed on package; drain in colander.

Meanwhile, in skillet, cook bacon until crisp; remove and crumble. Add enough cooking oil to drippings to make one-fourth cup. Add onion; cook until soft but not brown. Stir in cooked spaghetti, ham, butter, chicken broth, parsley, parmesan cheese and bacon pieces. Toss and serve immediately. Makes three to four servings.

The all-year, always low-priced vegetable, carrots are an all-time favorite with the homemaker trying to make ends meet.

In medium saucepan combine carrots, pineapple with syrup, water and seasoning blend. Bring to boil. Reduce heat, cover and simmer for about 30 minutes or until carrots are tender. In small cup blend butter and flour to make a roux. Stir roux into carrots and pineapple. Cook and stir over high heat until sauce boils. Reduce heat. Stir in orange juice and simmer for one minute. Makes about three cups.

PINEAPPLE-GLAZED CARROTS

One pound carrots, sliced

One (thirteen and one-half ounce) can pineapple tidbits, undrained

One-half cup water

Three-fourths teaspoon seasoning blend

One tablespoon butter, at room temperature

One tablespoon flour

Three to four tablespoons orange juice or orange-flavored liqueur

In medium saucepan combine carrots, pineapple with syrup, water and seasoning blend. Bring to boil. Reduce heat, cover and simmer for about 30 minutes or until carrots are tender. In small cup blend butter and flour to make a roux. Stir roux into carrots and pineapple. Cook and stir over high heat until sauce boils. Reduce heat. Stir in orange juice and simmer for one minute. Makes about three cups.

Fondue Style Treat For 'Apres Ski'

Any skier can tell you that "apres ski" means after ski. It also means hearty appetites.

These two new recipes create a perfect menu for apres ski.

Alpine Beef Sandwiches are actually a fondue style treat that lets everyone "do their own thing." Have meat sliced and rolls buttered ahead of time. Apres ski, stir together a flavorful gravy mixture in a fondue pot or saucepan. It's quick to do with the help of an envelope of onion gravy mix.

Each guest cooks his or her own thinly sliced steak in the fondue pot. A little of the gravy mixture spooned on each sandwich adds extra flavor.

Marinated Relish Salad is a perfect accompaniment for Alpine Beef Sandwiches. A brilliant array of winter vegetables marinated ahead in a tangy dressing that gets extra zip from prepared yellow mustard.

Dessert and a hot beverage round out your apres ski menu.

ALPINE BEEF SANDWICHES

One pound sirloin or round steak

One cup water

One-half cup dry red wine

Two tablespoons soy sauce

Two tablespoons butter or margarine

One envelope (seven-eighths-ounce) onion gravy mix

Six hamburger rolls

Trim all fat, gristle and bone from steak; cut into very thin slices. Combine water, wine, soy sauce, butter and contents of gravy mix envelope in fondue pot or saucepan; heat to boiling. Dip slices of meat into simmering gravy mixture using fondue forks. Cook several minutes or until done. Serve on rolls, spooning some of the gravy mixture over each sandwich. Makes six servings.

MARINATED VEGETABLE SALAD

One-half head cauliflower

Three carrots, scraped and cut into thin sticks

One small bunch broccoli

One onion, peeled and sliced

One-half cup oil

Two tablespoons vinegar

Two tablespoons prepared yellow mustard

Separate cauliflower into flowerets; combine with carrot sticks in saucepan with one-half-inch salted water. Bring to boil; simmer, covered, three minutes. Drain and chill.

Remove stems from broccoli (chop stems; save to cook and serve for vegetable at a later meal). Add broccoli buds and sliced onion to cauliflower and carrots. Mix together oil, vinegar and mustard. Pour over vegetables and toss lightly. Chill. Makes six servings.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Grandparents Have A Right

Dear Ann Landers: At the time of my divorce our only child was four years old. Now she is eight. Her father has moved out of the state and sends the support checks regularly. But he never bothers to go out of his way to phone or see her. Last year he saw the child only once.

He phoned her twice. I remarried and now have other children. My problem is my ex-husband's parents. They are still determined to keep in close touch with their son's daughter. What is your opinion of ex-in-laws in a situation like this? My daughter seems to be very happy with her own little family.

Am I being selfish in not wanting her to see her ex-grandparents? — A Mess With The Ex's

Dear Mess: You certainly are. These grandparents have every right to keep in close touch with your child. Just because you are no longer married to their son and have other children is no justification for denying them a place in this little girl's life. She is the flesh of their flesh and I hope you will never forget it.

Old News

Dear Ann Landers: I always suspected it was true but now I have evidence produced by a research team at the University of California. Please print it, Ann. Maybe — just maybe — a few people will recognize themselves.

My theory — now proven: Boozes makes most people bores. It plays hell with their judgment. It turns them into repetitive, non-stop blabbermouths and gets them to tell secrets. They forget what they are talking about in mid-sentence. Polite folks become clods when they drink — interrupting others as they drone on and on.

One of the researchers, Dr. Robert C. Smith, a psychiatrist (now at the University of Chicago), said he didn't want to make a moral judgment — but if a person goes to a party and someone who might play a significant role in his future should show up, lay off the sauce. — No News To Me

Dear No News: I didn't need to read about the research to learn the facts stated in your letter. After writing this column for 20 years I have plenty of "research" of my own. But thank you very much for writing.

Thank You

Dear Ann Landers: I don't have a problem I want solved, nor do I want an opinion of anything. I just want to extend a note of thanks to all the wonderful stepfathers out there. I am writing this letter because I was lucky and got a neat one. It's kind of rare to really get a perfect stepfather. One that never gets mad at you; drops everything to help you with any problem and most important of all, loves you like his very own.

Please print this letter as a thanks to all the great stepfathers there are, and a special thanks to mine. — Good Fortune Cookie

Dear Cookie: I'm not giving a single clue as to where your letter came from. I'll bet lots of stepdads would love to believe it was written for them. Let's let them all think so.

Don't get burned by a "line" that's too hot to handle. Play it cool with Ann Landers' guide to "Necking and Pettling — What Are the Limits?" Send your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120, enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped (13 cents now), self-addressed envelope.

There are elements of human nature I will never understand. A careless camper will flip a match during a rainstorm and seconds later the entire forest will be in flames.

We will give a party and my husband will "lay a fire" using 30 pounds of paper, a mound of brittle kindling, and a seasoned log with a guarantee stapled on the side. Within minutes, an entire party will be driven into the streets by smoke.

He's the only man I know who had a fireplace with a gas lighter go out on him.

"Why don't you forget the fire tonight?" I said, collaring him before a party.

"Nonsense," he said. "I've got the secret. I just have to use more paper and get it started early. That's the secret. Start it early and get a bed of hot coals. Then, just feed it logs all night."

At 8:30 p.m., he burnt the evening paper which I had not read.

At 8:35, he emptied three trash cans into the fireplace and created another small flame.

At 7:00, he emerged from the garage with a wagon full of papers I had been saving for the last three months for the Boy Scout paper drive.

The guests began to arrive. At 7:45, he burnt all the calendars in the house, plus five napkins which he was able to snatch away from guests.

At 7:50, he frantically tore the plastic bags off the dry cleaning in the hall closet and burnt a drawer full of brown paper grocery bags I save for garbage. At 8:05, with the living room snowing with flying fragments of soot, he began emptying shoe boxes and wedding them under the log.

At 9:00 he was reduced to lighting unpaid bills with a match and throwing them in on the smoldering log. I collared him, "Look, Smoke the Bear, will you forget about the lousy fire and pay some attention to your guests?"

"I almost got it," he said feverishly. "Just a few more pieces of paper." He ran to the cedar chest and emerged with the baby books, our wedding pictures and our marriage license.

At 1 a.m. he grabbed me by the shoulder, "It's going," he said. "It's really blazing. Remember those cereal boxes with only a little cereal left? I threw it away and the boxes did it!"

"Wonderful," I said, pulling the covers around my neck, "now will you put it out and come to bed. We've got a big day ahead of us tomorrow. I am having you committed."

Antiques Trade Is Up

NEW YORK (AP) — Sotheby Park Bernet's announcement that trading through its auctions in America has returned to 1973 record levels is regarded as good news for New York's international art and antiques trade.

The firm's regulated public auctions in New York are regarded as the barometer of the market.

Much of the success of the season, which opened in early September, was attributed by Parke Bernet president John Marlon to noticeably increased American buying and bidding against international competition.

Net sales of $32,674,039 of property were recorded September through December. The results represent a 28 per cent increase over the same period last year and are three per cent behind the same period for the preceding year, which ushered in the record 1973-74 season.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The Jacoby transfer is very effective in responding to a two-no-trump opening. As a starter, it gives you a chance to play three of a major with a bust hand opposite a two-no-trump opening. In standard bidding, any response to a two-no-trump opening bid is a force.

The Jacoby transfer makes it possible for North and South to play at three hearts which makes easily, since South loses two clubs and two hearts.

In standard American, North would have to pass at two no-trump (down two) or bid three and four hearts. Four hearts would go one down, but it just might happen that South would refuse to stop there.

Now change South's spades and hearts so that he holds ace-small of spades and ace-king and two small hearts.

Standard American would get to game. So does the Jacoby transfer.

South looks at his hand and sees that he wants to be in the heart game as long as North holds five hearts. He wants to be in a heart slam if North has any real values. Therefore, instead of merely bidding three hearts, he jumps to four and wraps it up.

Ask the Jacobys

A Florida reader wants to know the correct opening bid with:

▲ 10xx K K K K AKJ10xxxx. There is no good way to handle these very freakish hands. Our practice is to open one club, but we would not object to opening with five clubs. We definitely would not open three or four clubs.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're prone to be more considerate of those with whom you have no emotional ties. You'll eliminate problems if you're aware of this around loved ones.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) There's no reason you shouldn't have fun today, but be careful not to live it up at the cost of your responsibilities.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your material prospects are bright today, providing you don't bank on iffy situations. Exercise prudent judgment.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't let self-doubts gain the upper hand today. If you think you're a winner, you are. Act like one.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You have a tendency today to paint a picture which is true, but not necessarily complete. Get all the facts out in the open.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) In your business dealings today, don't let all the water come out of your well. Make sure that associates kick in their shares.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Muster allies today for your position. They'll be available if you make a proper approach, and show them gratitude.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Have faith in your ideas today, but don't delude yourself into thinking they'll be approved by all. However, the majority will be in your corner.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be realistic in dealing with friends in business situations today. You're not the selfish type, but don't give away the store, either.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you have to make an important decision today, think of its effect on the family. Then you'll choose the right path.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Want things done today? Get the ball rolling. It's fine if others want to help, but you can't depend on anyone.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Social functions you plan today should be restricted to those you know are compatible. Satisfying obligations could shake up the party.

You're apt to form some very valuable alliances this coming year. One will be close to the family. It could be influential in a sphere in which you are interested.

Dr. Lester Coleman

An interesting letter came to me from a Mrs. A. M. in California.

Apparently, Mrs. M. had a bad experience with a new drug for arthritis. It caused serious side effects. She wondered how patients could be protected from these unpleasant effects when using a new drug.

Any drug, new or old, taken in small or large quantities, can produce distinct side effects. A chemical as simple as ordinary house salt (Sodium chloride) can, in some people, be responsible for unusual side effects.

It is difficult, therefore, to anticipate which drugs will produce unwanted effects. Manufacturers always protect themselves by stating that side reactions may occur in some people.

All physicians who recommend a new drug to patients invariably tell them what they can expect in benefits. They also instruct their patients that if any unusual reaction occurs, the drug should be stopped immediately until there is further consultation.

The prescription of a drug by a doctor and the taking of the drug by the patient is a mutual responsibility. Only the close coordination between the two can prevent serious side reactions.

I take a daily sauna bath at my club after exercise. Then I use the steam room. Can excessively hot air hurt the lungs?

Mr. J. J. Neb.

Dear Mr. J.: Steam can be of great benefit and can be soothing to the mucous membrane lining of the nose, the larynx and the bronchial tubes.

Despite the benefits to the respiratory tract, excessively hot steam can be injurious and should certainly be avoided. Fortunately, there is good control in the sauna bath.

Steam rooms, however, may have different levels for a higher concentration of steam. It is unsafe for one member of a club to compete with another member in attaining the highest level of steam concentration for the longest period of time.

Moderation here, as elsewhere, is the essence of good health.

Can a doctor tell if I am a smoker by looking at my throat?

Miss S.K. La.

Dear Miss K.:

There is no positive identification of a "smoker's throat" by just looking at it. Yet, long exposure to tobacco can cause a chronic pharyngitis. The delicate mucous membrane lining may become thickened and beefy red in appearance.

As you must know, there are many more important reasons for giving up smoking.

Dear Mr. J.: Steam can be of great benefit and can be soothing to the mucous membrane lining of the nose, the larynx and the bronchial tubes.

Despite the benefits to the respiratory tract, excessively hot steam can be injurious and should certainly be avoided. Fortunately, there is good control in the sauna bath.

Steam rooms, however, may have different levels for a higher concentration of steam.

It is unsafe for one member of a club to compete with another member in attaining the highest level of steam concentration for the longest period of time.

Moderation here, as elsewhere, is the essence of good health.

Can a doctor tell if I am a smoker by looking at my throat?

Miss S.K., La. Dear Miss K.: There is no positive identification of a "smoker's throat" by just looking at it. Yet, long exposure to tobacco can cause a chronic pharyngitis. The delicate mucous membrane lining may become thickened and beefy red in appearance. As you must know, there are many more important reasons for giving up smoking.

Antiques Trade Is Up

NEW YORK (AP) — Sotheby Park Bernet's announcement that trading through its auctions in America has returned to 1973 record levels is regarded as good news for New York's international art and antiques trade.

The firm's regulated public auctions in New York are regarded as the barometer of the market.

Much of the success of the season, which opened in early September, was attributed by Parke Bernet president John Marion to noticeably increased American buying and bidding against international competition.

Net sales of $32,674,039 of property were recorded September through December. The results represent a 28 per cent increase over the same period last year and are three per cent behind the same period for the preceding year, which ushered in the record 1973-74 season.

The Jacoby transfer is very effective in responding to a two-notrump opening. As a starter, it gives you a chance to play three of a major with a bust hand opposite a two-notrump opening. In standard bidding, any response to a two-notrump opening bid is a force.

The Jacoby transfer makes it possible for North and South to play at three hearts which makes easily, since South loses two clubs and two hearts.

In standard American, North would have to pass at two notrump (down two) or bid three and four hearts. Four hearts would go one down, but it just might happen that South would refuse to stop there.

Now change South's spades and hearts so that he holds ace-small of spades and ace-king and two small hearts.

Standard American would get to game. So does the Jacoby transfer.

South looks at his hand and sees that he wants to be in the heart game as long as North holds five hearts. He wants to be in a heart slam if North has any real values. Therefore, instead of merely bidding three hearts, he jumps to four and wraps it up.

Ex-Safety Chief Says Boss Barred Tunnel Inspection

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The former chief of the state's construction safety division says his boss forbade him to investigate the 1971 Port Huron tunnel explosion that killed 22 men.

Clair Andrews, 55, Grand Rapids, also told a special House Committee Tuesday that Marshall Flordelis also ordered another employee to "get rid" of a report compiled before the explosion on the "despicable safety record" of Greenfield Construction Co., one of the contractors.

Andrews said Flordelis ordered him not to do any investigating or go into the field in 1971 after Andrews started probing department travel vouchers.

Flordelis told the panel, however, that he was following standard procedure in restricting Andrews to "8-to-5 office work." The chief oversees things but doesn't have that much direct involvement.

Andrews said he was fired in 1973 for allegedly letting his daughter try to get him information on the department through letters to the governor and the federal government.

Now a safety engineer for a Howell insurance company, Andrews also charged that:

—There were no inspections at the tunnel between October 1970 and the day of the explosion in December 1971; Flordelis said that was Andrews' direct responsibility and not his.

—Flordelis prevented him from contacting the Labor Department's Construction Safety Commission and withheld information it needed to compile rules. Flordelis denied this and said if the commission members wanted information, they knew how to get it.

—Proper ventilation to rid the tunnel of methane gas began too late and made the explosion inevitable. He said this was well-known.

Andrews said Greenfield's license could have been revoked before the explosion if the commission had learned of seven previous fatalities on Greenfield projects and had been informed of its "despicable safety record."

"I don't agree Greenfield had a despicable record," Flordelis said. He said the Greenfield file was one of 13 construction company files that were to be presented to the commission. He said only four or five were actually delivered and said he does not remember whether Greenfield was among them.

Flordelis said the explosion was not inevitable and said it is impossible to tell if a tunnel is doomed to explode. But Andrews said Flordelis doesn't have the proper scientific background to make that determination.

Flordelis said he designated Allan Harvie, his deputy director, to investigate the tunnel explosion. "He was chief of the construction safety division before Andrews was in the Department of Labor. He is a graduate engineer, a classified employee, and was Mr. Andrews' boss. I figured 'He's the most qualified man that I got on board,'" Flordelis said.

Two Michigan 'Nuke' Sites Are Proposed

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Two Michigan sites are among four along the Great Lakes listed in a federal report as primary locations for concentrations of nuclear power plants, a Northwestern University professor says.

The report came from Dr. Paul Friesema, a professor of political science, who was a member of a National Science Foundation committee considering the Nuclear Regulatory Commission report on such sites.

In an interview published Tuesday in the Grand Rapids Press, Friesema said one potential site is in southwestern Michigan between Grand Rapids and Lake Michigan. He listed the others as "probably near Minneapolis," along Lake Erie and along the southern shore of Lake Superior in Michigan's Upper Peninsula or Northern Wisconsin.

Friesema said the report, scheduled to be presented Monday to the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy, provides suggestions on broad areas that would be good for nuclear centers if they were to be built.

locating up to 40 nuclear plants upon a single large site rather than having them scattered.

But Friesema said the report concluded there are dangers in such a plan because of the "problem of concentrating environmental hazards." He also noted the report decided "there may be some advantages but not compelling ones because of the tremendous cost of transmitting electricity over long distances."

Friesema said he believed at first "there would be a major push to change licensing and put together these parks in a hurry." But he now doubts that will happen.

He did say four plants, instead of 40, may be installed upon single sites.

PAW PAW LAKE LEVEL CONTROL

$2 Million Grant Now Available

WATERVLIET — A federal grant of up to $2 million dollars is now available for a lake level control program on Paw Paw Lake, according to an Army Corps of Engineers report announced to the Watervliet township board Monday.

Watervliet and Coloma townships are eligible for a bigger grant because the area was declared a disaster area last April by the federal government.

Robert Jackson, the township's representative on the Paw Paw Lake Improvement board, reported that the board met last week with corps engineers and state Department of Natural Resources officials where the new amount for the grant was announced.

In an earlier study by the corps, the lake level control project cost was set at $1,123,000, of which the government would have provided a grant of about $1 million. With the new grant eligibility, the total cost of the program can be covered by the federal government with no costs to local residents.

Jackson told officials that the corps estimated beginning construction of a control gate on the lake would be about three years away. The corps is to start the next phase of the project which includes cost design and economic feasibility studies for the government.

In a related lake matter, Jackson reported that the Improvement board had responded to a court suit on the weed control assessment controversy and was waiting to hear from the judge for further action. Two township residents have sued the township, the improvement board and tax assessors from Watervliet and Coloma townships declaring the weed control assessment was unconstitutional and the procedure for establishing assessments did not determine benefits derived from the assessments.

Jackson said the top attorney in the country specializing in special assessment districts has been hired by the improvement board to defend it in court. The attorney is Chester Pierce of Hamtramack. Ronald Postelli, the township's local attorney, will also work on the case.

According to Lyle Woodworth and Jackson, the public act relating to the lake improvements and weed control state that any legal costs involved in appeals will be charged to those living in the special assessment district.

Fire board member Larry Strouse reported a new fire truck has been ordered and the contract was signed in December to enable the board to save on a six per cent cost increase due Jan. 1.

The new truck, with a 1,000 gallon tank, will cost about $51,000 and was ordered from Pierce Fire Apparatus Co. in Appleton, Wis. A fire truck was ordered from the same company last year but the order was later withdrawn after controversy over who could place the order. The new truck will cost about $11,000 more than a similar truck would have cost if ordered last year.

The board is expecting a federal grant to help pay for part of the truck. The township will share costs of the truck equally with the city of Watervliet.

Clerk Barbara Tyler was appointed to the fire board to replace Ernest Richcreek who died recently.

Trustee Robert Morlock announced that the township's planning commission hearing on the new township zoning ordinance will be held Tuesday, Jan. 20 at 7:30 p.m. at the high school library.

Residents of the Pokagon Heights subdivision were advised that their property owners association will have to pay legal fees in petitioning the township to accept five privately owned roads in the subdivision to the public.

A special resolution was adopted by the board citing the late Ernest Richcreek for his services to the township as township clerk for four years and as fire board member until the time of his death.

Bandits Torture Pair With Electric Gun

BLUE BELL, Pa. (AP) — The Taser electric dart gun, sold for protection against crime, was an instrument of terror for a Montgomery County couple in the hands of four masked bandits.

"The assailants used this dart gun to force the man and his wife to say where they had more money or valuable belongings," police Sgt. Joseph Stemple said Tuesday. He refused to name the man and his wife.

Stemple said a man appeared at the door of the couple's home at suppertime and identified himself as a police officer. He said the bogus cop rushed in with three other men, all wearing ski masks.

The men carried the Taser — designed by a space technology engineer inspired by the weaponry of Buck Rogers and James Bond.

"The couple was tied up with clothing, handcuffs and telephone wires," Stemple said. "Apparently, the suspects knew there was money in the house."

"While the people were tied up, one of those guys shot them with this dart gun. They were both shot twice in the stomach," Stemple said. "The darts stuck in their flesh. It's like a needle, except it gives you a shock."

He added, "It's called the Taser Public Defender and it gives you a hell of a shock. They say it immobilizes you. I know it hurts, but it doesn't kill. Both the man and the woman were treated at a local hospital and released."

RESIGNS: Bob R. Dorsey will resign as chairman and chief executive of Gulf Oil Corp., the Gulf board of directors announced early Wednesday. Dorsey's resignation comes in the wake of scandals involving a secret political slush fund. (AP Wirephoto)

The four fled with $7,000 cash, $4,000 in jewels, the man's Mercedes-Benz and two .22-caliber rifles.

Taser Systems, Inc., manufactures the $199 weapon, which it calls "the alternative to the gun." It looks like a flashlight, though in California it is officially termed a "gun" and must be registered and bear a serial number.

Canada announced Monday that it will ban the Taser effective Feb. 1. New York City has already made it a crime to carry a Taser, a decision the manufacturer is protesting.

Canadian officials said they decided to make possession of the Taser a crime after tests of the gun failed to rule out the gun's capacity to kill.

Canadian Justice Minister Ron Basford, in announcing the ban, said:

"The risk of this potentially lethal weapon falling into the hands of criminals is too great to allow it to be sold, manufactured or imported into Canada."

The Montgomery County incident is not the first in which the Taser was used to commit a crime. Last September a Taser was used to hold up a gas station attendant in Miami.

Alvin Simon, president of Taser Systems, said:

"All of our information, research and data indicate that it's nonlethal. We've been working on it since 1968 and everything bears out the fact that it's not lethal."

Simon said that although the gun has a rating of 50,000 volts at the source, it has such low amperage and wattage that its shock is relatively harmless. He said it has only three watts of power, less than in a Christmas tree bulb or an electric heart pacemaker.

Taser Systems has admitted the weapon might cause serious injury to victims with heart or respiratory problems.

A dart is fired from the gun with a fine wire attached. Once the dart sticks in the target a button is pushed to emit the charge.

New Dean Is Appointed For Seminary At Andrews

BERRIEN SPRINGS — Dr. Richard Hammill, Andrews University president, yesterday announced the appointments of Dr. Thomas Blincoe as dean of the Seventh-day Adventist Theological seminary at Andrews and of Dr. Gerhard Hasel as assistant dean. Dr. Blincoe will replace Dr. Siegfried Horn when Dr. Horn retires this spring.

Dr. Blincoe is currently associate professor of theology and assistant dean for student affairs in the Theological seminary at Andrews.

He received his Th.D. from Union Theological seminary, recommendations of the American Council on Social Work.

Cecil Webb, assistant business manager and chief accountant at Fresno Adventist academy, has been appointed to replace Arnt Krogstad as assistant manager for personnel, credit and student finance. Krogstad is now vice president for finance at Loma Linda funds, Loma Linda university, Calif.

The board has announced the retirement of two faculty members effective June, 1978. Dr. Dyre Dyresen, director of admissions and records, and Edith Davis, assistant professor of education in the university and English teacher in the academy, are retiring.

The board elected two new board members, Wayne Shepherd, youth director of the Lake Union conference of Seventh-day Adventists, and Frances W. Wernick, vice president of the General conference of Seventh-day Adventists.

Bandits Torture Pair With Electric Gun

BLUE BELL, Pa. (AP) — The Taser electric dart gun, sold for protection against crime, was an instrument of terror for a Montgomery County couple in the hands of four masked bandits.

"The assailants used this dart gun to force the man and his wife to say where they had more money or valuable belongings," police Sgt. Joseph Stemple said Tuesday. He refused to name the man and his wife.

Stemple said a man appeared at the door of the couple's home at supertime and identified himself as a police officer. He said the bogus cop rushed in with three other men, all wearing ski masks.

The men carried the Taser — designed by a space technology engineer inspired by the weaponry of Buck Rogers and James Bond.

"The couple was tied up with clothing, handcuffs and telephone wires," Stemple said. "Apparently, the suspects knew there was money in the house."

"While the people were tied up, one of these guys shot them with this dart gun. They were both shot twice in the stomach," Stemple said. "The darts stuck in their flesh. It's like a needle, except it gives you a shock."

He added, "It's called the Taser Public Defender and it gives you a hell of a shock. They say it immobilizes you. I know it hurts, but it doesn't kill. Both the man and the woman were treated at a local hospital and released."

The four fled with $7,000 cash, $4,000 in jewels, the man's Mercedes-Benz and two .22-caliber rifles.

Taser Systems, Inc., manufactures the $199 weapon, which it calls "the alternative to the gun." It looks like a flashlight, though in California it is officially termed a "gun" and must be registered and bear a serial number.

Russians Supported By Guyana

MIAMI (AP) — The South American government of Guyana has recognized the Soviet-backed faction in the Angolan civil war and is sending sugar, rice and other foodstuffs to show its support, Radio Havana says.

"We feel ourselves obligated to help the patriotic forces of Angola which are defending their independence and fight against the South African racists," Radio Havana, monitored late Tuesday in Miami, quoted Prime Minister Forbes Burnham of Guyana as saying.

Forbes said Guyana "is loyal to the policy of helping the liberation movements," the broadcast said.

Hypertension Awareness Program Billed March 24

University of Michigan Alumnae club of Benton Harbor and St. Joseph will conduct a community program on the dangers of high blood pressure Wednesday, March 24, at Memorial hospital's Forum, St. Joseph.

The program which will be presented in cooperation with the Berrien County Health department and with the endorsement of the Berrien County Medical society, aims to create a higher level of community awareness about the problems associated with hypertension (high blood pressure); according to Mrs. Richard Koch, president of the local U-M club.

She explains that high blood pressure is a serious problem throughout the nation.

"It has been estimated that there are 23 million people in the United States with hypertension," she says. "Using this rate, Berrien county probably has approximately 18,000 residents with high blood pressure, most of whom do not know it."

Hypertension leads to such serious disorders as heart attacks, strokes, and kidney disease. It is the primary cause of 60,000 deaths and a contributing factor in the 1,500,000 heart attacks and strokes that occur each year in the United States. Males are more susceptible than females and blacks have three times the incidence of hypertension as whites. It is the most common cause of death among blacks.

Mrs. Koch also said that hypertension strikes the young as well as the old.

Some of the factors leading to hypertension are stress, overweight, smoking, and heredity.

A major problem with treating hypertension is that it usually has no symptoms, Mrs. Koch points out, stressing the importance of having the blood pressure checked each year.

State Utility Customers Overcharged?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Michigan utility customers may have been overcharged millions of dollars during the past two years because of automatic fuel adjustment clauses, according to a member of the state's Public Service Commission.

William Ralls, the PSC's lone Democrat, said Tuesday neither the commission nor the utilities can determine whether or not consumers have paid too much for electricity and natural gas.

Addressing a meeting of the National Consumer Information Center, Ralls said utilities have received $650 million in added charges under adjustment clauses that allow automatic rate increases when fuel costs rise.

"The haphazard review of these costs shows a total disregard for public responsibility and accountability," Ralls said.

He said costs totaling millions of dollars resulted from unaudited charges and poorly designed automatic clauses. Far more scrutiny is given rate hike requests that total much less in consumer costs, he said.

Ralls said there must be stricter state supervision of the fuel adjustment clauses "that are permitting utilities to automatically add hundreds of millions of dollars to the bills of their customers."

He called for a single, auditable fuel clause for all companies; restrictions of what costs can be included in the clauses; and PSC review of all fuel contracts that result in higher costs to customers.

Ralls also called for periodic auditing of fuel purchased and consumed by utilities.

Federation Gets New Director

CHICAGO — Richard Robbins has been named executive director of the Lake Michigan federation, one of the strongest regional environmental organizations in the Great Lakes area.

Robbins, deputy director and general counsel of the federation for the past year, replaces Lee Botts, who resigned to take a position with the Region V office of the U.S. Environmental Protection agency as inter-governmental and congressional liaison assistant.

Robbins has directed legal research on implementation of solar energy for the American Bar association and designed and directed the federation's public participation program for the Illinois coastal zone management program.

Currently he is organizing the energy conservation training institute to be held March 17-20.

Election Winner

Democrat James DeSana won the special election Tuesday for the 11th state senate district seat. DeSana, 45, who won by a two-to-one margin, is a Wayne County Commissioner. He received 10,722 votes. His Republican opponent, Dewitt Henry, Grosse Ile Township supervisor, received 5,378 votes. DeSana will replace the late Sen. John McCauley, who died last October. The 11th district covers 10 downriver Detroit areas and all of Monroe County.

Fleeing Suspect Is Killed

COMMERCE LAKE, Mich. (AP) — A 28-year-old man fleeing the scene of an attempted burglary was shot to death early Tuesday by an Oakland County deputy, officials said. Police said Larry Lower of Farmington Hills was shot once in the neck by Deputy Richard Johnson in a swampy area near here. Officials are seeking a second man who escaped during the chase. Oakland County Sheriff Johannes Spreen said officers were responding to a burglary alarm in Commerce Township.

Bridgman Board Wants Guidelines For Tax Breaks

BRIDGMAN — The Bridgman school board has urged the city commission to adopt specific criteria and guidelines on which to base approval for industrial rehabilitation or development tax exemptions. The plea for standards came out of a Monday night school board meeting at which the school board decided not to take a stand on a city commission plan to grant Weldun Tool and Engineering company a property tax exemption on the firm's $1 million plant addition now under construction.

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

DURING THE Revolution the British war machinery was centered in London, where the king acted as a kind of spiritual leader for his cabinet of ministers. Military preparations became a collective enterprise of the cabinet. After plans were concluded, it was then the responsibility of the secretary of state for the American Department to follow through on them. Since divided authorities and overlapping jurisdictions characterized government in Hanoverian England, it was no easy matter to conduct a war across the Atlantic. The World Almanac notes.

State Files Race Bias Charges

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state has filed racial discrimination charges against the Jackson Police Department, Muskegon General Hospital and the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. at Jackson.

The state Civil Rights Department formally charged the defendants with violating the state Fair Employment Practices Act by discharging workers because of race. Formal hearings into the allegations will be conducted at a later date.

All defendants denied the accusations. The state filed formal charges after Civil Rights Department investigations produced evidence that complaints appear unjustified.

The accusation against the Jackson Police Department came on a complaint by Willie B. Robertson Jr. of Jackson, a black who worked as a patrolman from January 1970, until his dismissal Feb. 9, 1971.

Robertson claimed his dismissal was racially motivated and that he was subjected to unfair working conditions because of his race. However, the police contend he was fired for violating civil service rules.

Muskegon General Hospital was charged on a complaint by Willie Mae Howell, a black woman laboratory technician, who said she was fired because of her race. She also contended she was treated differently than white employees in similar jobs.

Goodyear of Jackson was charged as the result of a complaint by Marion Johnson of Jackson, a black, who worked for the company from March 3 until March 14, 1972. An "extremist" tender-laydown worker, Johnson claimed race was a factor in his dismissal.

School officials have voiced concern that further tax exemptions could take away property taxes that schools use for operating funds.

Dr. David Lechner, Bridgman school superintendent, said school attorneys reported the school can act in an "advisory capacity only" in the applications by business firms for tax exemptions.

Attorneys reported the city and state have final approval authority, he said.

He added that the school board encourages the expansion of business and industry in the state, and in the Bridgman school district, but feels that guidelines in the decision-making process are necessary.

The city commission is to meet Monday, Jan. 19, to decide whether to create an industrial development district for Weldun's $1 million plant addition now under construction.

City approval could lead to approval by the state tax commission that would exempt the addition from half the millage rate, and provide Weldun with an annual tax savings of at least $10,000 yearly for the next 12 years.

Included in that $10,000 is some $4,127 in school taxes.

The city commission has already granted a similar tax exemption to the new Gast Manufacturing plant going up in Bridgman.

Lechner said the board, at its Monday night meeting, reviewed the state law on the exemptions, a report from school attorneys and reached a consensus not to take a political stand on the Weldun proposal.

Lechner said the board's primary reservation is that under present state law, a city has the sole local right to give tax exemptions that also affect operating revenues of school districts.

He emphasized, however, that in the Gast and Weldun proposals, the city commission "has been very cooperative in attempting to involve the school board" in tax exemption studies.

The board, also at its Monday night meeting, heard a report that elementary math teachers favor a transition leading from the one-time, nationally acclaimed New Math in favor of more traditional math instruction.

Lechner and Elementary Principal Mrs. Vickie Markavitch said staff members have concluded, after eight months of research, that traditional math instruction is as good, if not better, than New Math.

The board announced that its April meeting will be on the first Monday night of the month and that its Feb. 9 meeting will be interrupted so that board members can watch the Miss Bridgman Blossom Queen contest to be held at the school that night.

The meeting will resume after the contest is over, school officials said.

DON'T MISS THURSDAY 10 A.M. to 9 P.M. - THE FINAL WIND-UP

Bridgman Board Wants Guidelines For Tax Breaks

BRIDGMAN — The Bridgman school board has urged the city commission to adopt specific criteria and guidelines on which to base approval for industrial rehabilitation or development tax exemptions. The plea for standards came out of a Monday night school board meeting at which the school board decided not to take a stand on a city commission plan to grant Weldun Tool and Engineering company a property tax exemption on the firm's $1 million plant addition now under construction.

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

DURING THE Revolution the British war machinery was centered in London, where the king acted as a kind of spiritual leader for his cabinet of ministers. Military preparations became a collective enterprise of the cabinet. After plans were concluded, it was then the responsibility of the secretary of state for the American Department to follow through on them. Since divided authorities and overlapping jurisdictions characterized government in Hanoverian England, it was no easy matter to conduct a war across the Atlantic. The World Almanac notes.

State Files Race Bias Charges

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state has filed racial discrimination charges against the Jackson Police Department, Muskegon General Hospital and the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. at Jackson.

The state Civil Rights Department formally charged the defendants with violating the state Fair Employment Practices Act by discharging workers because of race. Formal hearings into the allegations will be conducted at a later date.

All defendants denied the accusations. The state filed formal charges after Civil Rights Department investigations produced evidence that complaints appear unjustly appear justified.

The accusation against the Jackson Police Department came on a complaint by Willie B. Robertson Jr. of Jackson, a black who worked as a patrolman from January 1970, until his dismissal Feb. 9, 1971.

Robertson claimed his dismissal was racially motivated and that he was subjected to unfair working conditions because of his race. However, the police contend he was fired for violating civil service rules.

Muskegon General Hospital was charged on a complaint by Willie Mae Howell, a black woman laboratory technician, who said she was fired because of her race. She also contended she was treated differently than white employees in similar jobs.

Goodyear of Jackson was charged as the result of a complaint by Marion Johnson of Jackson, a black, who worked for the company from March 3 until March 14, 1972. An "extremist" tender-laydown worker, Johnson claimed race was a factor in his dismissal.

School officials have voiced concern that further tax exemptions could take away property taxes that schools use for operating funds.

Dr. David Lechner, Bridgman school superintendent, said school attorneys reported the school can act in an "advisory capacity only" in the applications by business firms for tax exemptions.

Attorneys reported the city and state have final approval authority, he said.

He added that the school board encourages the expansion of business and industry in the state, and in the Bridgman school district, but feels that guidelines in the decision-making process are necessary.

The city commission is to meet Monday, Jan. 19, to decide whether to create an industrial development district for Weldun's $1 million plant addition now under construction.

City approval could lead to approval by the state tax commission that would exempt the addition from half the millage rate and provide Weldun with an annual tax savings of at least $10,000 yearly for the next 12 years.

Included in that $10,000 is some $4,027 in school taxes.

The city commission has already granted a similar tax exemption to the new Gast Manufacturing plant going up in Bridgman.

Lechner said the board, at its Monday night meeting, reviewed the state law on the exemptions, a report from school attorneys and reached a consensus not to take a political stand on the Weldun proposal.

Lechner said the board's primary reservation is that under present state law, a city has the sole local right to give tax exemptions that also affect operating revenues of school districts.

He emphasized, however, that in the Gast and Weldun proposals, the city commission "has been very cooperative in attempting to involve the school board" in tax exemption studies.

The board, also at its Monday night meeting, heard a report that elementary math teachers favor a transition leading from the one-time, nationally acclaimed New Math in favor of more traditional math instruction.

Lechner and Elementary Principal Mrs. Vickie Markavitch said staff members have concluded, after eight months of research, that traditional math instruction is as good, if not better, than New Math.

The board announced that its April meeting will be on the first Monday night of the month and that its Feb. 9 meeting will be interrupted so that board members can watch the Miss Bridgman Blossom Queen contest to be held at the school that night.

The meeting will resume after the contest is over, school officials said.

'Bionic Woman' To Make Her Debut

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "The Bionic Woman," a spinoff of "The Six Million Dollar Man," premieres on ABC-TV tonight. It stars Lindsay Wagner, a very appealing actress, as Jamie Sommers, a bionic woman.

Jamie has one super-strong arm and super-strong legs. She didn't enter this world with them. They're sophisticated, realistic-looking, electro-mechanical replacements for limbs she lost in a skydiving mishap.

She's a former tennis pro who grew up in Ojai, Calif., with Col. Steve Austin, the six-million-dollar man who also has bionic limbs which stem from injuries he suffered while test-flying a spacecraft.

In one scene in tonight's show, Jamie, newly hired as a teacher at a school for the children of Air Force personnel, is assigned a rowdy class of youngsters other teachers call "The Dirty Dozen."

They really give her a rough time. And while watching this show at an advance screening, I am worrying that she'll get mad, forget the power of her super-arm and belt a kid through a wall.

This might cause serious injury and lead to yet another spinoff called "The Bionic Urchin." Thankfully, it doesn't happen.

Tonight's show, devoted to Jamie's recovery from the emotional trauma of her skydiving accident, is preceded by flashback shots of her and Steve bounding about in a mission assigned them by the Office of Scientific Investigation, a sort of CIA operation for whom he works.

OSI's dedicated scientists, who gave each of them their new limbs (Steve also got a super-powerful eye, while Miss Jamie got a super-powerful ear), are helping her return to normal life.

She can recall that her parents were killed in an auto accident, that Steve's parents raised her, that she has a degree in education and that she once beat Billy Jean King in a championship match.

But the closer her memories comes to the skydiving accident — Steve was with her at the time — the harder it is for her to recall what happened. She doesn't even remember they were to be married.

I know her problem in a way. I'm having trouble remembering the plot of tonight's show. But I think she gratefully promises to work for OSI if it needs her. Then she sets out for Ojai to attempt a normal life and live at the ranch owned by Steve's parents.

Twenty-Six From Area Granted SMC Fall Degrees

DOWAGIAC — Twenty-six area residents have been awarded associate degrees or certificates following completion of graduation requirements at Southwestern Michigan college this fall semester.

According to the school, the students were:

Berrien Springs — Lauretta Hainey.

Buchanan — Thomas Leidy, Cassopolis — Ronald Brown, Catherine Eaton, Candace Kelter, Susan Myers, Jeanette Newton and Zully Westrate.

Decatur — Daniel Shroyer.

Dowagiac — Billie Jean Hippensteel, Kenneth Bouldrey, Judith Jordan, Bonielle Nance, Sally Natharius, Hommel Nickert, Margaret Patzman, Merlin Selent and Rose Slimmons.

Niles — Edward Wurz, Christine Farray, Thomas Gillespie, Jack Perham, Jr., Gary Bixler, Alice Domline, Susan Flor and Penne Kelley.

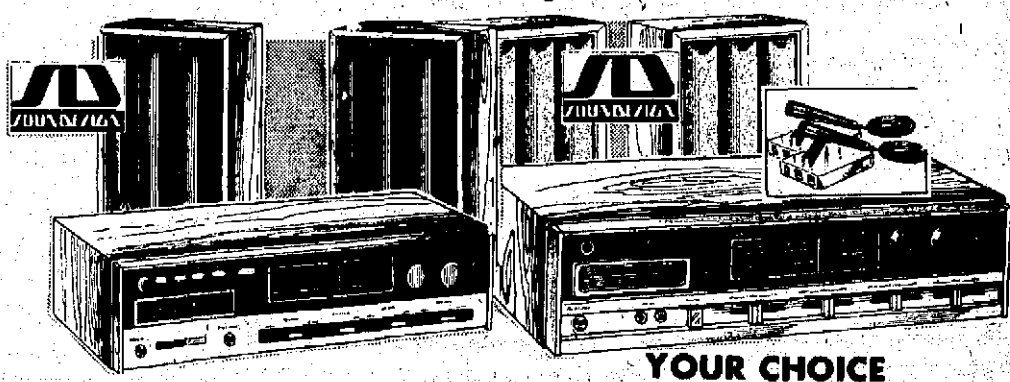

Although there was no graduation ceremony, the fall graduates can participate in the next spring ceremony, according to school officials.

Move To Block Funds For Cass Medical Facility Fails

CASSPOLIS — An attempt to withhold the $20,000 appropriation for the Cass County Medical Care facility for 1976 was rejected by the Cass county board of commissioners yesterday in a 6 to 5 vote.

The defeated motion, offered by Commissioner Charles Sarabyn of Dowagiac, was the latest in a series of attempts to obtain an itemized, balanced 1976 budget for the facility.

Voting with Sarabyn to withhold the allocation were Commissioners Mrs. Blanche Trout, Union; Harold Harp, Edwardsburg; Charles Ritter, Dowagiac; and Steve Toth, Edwardsburg.

Voting against the motion were Rexford Clark, Dowagiac; Donald Martin, Niles; Robert Powers, Marcellus; Kenneth Fox, Cassopolis; Mrs. Marjorie Federowski, Vandalia; and Commission Chairman Johnnie Rodebush, Niles.

Those who voted to reject Sarabyn's motion said withholding the $20,000 might mean the facility would not be able to meet its payroll, and that $5,000 of the appropriation had already been forwarded to the facility.

On two previous occasions, in December and again earlier this month, the social services board has been asked to submit an itemized, balanced budget for the facility in 1976. So far, only a budget lacking details requested by the board has been presented. It shows a $103,778 operating deficit.

In other areas, the board approved pay raises for nine elected officials and 41 county clerical workers, effective Jan. 1, 1976, and for itself, effective Jan. 1, 1977.

Pay raises for the elected officials ranged from $190 to $1,225. Sarabyn said the raises were approved after a study was made to determine the average salary of the same offices in other counties of Cass' size.

Supplemental salary increases were approved for both circuit and district court judges. Circuit court Judge James E. Hoff, paid $26,500 by the state in 1976, had his county supplement raised from $9,800 to $11,500.

District court Judge Steg Lignell, paid $23,800 by the state, had his supplement increased from $2,600 to $3,540.

Salaries for the remaining offices, with last year's salaries in parentheses, were: probate court judge, $23,780 ($22,900); clerk, $14,100 ($13,300); register of deeds, $11,425 ($10,200); treasurer, $11,550 ($10,200); sheriff, $14,100 ($13,300); prosecutor, $19,950 ($19,200); and drain commissioner, $3,790 ($3,600).

The 41 county clerical workers, represented by Local 214 of the Teamsters International union, will receive a 5.4 per cent pay raise.

approach the legislature started using last year should continue. This approach insists that no state agency should expect automatic funding but should start from zero and see where cuts can be made before submitting budget requests.

Crim also said he will propose making the third Monday in January a state holiday commemorating the birthday of the late Martin Luther King Jr.

Crim's specific proposals called for:

- Giving "top priority" to a welfare reform measure now pending in the legislature. He said he will ask Gov. William Milliken to have his staff draw up specific suggestions for Congress to enact "a new and complete national income maintenance program."
- A mass transportation bond issue on November's ballot. "It's passage is the only way to fully develop a mass transit system that corrects what has already become a serious economic as well as environmental handicap," Crim said.
- Quick enactment of a deceptive trade practices bill which is now in a legislative conference committee.
- Passage of legislation requiring the insurance industry to provide equal benefits to women.
- A broad state health care policy addressing the needs of the elderly.
- Encouraging enforcement of civil rights laws by "generous consideration of the civil rights enforcement budget."

- Enactment of an open meetings bill.
- A package of legislation on criminal violence, including decriminalization of some victimless crimes. "Decriminalizing marijuana in cases of simple possession can free police for action against the far more serious felonies," Crim said. A bill to do that is pending in the House.
- A study into expanding the public school system to include regular programs for preschoolers. Crim said more than a third of today's mothers with pre-school children have jobs outside the home. He said public schools could "meet a clear and growing need, rather than continue a proliferation of day-care services that are non-instructional in nature."
- Enactment of a state land use policy to provide "that essential alliance" between development, preservation of "irreplaceable areas," and input from local interests. A bill is now pending in the House.
- Crim has been strict about spending by House members. He said he will go further this session and ask the House to publish quarterly reports in the House Journal that are "detailed accurate accounts of all out-of-state travel expenditures by House members and staff."
- He also urged judicial review of the state's political ethics law to guarantee "its constitutionality. The legislature should review it too, he said, to make sure its financial disclosure sections do not discourage people from entering government.

Ex-Dowagiac Man's Services Thursday

DOWAGIAC — Funeral services for Carl D. Saltzman Jr., 24, a former Dowagiac resident, killed last Saturday night in a two-car accident, south of Battle Creek, will be held at 3 p.m. Thursday in the Church of Nazarene, Sturgis. Saltzman, was one of four persons killed in the near head-on collision on M-66, two miles south of Battle Creek, according to state police at the Battle Creek post. His home was in Sturgis.

Also killed as a result of the accident were Diane Lynn Timar, 22, and Glen Timar, 5, both of Sturgis, and the lone driver of the other vehicle Anthony L. Bolduc, 32, East Lenoir. Police said Saltzman was a passenger in the auto driven by Mrs. Timar, which was headed south on M-66 when the 10:05 p.m. accident occurred.

Saltzman's wife, Linda, 21, and their two children, Dennis, 4, and Karla, 1, also passengers in the Timar auto, were hospitalized as a result of the accident.

Saltzman and Mrs. Timar were pronounced dead at the scene, according to police. Bolduc died a short time later at Lella Post hospital, Battle Creek, and Glen Timar died at University hospital, Ann Arbor.

Labor Secretary Dunlop Quitting Despite Ford Plea

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Labor John T. Dunlop is resigning despite a last-minute plea from President Ford to stay on the job.

Dunlop, who informed the President of his decision at a private White House meeting Tuesday, was to make a formal announcement today of his resignation.

Dunlop maintains that his position with organized labor was unworkable in the aftermath of Ford's veto of the controversial common-site picketing bill.

During the 35-minute White House session requested by Dunlop, the President tried unsuccessfully to talk him out of quitting, according to informed sources. However, Dunlop agreed to remain in the Cabinet until January 31, when he is expected to return to his teaching post at Harvard University.

The most frequently mentioned choice to succeed him is W.J. Usery Jr., director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, who is highly regarded by both labor and management.

Dunlop's resignation came as no surprise. He had been reassessing his position since Ford announced Dec. 22 that he would veto the bill that would have broadened picketing rights at construction sites. The bill has been sought by organized labor since the Truman administration.

White House officials had described Ford as anxious to avoid any further shakeups in his administration. On Nov. 2, he fired Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger and Central Intelligence Director William E. Colby while stripping Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger of his post of director of the National Security Council.

Ford was warned before the veto that it could cost him the services of Dunlop, who has specialized in trying to improve labor-management practices in the construction industry. Dunlop, who had sponsored the bill, expected Ford to sign it based on earlier statements by the President that he favored the principle of the legislation.

The bill would have allowed unions to picket an entire construction site even though its dispute was with only one subcontractor. It also included a provision — strongly backed by Dunlop as a way of moderating the size of wage settlements — to coordinate the now-fragmented collective bargaining process in the construction industry.

expected to resume by the 11 a.m. (light today).

School closings today were as follows:

Berrien county — Buchanan, Coloma, Eau Claire, Niles, Galien, Watervliet, River, Riverside, St. Mary's Catholic in Niles, St. Joseph's Catholic in Watervliet, Grace Lutheran in Eau Claire, Niles Seventh Day Adventist, Edith B. Garrett Seventh Day Adventist in Benton Harbor, Faith Lutheran in Coloma, Grace Lutheran in Watervliet, Eau Claire Seventh Day Adventist.

Van Buren county — Bangor, Bloomingdale, Decatur, Covert, Hartford, Hartford Seventh Day Adventist, Lawrence, South Haven, and Arlington.

Cass county — Cassopolis, Dowagiac, Edwardsburg and Marcellus.

Two Coast Guard cutters, the Raritan from Ludington and West Wind from Milwaukee, were called to free two fishing tugs trapped in ice off Saugatuck.

The Shirley B., a 45-foot fishing tug from Saugatuck was disabled in Lake Michigan by a clutch problem and became trapped in the ice about two miles from Saugatuck. The Coast Guard said a sister tug, the J.R. Chambers, went to the rescue but also got tied up in the ice. The two Coast Guard cutters arrived on the scene last night.

The National Weather Service blamed the snowfall on a widespread storm spawned by a low pressure system that developed over Oklahoma on Monday night and intensified as it moved over the Ohio valley.

The heavy snowfall, which hit northern Illinois and southern Michigan, occurred along the northern edge of the storm system.

Traffic snarls were common all across southern Michigan during the late afternoon and early evening. Three highway deaths, including the one at Olsaga, were attributed to weather-caused accidents.

Move To Block Funds For Cass Medical Facility Fails

CASSPOLIS — An attempt to withhold the $20,000 appropriation for the Cass County Medical Care facility for 1976 was rejected by the Cass county board of commissioners yesterday in a 6 to 5 vote.

The defeated motion, offered by Commissioner Charles Sarabyn of Dowagiac, was the latest in a series of attempts to obtain an itemized, balanced 1976 budget for the facility.

Voting with Sarabyn to withhold the allocation were Commissioners Mrs. Blanche Trout, Union; Harold Harp, Edwardsburg; Charles Ritter, Dowagiac; and Steve Toth, Edwardsburg.

Voting against the motion were Rexford Clark, Dowagiac; Donald Marlin, Niles; Robert Powers, Marcellus; Kenneth Fox, Cassopolis; Mrs. Marjorie Federowski, Vandalia; and Commission Chairman Johnie Rodebush, Niles.

Those who voted to reject Sarabyn's motion said withholding the $20,000 might mean the facility would not be able to meet its payroll, and that $5,000 of the appropriation had already been forwarded to the facility.

On two previous occasions, in December and again earlier this month, the social services board has been asked to submit an itemized, balanced budget for the facility in 1976. So far, only a budget lacking details requested by the board has been presented. It shows a $103,778 operating deficit.

In other areas, the board approved pay raises for nine elected officials and 41 county clerical workers, effective Jan. 1, 1976, and for itself, effective Jan. 1, 1977.

Pay raises for the elected officials ranged from $190 to $1,225. Sarabyn said the raises were approved after a study was made to determine the average salary of the same offices in other counties of Cass' size.

treasurer, $11,550 ($10,200); sheriff, $14,100 ($13,300); prosecutor, $19,950 ($19,200); and drain commissioner, $3,790 ($3,600).

The 41 county clerical workers, represented by Local 214 of the Teamsters International union, will receive a 5.4 per cent pay raise.

Commissioners' salaries will increase from $1,800 to $2,400 in 1977, while the chairman of the board will receive a $500 pay hike from $2,400 to $2,900 at the same time.

The board said it would oppose establishment of a proposed migrant rest center in Berrien county. The proposed center would be supported by a $300,000 federal grant.

Police said the accident remains under investigation, as the accident occurred during a snowstorm and M-66 was snow covered and slippery.

Mr. Saltzman was born Feb. 24, 1951 in Dowagiac and moved from Dowagiac in 1970. He was employed by Olson Bodies Inc., in Sturgis. He attended Dowagiac high school and was a member of the Moose and Eagles lodges of Sturgis.

Surviving in addition to his widow and his two children, all at home, are his mother, Mrs. Mary Saltzman, Dowagiac; his father and stepmother, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Saltzman Sr., Sturgis; and five sisters, Mrs. Robert (Carol) Rudloff and Mrs. Thomas (Joan) Nelson, both of Berrien Springs; Mrs. Ferda Walkerson, Betty and Wanda Saltzman, all of Dowagiac, and a brother, John, of Chicago, Ill.

Burial will be in Oak Lawn Mausoleum, Sturgis. Friends may call at the Fogleson funeral home, Sturgis.

received telephone calls demanding ransom and giving directions for dropping it off. The first two delivery efforts were aborted, officers said, and may have been simply ploys by the kidnaper to make sure police were not watching.

Marter dropped off the package of money at a prearranged spot on Interstate 10 Tuesday morning. Necaise said officers saw the money picked up, gave chase but lost sight of the speeding auto, which was later found abandoned in Gulfport.

The hours dragged after the ransom drop. An extensive police dragnet was clamped around Gulfport. Highwayways were choked with roadblocks, with police peering into each vehicle before letting it pass.

There had been reports early in the day that police were searching for at least two persons, but Necaise refused to say Tuesday night whether additional suspects were being sought.

"I don't want to go into anything involving evidence," he said.

A Benton Harbor man was stabbed to death Tuesday with what city police believe was a screwdriver and a warrant is being sought today for an Illinois man.

Dead is Tolley Jones, Jr., 28, of 141 Oden street. He is the city's first homicide victim of 1976. Last year the city recorded one homicide.

Det. Sgt. Sam Watson said Jones was found unconscious on the front porch of his home shortly after 6:30 p.m. He was pronounced dead at Mercy hospital at 7:07 p.m. He was reportedly stabbed three times in the back, once in the neck and once in the heart.

Watson indicated that police were called to another home on Oden street on a report of unknown trouble at 6:33 p.m. The stabbing, Watson reported, apparently stemmed from an argument with another man. The weapon was not recovered, police indicated.

Labor Secretary Dunlop Quitting Despite Ford Plea

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Labor John T. Dunlop is resigning despite a last-minute plea from President Ford to stay on the job.

Dunlop, who informed the President of his decision at a private White House meeting Tuesday, was to make a formal announcement today of his resignation.

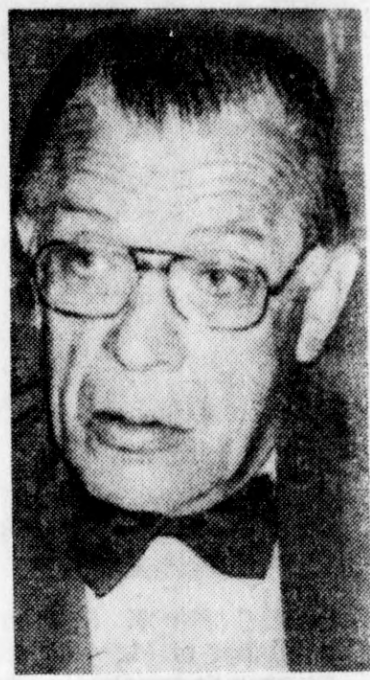

Dunlop maintains that his position with organized labor was unworkable in the aftermath of Ford's veto of the controversial common-site picketing bill.

During the 35-minute White House session requested by Dunlop, the President tried unsuccessfully to talk him out of quitting, according to informed sources. However, Dunlop agreed to remain in the Cabinet until January 31, when he is expected to return to his teaching post at Harvard University.

The most frequently mentioned choice to succeed him is W.J. Usery Jr., director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, who is highly regarded by both labor and management.

Dunlop's resignation came as no surprise. He had been reassessing his position since Ford announced Dec. 22 that he would veto the bill that would have broadened picketing rights at construction sites. The bill has been sought by organized labor since the Truman administration.

White House officials had described Ford as anxious to avoid any further shakeups in his administration. On Nov. 2, he fired Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger and Central Intelligence Director William E. Colby while strip-

Ford was warned before the veto that it could cost him the services of Dunlop, who has specialized in trying to improve labor-management practices in the construction industry. Dunlop, who had sponsored the bill, expected Ford to sign it based on earlier statements by the President that he favored the principle of the legislation.

The bill would have allowed unions to picket an entire construction site even though its dispute was with only one subcontractor. It also included a provision — strongly backed by Dunlop as a way of moderating the size of wage settlements — to coordinate the now-fragmented collective bargaining process in the construction industry.

Area Digs Out Of Heavy Snow expected to resume with the 11 a.m. flight today.

School closings today were as follows:

ton Harbor, Faith Lutheran in Coloma, Grace Lutheran in Watervliet, Eau Claire Seventh Day Adventist.

Van Buren county — Bangor, Bloomingdale, Decatur, Covert, Hartford, Hartford Seventh Day Adventist, Lawrence, South Haven, and Arlington.

Cass county — Cassopolis, Dowagiac, Edwardsburg and Marcellus.

Two Coast Guard cutters, the Raritan from Ludington and West Wind from Milwaukee, were called to free two fishing tugs trapped in ice off Saugatuck.

The Shirley B., a 45-foot fishing tug from Saugatuck was disabled in Lake Michigan by a clutch problem and became trapped in the ice about two miles from Saugatuck. The Coast Guard said a sister tug, the J.R. Chambers, went to the rescue but also got tied up in the ice. The two Coast Guard cutters arrived on the scene last night.

The National Weather Service blamed the snowfall on a widespread storm spawned by a low pressure system that developed over Oklahoma on Monday night and intensified as it moved over the Ohio valley.

The heavy snowfall, which hit northern Illinois and southern Michigan, occurred along the northern edge of the storm system.

Traffic snarls were common all across southern Michigan during the late afternoon and early evening. Three highway deaths, including the one at Otsego, were attributed to weather-caused accidents.

Spiderman Outselling Superman Comic Book Sales Soar

By STEPHEN FOX
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ant-Man is fuming. Not far away, Loki, God of Evil, is about to destroy an entire city and still he waits in his rocket car for the Wasp, his girlfriend.

"I don't know why you have to powder your nose every time we have a mission," Antman snaps as they finally speed away to defeat Loki.

In case you haven't guessed, Antman, Loki and the Wasp are comic book characters, part of a stable belonging to Marvel Comics, the world's largest seller of comic books.

Comic books are big business. More than 200 million are sold in the United States each year at prices ranging from 25 cents for a single issue to $1.50 for multi-story editions. Comic book conventions attract thousands of collectors each year, and first editions of some comics sell for thousands of dollars.

Marvel publisher Stan Lee, whose Spiderman character has overtaken Superman as the biggest selling superhero, says the human qualities of his protagonists endear them to readers. Lee, who started in comics in 1938, cites Spiderman as an example.

"People can relate to him because he's so human. He means well but things go wrong. He's fighting a villain and his costume tears. He once was on the Ed Sullivan show and made a thousand dollars performing, but then realized he couldn't cash the check because he didn't have an account in the name of Spiderman and couldn't reveal his true identity."

Lee said the comic book craze began in 1961, when he was turning out such classics as "X-Men," the "Creature Who Swallowed the Earth" and "Thorngor," the "Anti-Social Alien." Lee created a squad of superheroes called "The Fantastic Four" and sales skyrocketed.

"The Fantastic Four heralded a new style of costumed superheroes — heroes plagued with the problems that torment us all: money worries, romantic hangups, feelings of inadequacy, jealousy, vanity and fear," said Lee.

Today, Marvel sells more than 75 million comics annually, with the antics of Spiderman, The Fantastic Four and Thor reprinted in 30 languages. Next is D.C. comics, with sales of about 45 million, much of it from Superman, and Archie Comics, purveyors of Archie, Jughead and other perennial adolescents.

Marvel has a permanent staff of about 40 people in its New York office, but uses scores of freelancers to turn out its 80 different characters. A single comic book takes about a month to complete, Lee said. An Illinois printing company produces virtually all of the comic industry's output.

U.S. Supreme Court Fired LMC Teachers' Last Hope

By JERRY KRIEGER
Farin-Features Editor

Efforts of the faculty fired by Lake Michigan college in 1973 to win their jobs back via the courts have dwindled to a last single hope.

The Michigan Supreme court has just declined to hear an appeal of an unfair labor practice complaint of the LMC Federation of Teachers.

This left a petition for a writ of certiorari currently before the U.S. Supreme court as the union's last hope. The petition asks the highest federal court to hear an appeal of a faculty claim that the teachers' constitutional rights were violated by being fired without prior administrative hearings. The top federal court can grant the writ and hear the appeal or turn it down.

Michigan Supreme court justices turned down an appeal of the unfair labor practices charge in an order dated Jan. 9 and received here Tuesday.

The top state court said only that the appellants had "failed to persuade the court that the questions presented should be reviewed."

The faculty charge of unfair labor practices during contract negotiations for the 1972-73 school year was successively denied by a hearing officer of the Michigan Employment Relations commission (MERC), by the full MERC panel, and by the Michigan Appeals court. The Supreme court turned down the union's appeal from the appellate court decision.

Most of the 60-member faculty went out on strike on Feb. 15, 1973, after negotiations for a teaching contract had been long stalemated. The LMC board of trustees ordered the instructors to return to the classrooms, then on March 6, 1973, fired some 55 teachers who did not return.

The drawn-out legal battle that has been carried all the way to the top in both the state and federal court systems ensued.

South Haven Plans Repairs At Airport

By LARRY MACINTYRE
Staff Writer

SOUTH HAVEN — South Haven's municipal airport — abandoned by some pilots for safety reasons — is in line for a variety of improvements that officials hope will ultimately lead to greater use of the airport in future years.

The most pressing needs involve eliminating safety hazards, according to Albert Pierce, South Haven city manager. Projects aimed at eliminating these hazards are now underway, he said.

But the city is looking even further into the future of the airport. Pierce said a 20-year airport master plan will be unveiled at a meeting for South Haven area officials Thursday.

It will outline proposals for future expansion and improvements that Pierce said he hopes will result in the airport becoming "a vital transportation link to South Haven, Covert and Bangor."

Pierce said in recent years use of the airport has declined because of deteriorating conditions.

In a move to halt the deterioration, the city has scheduled for next summer a $50,000 repaving project for the airport's single paved runway which pilots say is now full of potholes, particularly on the northeast end. The entire runway will also be sealed during the project which is being jointly financed by the city and state.

Pierce said the city is also purchasing easements from neighboring property owners which will give the city the right to permanently remove trees that are presently obstructing the glide path to the paved runway.

It was the combination of trees and potholes that led Canonic Construction company of South Haven to move its two-engine airplanes to the Twin Cities' Ross airport, according to spokesmen at the firm.

One pilot said the trees do not pose much of a hazard for single engine planes, most of which require a much shorter distance for takeoff and landing. He said if a twin-engine plane lost an engine while taking off from the 3,485-foot runway, there would not be enough room to stop before hitting the trees. "The airport needs at least a 500-foot overrun on the end of the runway," he said.

Ray Holden, president of Canonic Construction, said the company will move its planes back to South Haven after the immediate improvements are made and with the provision that the overall plan for the airport calls for additional work.

"We'd like to see a first-class community airport, and we'll support that whatever way we can," Holden said. In recent years, the firm has financed three different runway extension projects at the airport so that it could use its planes there. Holden said he estimated his firm has invested over $15,000 in improvements at the airport.

Six months ago, the South Haven city council hired a Minneapolis firm specializing in airport planning to prepare a 20-year master plan for improvements and expansion at the airport.

On Thursday, the council will get its first glimpse of the $29,882 plan being prepared by the firm of R. Dixon Speas Associates, aviation consultants.

Pierce said he has invited representatives from Bangor and the townships of South Haven, Casco, Covert, Geneva and Bangor.

"In the long range we're looking at creating an area authority for the airport," Pierce said.

Youth Agency Loses Van Buren Funding

By DENNIS COGSWELL
Paw Paw Bureau

PAW PAW — Van Buren county's Juvenile Court Friends program, a project which uses adult volunteers to help young people in trouble, lost its local funding yesterday in a financial squeeze.

The county board of commissioners voted to inform program employees that the county could not afford to pay this year its half of matching funds for the estimated $54,000 cost of the project.

Had commissioners approved the program for this year, they would have had to pick up the full cost in 1977.

Both commissioners George Fritz and Gerald Rendel said they felt there was no question the Juvenile Court Friends program had been beneficial in helping stem juvenile crime, but there simply was no money.

"The problem they are tackling is like trying to change the color of Lake Michigan with one drop of dye," Fritz observed.

The program was started by Probate Judge Meyer Warshawsky in 1974 and was aimed at keeping young people out of the court system on the premise that children who once go through adjudication are more likely to be repeat offenders.

With the federal government paying most of the cost, the county's share of matching funds last year amounted to only $2,669. That amount would have climbed to over $25,000 this year.

Commissioner Walter Stickels expressed the hope that the program may be able to find an alternative source of funding through the Region IV crime commission.

In other areas, the board unanimously re-elected Stickels of Bangor as board chairman for his second one-year term. Fritz was re-elected vice chairman.

The board voted to allow the county historical society to use the old county hospital building at the county fairgrounds for a caretaker's room. The caretaker would watch over an adjacent building the historical society is restoring as a county museum.

R.G. Hollis, historical society director, said there are also plans to build a meeting room in the old hospital. He asked that the county save any old records it might otherwise destroy.

State Education Agency Saves With Postcards

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Whenever it can, the Michigan Department of Education now will answer correspondence with a postcard instead of a letter — and save four cents. The department has ordered 4½-by-6-inch postcards to use starting at the end of the month. The postcards cost nine cents to mail while one first-class letter costs 13 cents. "We get a lot of letters that can be answered with two paragraphs," explained Tom Farrell, assistant superintendent who came up with the idea. He had no estimates of how many postcards will be sent out or how much the department will save.

Lawmakers Sue To Overturn Delay In Tax Credits

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Sixteen House members filed a federal court suit Tuesday trying to overturn the House's final official act of 1975.

The legislators, joined by two senior citizens, filed suit asking that an amendment to the state income tax law be declared unconstitutional and void because of the way in which it was adopted.

The amendment delayed for one year expansion of property tax credit for about 75,000 senior citizens, farm and handicapped property owners.

Without last-minute legislative action to delay the change, their property tax credits would have been boosted from a maximum of $500 to as much as $1,200 each. State officials contended that would have cost Michigan $14 million this year, which the state cannot afford.

The suit also asks that state Treasurer Allison Green be ordered to refund any payments made above the amount such persons would have owed if the delay had not been put into immediate effect.

The lawmakers and senior citizens also filed a second clause to the suit making it a class action on behalf of all persons who would have paid less property taxes without the legislature's last-minute move.

The plaintiffs claim that the Dec. 29 session adopting the bill violated legislative rules and the civil rights of the 16 legislators.

The move to delay the tax credits required support from two-thirds or 74 House members to take effect immediately. Immediate effect was needed because the tax year ran out Dec. 31.

On two roll calls, the suit claims, the two-thirds support could not be obtained.

But a third vote was taken by Rep. James E. O'Neill, D-Saginaw, the House's associate speaker pro tempore, by only asking those favoring immediate effect to rise.

The suit claims that action prevented any of those opposing immediate effect from having a vote. It claims this violated standing House rules and ignored a written request from 19 House members that roll call votes be taken on any measures passed during the last-minute session.

The suit also contends O'Neill's actions "so far exceeded the bounds of legislative power that he should be held personally liable for violation of the (federal) Civil Rights Act."

Fessler said Mitchell, of South Lyon, is president of a 140-member senior citizens group, while Miller, a resident of Oakland County's West Bloomfield Township, is active in senior citizen affairs.

Allegan Probes Increased Sheriff's Gasoline Usage

ALLEGAN — The Allegan county board of commissioners learned yesterday that its finance committee is investigating causes for a 36,000 gallon increase in gasoline use by the sheriff's department in 1975 as compared to 1974.

Finance committee member Anthony Wykstra of Martin told the board the average consumption of gasoline in the department had increased from 4,000 gallons a month at the beginning of 1975 to 8,000 gallons a month by the end of the year.

Wykstra said the finance committee learned of the consumption increase while comparing monthly mileage and consumption reports submitted by Sheriff Robert Whitcomb.

After the meeting, Wykstra said committee members suspected the increased consumption could be attributed to new patrol cars in the department which may not be getting good gas mileage or to the fact that the department has installed a new gas tank for unleaded gas, which may be leaking.

In another sheriff's matter, the board tabled a request from Whitcomb to replace two department employees who recently left their jobs.

One of the employees, Harry Johnson, left the department to become building code enforcement officer and emergency preparedness officer for the county. The other was nation Dawn Whitcomb, the sheriff's daughter, who resigned her job.

Whitcomb's request to fill the two vacancies was in line with a board policy adopted last month under which hiring in all county board-controlled departments must be approved by the board.

James Rolfe of rural Allegan, the chairman of the board's county services committee, told the board his committee was now studying the desirability of continuing the drivers license bureau under the charge of the sheriff's department.

In other areas, the board agreed to transfer $28,000 to the social services department instead of $8,000 previously budgeted for the department for this month.

The extra $20,000 was requested by the department's director, Harold Leep, who in a written request said the money was needed for a revolving fund to make up for the fact that state payments to the department run from $20,000 to $25,000 behind the amount needed for welfare payments.

Although the board agreed to pay $26,000 to the department immediately, the board did not increase the department's annual budget of $72,000 to be paid at a monthly rate of $6,000. The department will not get any more county money until April, board members said.

Requests from District Court Judge Gary Stewart for personnel and budget changes were denied by the board.

On the recommendation of the finance committee, the board refused to grant Stewart an increase in the county's share of his pay from $8,424 a year to $12,000 a year.

It was reported that Stewart had said he would withdraw the request for a raise if his other requests would be favorably considered, but they were refused as well.

Stewart had requested a $2,000 annual salary increase for the court administrator who now receives $13,000 and he asked that four other employees be promoted with pay increases.

He also asked that the source of pay for the court reporter be changed from federal comprehensive employment and training act (CETA) funding to the county's general fund. Stewart had informed the board he was unable to find a qualified court reporter eligible to be hired under CETA guidelines.

Board members said they would reconsider Stewart's request at a special meeting of the whole committee Jan. 21.

Van Buren Deputies Request Arbitration

By DENNIS COGSWELL
Paw Paw Bureau

PAW PAW — Van Buren sheriff's deputies have requested that their stalled contract talks with the county be settled through arbitration.

Gerald Rendel, chairman of the finance committee of the county board of commissioners, announced the request yesterday at a meeting of the commissioners, noting that several meetings between the two sides and mediators have failed to resolve the three-month-long deadlock.

He said the request had been accepted by the county negotiators, but said no date had been set for an arbitration meeting yet.

Deputies, members of Teamsters Local 214, have been working without a contract since their old pact expired Dec. 31. Rendel said they are seeking a 15 per cent across the board increase, and a number of other minor items, including three days paid personal leave.

Rendel said the county has offered a flat $525 raise (about the same five per cent raise granted other county employees earlier), a $465 gun allowance, paid health insurance, a retirement plan, and sick leave to be accumulated at the rate of one day per month to a maximum of 60 days.

"We have offered them a very reasonable plan, but they have chosen to go to arbitration," he said.

Under the contract that expired, the top pay for a deputy with three year's service is $10,500, but Rendel noted that with overtime, most deputies last year averaged closer to $13,000 annually.

Rendel said the department's command officers, who are represented by another union and are also without a contract, have agreed informally to take the same increases and benefits the deputies receive. Top pay for sergeants is currently $10,900 and lieutenants, $11,300.

Board Chairman Walter Stickels warned that the county only has so much money.

"They can take and get $15,000 or $20,000 per man (through arbitration)," he said, "but if they do we still control the budget, and there may be five or 10 men working instead of 15."

In a related area, Commissioner Donald Hanson read a letter from Sheriff Richard Stump requesting that the board undertake action on a number of projects related to the jail.

Stump said a building program should be started to lessen jail overcrowding and provide for exercise areas. He also suggested a fund to establish a commissary where prisoners could buy personal items, and an increase in the daily meal allowance for inmates.

The current meal allowance is 80 cents per prisoner per meal. Hanson said a study conducted by the Key Men group of southwestern Michigan showed that the meal allowance in Allegan county was $1.10 per meal; $1.35 per meal in Barry; $1.38 per day in Berrien; $1.05 per meal in Cass; $2 per day in Kalamazoo; and 95 cents per meal in St. Joseph county.

He said that generally, the larger the jail, the more efficiently it could be run and meal allowances held down.

APPOINTED: Wayne A. Erny, 38, owner and operator of Arvesta farms, CR-388, South Haven, has been named by Gov. William Milliken to Michigan's Agricultural Labor commission. His appointment to a term ending in November, 1978, requires state Senate approval. Erny and his wife, Roberta, have three children.

Allegan County Snow Shoveler Killed By Car

OTSEGO — Raymond Blowers Jr., 53, of Otsego, was killed last night when he stepped into the path of a pickup truck while shoveling snow from his driveway here.

Allegan sheriff's deputies said Blowers was pronounced dead on arrival at Pipp Community hospital, Plainwell, following the 7:53 p.m. accident. His death was the third traffic fatality on Allegan county roads this year.

Deputies said Blowers was clearing his driveway with a snowblower, when he apparently accidentally stepped out onto the road and was struck by a pickup driven by Richard Johnson, 24, of Plainwell. The accident occurred in front of Blowers' driveway about one-quarter mile west of Otsego's city limits.

The accident remains under investigation.

U.S. Supreme Court Fired LMC Teachers' Last Hope

By JERRY KRIEGER
Farm-Features Editor

Efforts of the faculty fired by Lake Michigan college in 1973 to win their jobs back via the courts have dwindled to a last single hope.

The Michigan Supreme court has just declined to hear an appeal of an unfair labor practice complaint of the LMC Federation of Teachers.

This left a petition for a writ of certiorari currently before the U.S. Supreme court as the union's last hope. The petition asks the highest federal court to hear an appeal of a faculty claim that the teachers' constitutional rights were violated by being fired without prior administrative hearings. The top federal court can grant the writ and hear the appeal or turn it down.

Michigan Supreme court justices turned down an appeal of the unfair labor practices charge in an order dated Jan. 9 and received here Tuesday.

The top state court said only that the appellants had "failed to persuade the court that the questions presented should be reviewed."

The faculty charge of unfair labor practices during contract negotiations for the 1972-73 school year was successively denied by a hearing officer of the Michigan Employment Relations Commission (MERC), by the full MERC panel, and by the Michigan Appeals court. The Supreme court turned down the union's appeal from the appellate court decision.

Most of the 66-member faculty went out on strike on Feb. 15, 1973, after negotiations for a teaching contract had been long stalemated. The LMC board of trustees ordered the instructors to return to the classrooms, then on March 6, 1973, fired some 55 teachers who did not return.

The drawn-out legal battle that has been carried all the way to the top in both the state and federal court systems ensued.

South Haven Plans Repairs At Airport

By LARRY MacINTYRE
Staff Writer

SOUTH HAVEN — South Haven's municipal airport — abandoned by some pilots for safety reasons — is in line for a variety of improvements that officials hope will ultimately lead to greater use of the airport in future years.

The most pressing needs involve eliminating safety hazards, according to Albert Pierce, South Haven city manager. Projects aimed at eliminating these hazards are now underway, he said.

But the city is looking even further into the future of the airport. Pierce said a 20-year airport master plan will be unveiled at a meeting for South Haven area officials Thursday.

It will outline proposals for future expansion and improvements that Pierce said he hopes will result in the airport becoming "a vital transportation link to South Haven, Covert and Bangor."

Pierce said in recent years use of the airport has declined because of deteriorating conditions.

In a move to halt the deterioration, the city has scheduled for next summer a $50,000 repaving project for the airport's single paved runway which pilots say is now full of potholes, particularly on the northeast end. The entire runway will also be sealcoated during the project which is being jointly financed by the city and state.

Pierce said the city is also purchasing easements from neighboring property owners which will give the city the right to permanently remove trees that are presently obstructing the glide path to the paved runway.

It was the combination of trees and potholes that led Canonic Construction company of South Haven to move its two twin-engine airplanes to the Twin Cities' Ross airport, according to spokesmen at the firm.

One pilot said the trees do not pose much of a hazard for single engine planes, most of which require a much shorter distance for takeoff and landing. He said if a twin-engine plane lost an engine while taking off from the 3,485-foot runway, there would not be enough room to stop before hitting the trees. "The airport needs at least a 500-foot overrun on the end of the runway," he said.

Ray Holden, president of Canonic Construction, said the company will move its planes back to South Haven after the immediate improvements are made and with the provision that the overall plan for the airport calls for additional work.

"We'd like to see a first-class community airport, and we'll support that whatever way we can," Holden said. In recent years, the firm has financed three different runway extension projects at the airport so that it could use its planes there. Holden said he estimated his firm has invested over $15,000 in improvements at the airport.

Six months ago, the South Haven city council hired a Minneapolis firm specializing in airport planning to prepare a 20-year master plan for improvements and expansion at the airport.

On Thursday, the council will get its first glimpse of the $29,862 plan being prepared by the firm of R. Dixon Speas Associates, aviation consultants.

Pierce said he has invited representatives from Bangor and the townships of South Haven, Casco, Covert, Geneva and Bangor.

"In the long range we're looking at creating an area authority for the airport," Pierce said.

Youth Agency Loses Van Buren Funding

By DENNIS COGSWELL
Paw Paw Bureau

PAW PAW — Van Buren county's Juvenile Court Friends program, a project which uses adult volunteers to help young people in trouble, lost its local funding yesterday in a financial squeeze.

The county board of commissioners voted to inform program employees that the county could not afford to pay this year its half of matching funds for the estimated $54,000 cost of the project.

Had commissioners approved the program for this year, they would have had to pick up the full cost in 1977.

Both commissioners George Fritz and Gerald Rendel said they felt there was no question the Juvenile Court Friends program had been beneficial in helping stem juvenile crime, but there simply was no money.

"The problem they are tackling is like trying to change the color of Lake Michigan with one drop of dye," Fritz observed.

The program was started by Probate Judge Meyer Warshawsky in 1974 and was aimed at keeping young people out of the court system on the premise that children who once go through adjudication are more likely to be repeat offenders.

With the federal government paying most of the cost, the county's share of matching funds last year amounted to only $2,669. That amount would have climbed to over $25,000 this year.

Commissioner Walter Stickels expressed the hope that the program may be able to find an alternative source of funding through the Region IV crime commission.

In other areas, the board unanimously re-elected Stickels of Bangor as board chairman for his second one-year term. Fritz was re-elected vice chairman.

The board voted to allow the county historical society to use the old county hospital building at the county fairgrounds for a caretaker's room. The caretaker would watch over an adjacent building the historical society is restoring as a county museum.

R.G. Hollis, historical society director, said there are also plans to build a meeting room in the old hospital. He asked that the county save any old records it might otherwise destroy.

State Education Agency Saves With Postcards

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Whenever it can, the Michigan Department of Education now will answer correspondence with a postcard instead of a letter — and save four cents.

The department has ordered 4½-by-6-inch postcards to use starting at the end of the month. The postcards cost nine cents to mail while one first-class letter costs 13 cents.

"We get a lot of letters that can be answered with two paragraphs," explained Tom Farrell, assistant superintendent who came up with the idea.

He had no estimates of how many postcards will be sent out or how much the department will save.

Lawmakers Sue To Overturn Delay In Tax Credits

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Sixteen House members filed a federal court suit Tuesday trying to overturn the House's final official act of 1975.

The legislators, joined by two senior citizens, filed suit asking that an amendment to the state income tax law be declared unconstitutional and void because of the way in which it was adopted.

The amendment delayed for one year expansion of property tax credit for about 75,000 senior citizen, farm and handicapped property owners.

Without last-minute legislative action to delay the change, their property tax credits would have been boosted from a maximum of $500 to as much as $1,200 each. State officials contended that would have cost Michigan $14 million this year, which the state cannot afford.

The suit also asks that state Treasurer Allison Green be ordered to refund any payments made above the amount such persons would have owed if the delay had not been put into immediate effect.

The lawmakers and senior citizens also filed a second clause to the suit making it a class action on behalf of all persons who would have paid less property taxes without the legislature's last-minute move.

The plaintiffs claim that the Dec. 20 session adopting the bill violated legislative rules and the civil rights of the 16 legislators.

The move to delay the tax credits required support from two-thirds or 74 House members to take effect immediately. Immediate effect was needed because the tax year ran out Dec. 31.

On two roll calls, the suit claims, the two-thirds support could not be obtained.

But a third vote was taken by Rep. James E. O'Neill, D-Saginaw, the House's associate speaker pro tempore, by only asking those favoring immediate effect to rise.

The suit claims that action prevented any of those opposing immediate effect from having a vote. It claims this violated standing House rules and ignored a written request from 19 House members that roll call votes be taken on any measures passed during the last-minute session.

The suit also contends O'Neill's actions "so far exceeded the bounds of legislative power that he should be held personally liable for violation of the (federal) Civil Rights Act."

The suit also names House Speaker Bobby Crim, D-Davison, as a defendant, contending O'Neill's actions occurred under powers granted the speaker. Plaintiffs in the case are Reps. Edgar Fredericks, R-Holland; Richard D. Fessler, R-Union Lake; Donald Van Singel, R-Grant; John Engler, R-Mount Pleasant; Colleen House Engler.

Allegan Probes Increased Sheriff's Gasoline Usage

ALLEGAN — The Allegan county board of commissioners learned yesterday that its finance committee is investigating causes for a 30,000 gallon increase in gasoline use by the sheriff's department in 1975 as compared to 1974.

Finance committee member Anthony Wykstra of Martin told the board the average consumption of gasoline in the department had increased from 4,000 gallons a month at the beginning of 1975 to 8,000 gallons a month by the end of the year.

Wykstra said the finance committee learned of the consumption increase while comparing monthly mileage and consumption reports submitted by Sheriff Robert Whitcomb.

After the meeting, Wykstra said committee members suspected the increased consumption could be attributed to new patrol cars in the department which may not be getting good gas mileage or to the fact that the department has installed a new gas tank for unleaded gas which may be leaking.

In another sheriff's matter, the board tabled a request from Whitcomb to replace two department employees who recently left their jobs.

One of the employees, Harry Johnson, left the department to become building code enforcement officer and emergency preparedness officer for the county. The other was matron Dawn Whitcomb, the sheriff's daughter, who resigned her job.

Whitcomb's request to fill the two vacancies was in line with a board policy adopted last month under which hiring in all county board-controlled departments must be approved by the board.

James Rolfe of rural Allegan, the chairman of the board's county services committee, told the board his committee was now studying the desirability of continuing the drivers license bureau under the charge of the sheriff's department.

In other areas, the board agreed to transfer $26,000 to the social services department instead of $6,000 previously budgeted for the department for this month.

The extra $20,000 was requested by the department's director, Harold Leep, who in a written request said the money was needed for a revolving fund to make up for the fact that state payments to the department run from $20,000 to $25,000 behind the amount needed for welfare payments.

Although the board agreed to pay $26,000 to the department immediately, the board did not increase the department's annual budget of $72,000 to be paid at a monthly rate of $6,000. The department will not get any more county money until April, board members said.

Requests from District Court Judge Gary Stewart for personnel and budget changes were denied by the board.

On the recommendation of the finance committee, the board refused to grant Stewart an increase in the county's share of his pay from $8,424 a year to $12,000 a year.

It was reported that Stewart had said he would withdraw the request for a raise if his other requests would be favorably considered, but they were refused as well.

Stewart had requested a $2,000 annual salary increase for the court administrator who now receives $13,000 and he asked that four other employees be promoted with pay increases.

He also asked that the source of pay for the court reporter be changed from federal comprehensive employment and training act (CETA) funding to the county's general fund. Stewart had informed the board he was unable to find a qualified court reporter eligible to be hired under CETA guidelines.

Board members said they would reconsider Stewart's request at a special meeting of the whole committee Jan. 21.

Van Buren Deputies Request Arbitration

PAW PAW — Van Buren sheriff's deputies have requested that their stalled contract talks with the county be settled through arbitration.

Gerald Rendel, chairman of the finance committee of the county board of commissioners, announced the request yesterday at a meeting of the commissioners, noting that several meetings between the two sides and mediators have failed to resolve the three-month long deadlock.

He said the request had been accepted by the county negotiators, but said no date had been set for an arbitration meeting yet.

Super Bowl Like Fine Wine....Gets Better Every Year

MIAMI (AP) — "It's like fine wine," Mel Blount said, a smile creasing his face as he savored the next sentence. "Every year it's got to get better."

For Pittsburgh's All-Pro cornerback, the National Football League's Defensive Player of the Year, Super Bowl X is indeed, like wine. He and the rest of the Steelers are back for another glass, having tingled their taste buds for the first time a year ago.

They're no longer novices. They're connoisseurs now, not overwhelmed by the attention and fanfare leading up to Super Sunday at the Orange Bowl. And, for a totally different reason, neither are the Dallas Cowboys.

"We know what to expect now," Blount said Tuesday before the Steelers began a practice session. "Before last year's game against Minnesota (won by the Steelers 16-8), some of us may have been a bit overawed by everything. Now we're all ready for it — and can put it out of our minds."

"Coming to the Super Bowl for the first time can be an unnerving thing. That's why, for the most part, teams that have been here before have beaten teams playing for the first time."

The only exceptions have been the Green Bay Packers, who won Super Bowl I, and Pittsburgh, last year's winner over the Vikings, a three-time loser. Why was that?

"Well," Blount grinned, "We were better."

And how do the Steelers rate against Dallas? Blount grinned again — and didn't say a thing.

None of the other Steelers would be so foolhardy as to predict a Pittsburgh victory, but a few of them seemed to agree that being in the Super Bowl for the second straight year gives them an emotional advantage.

Unlike last year's Vikings, many of whom were visibly uptight in the week prior to the game, the Cowboys appear as cool as the Steelers. And more high-spirited, too.

And why not? After all, they weren't even supposed to be here.

"This was supposed to be a rebuilding year for us," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry, reflecting on his club's having been depleted by retirements and defections to the now-defunct World Football League.

"Everybody was talking about how we were going to have to take a long road back — and at the start of the season I guess I believed that, too," Landry said. "But when we won our first four, my thinking began to change. And when we really started putting it together, maybe halfway through the year, I knew we had a shot at the playoffs."

Those playoffs resulted in upsets over Minnesota and Los Angeles and the unexpected trip to the title game for a team which had been to two others and which, a few years ago, was rated a perennial powerhouse.

As defensive end Larry Cole sees it, the rebuilding tag gave the Cowboys an edge this year. "We had one thing going for us besides the real good attitude of the team... and that was that nobody really expected too much from us. It wasn't like other years, when the Cowboys always were favored to win. There wasn't a whole lot of pressure."

And that, he says, will help Dallas on Sunday. The Cowboys are seven-point underdogs, not expected to win — just like they were not expected to win in Minnesota and Los Angeles.

They're not newcomers to this biggest game of the year. It's the third Super Bowl for 13 of the Cowboys. But unlike his 12 teammates, Preston Pearson's appearing in the championship with his third team — Baltimore, Pittsburgh and now Dallas.

"We're not as new to this thing as it might seem," Pearson said. "It's not like I was going to call all the guys together and say, 'Now let me tell you what it's like to be in a Super Bowl...' Sure, we've got a lot of rookies (11 compared to Pittsburgh's three), but we've also got the guys like Roger (Staubach), Lee Roy (Jordan) and Larry (Cole) who have been here before."

NFL Drafts Postponed

Expansion Teams Seek Judicial Approval

MIAMI (AP) — The future of the National Football League's new Tampa Bay and Seattle franchises was clouded today after the league postponed its expansion and college draft following a federal suit filed by the two teams against the NFL Players Association.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle announced Tuesday the two drafts would be delayed pending the outcome of the suit filed jointly by Tampa Bay and Seattle, seeking a judicial green light for the stocking plan.

Rozelle said the veteran draft, which had been scheduled for Jan. 23-24 in New Orleans, would be delayed to give the federal district court time to rule on the Tampa Bay-Seattle suit. He also put off the college draft, which had been set for Feb. 3-4 in New York City, saying it would be "impractical to conduct it with the new teams participating and then find expansion to the two cities had to be postponed or abandoned because of their inability to receive the allocation of veterans."

At the heart of the issue was the suspicion by the new team that the NFLPA would seek to block the expansion draft.

Tuesday's suit cites a Dec. 18, 1975, letter from Ed Garvey, executive director of the Players Association, to Sargent Karch, executive director of the NFL Management Council, in which Garvey is quoted as saying that the veteran allocation "is in all probability, a violation of the Sherman (antitrust) Act."

It also mentions an Associated Press story dated Dec. 30, 1975, in which Garvey is quoted as telling a news conference that the union "will take steps to void" the allocation "if it takes place."

Hugh Culverhouse of Tampa Bay and Herman Sarkowsky of Seattle, principal officers of the new teams, also cited the recent Minneapolis court decision, in which the controversial "Rozelle Rule" was termed illegal, as another reason for the suit.

They charged the Minneapolis decision had produced confusion and uncertainties in the application of antitrust laws and labor laws to professional sports leagues.

In Washington, Garvey declined comment on Tuesday's action until he can read the text of the suit, which was filed in Miami's U.S. District Court.

The Players Association has taken no action against the draft, but Culverhouse said he preferred not to wait for it.

"I don't take risks," said the Tampa Bay owner. "When someone threatens me, I take action."

In the veteran allocation draft, Tampa Bay and Seattle were to receive three players from each of the other 26 NFL clubs. They were also to have the first two selections in each of the 17 college draft rounds.

Now, all they have is some legal papers and a future date in court.

Caray Rehired For Sox Games

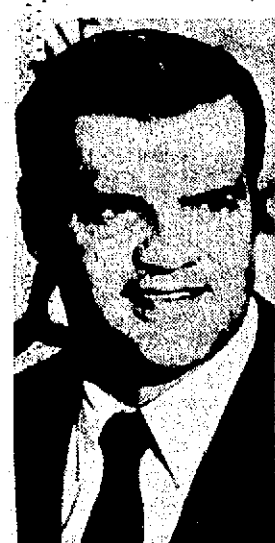

CHICAGO — Controversial Chicago announcer Harry Caray was rehired Tuesday to do White Sox baseball games on WSNB television and WMAQ radio.

His salary, however, will be paid by the TV and radio stations instead of by the White Sox as it had been in the past.

Partners for Caray have not been named, but J.C. Martin apparently has been ruled out broadcasting plans for the upcoming season. Bill Mercer is reportedly still in the running.

Monte Clark Gets San Francisco Job

MONTE CLARK

The 38-year-old Clark, who became the National Football League's youngest head coach Tuesday, recalled "Dick Nolan recommended me to Don Shula" in 1970, when the Dolphins' mentor was looking for an offensive line coach.

"I'm sorry my misfortune has turned into my opportunity," Clark said. He declined to release the terms of his contract, but said he was satisfied with it. "I've been given all the authority I need to function properly," he said.

Perhaps foremost among his functions at San Francisco will be to rehabilitate the 49ers' inconsistent offense, which led the league in fumbles and penalties this past season. While the offense has been blamed for the team's 5-9 record, the defense performed well.

Clark must also lead the search for a new quarterback.

Veteran Norm Snead started the season, but soon was followed by Steve Spurrier and, in the final three games, by second-year pro Tom Owen. For the past few weeks, there have been reports that the 49ers were trying to lure New England quarterback Jim Plunkett.

During five years with the Dolphins, Clark molded the offensive unit into one which led the American Football Conference in rushing three times and which set a league rushing record in 1972.

Clark said his first step would be "to evaluate the team and hire a coaching staff," but he ruled out taking to San Francisco any colleagues on the Miami staff.

In coming weeks, he will face the expansion and college player drafts, and Clark said the guarantee of authority to run the club included essential control over the 49ers' draft decisions.

"But it (the 49ers' draft strategy) will depend heavily on the people who are already working on it and preparing," he added.

were Sam Williams (78), Jessie Williams (132), Sam Beathia (147) and Al Brazier (135).

Also losing by a split decision was Ken Harrington (175) of South Haven.

The next scheduled action for the local boxers is the Golden Gloves competition Feb. 4, 6, 9 and 14 at the Civic Auditorium in Grand Rapids. There are also plans for another local boxing show in March.

The local boxing group is still looking for a permanent training facility and further financial support. Interested persons should contact Napoleon Lark (926-9693) or Clarence Washington (926-2011).

BH Fighters Shine In Amateur Card

Benton Harbor fighters from the Superior Steel Athletic Club won six of 10 bouts at Saturday night's amateur boxing event in the Lake Michigan College gym.

Arthur Burkhead set the pace with a TKO victory at 175 pounds before a crowd of more than 1,000.

Adding victories on unanimous decisions were Robert Smith (95 pounds), Wallace Fly (125), Willie Campbell (147) and Clarence Washington (147). Heavyweight Johnny McComb took a split decision victory.

Court Order Prevents Vote On Sale Giants' Future Undecided

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The future of the San Francisco Giants may be decided today, but only in the minds of National League owners.

"We'll make our presentation as originally planned. Then the owners will have the opportunity to consider our proposal," said Donald McDougal, one of the prospective buyers who would move the baseball franchise to Toronto.

The league's owners were expected to give prompt approval to the recent sale of the Atlanta Braves to businessman Ted Turner.

"We're not going to move the team, so there should be no problem," said Turner, adding with a laugh, "if we go broke, we're going to do it in Atlanta."

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn was scheduled to preside over a joint meeting of American and National League owners. The agreement with the Players Association has expired, and a committee of owners will face association representatives Thursday in nearby Scottsdale.

The recent arbitrator's ruling declaring pitchers Andy Messersmith and Dave McNally free agents is another matter being dealt with, mostly by the busy lawyers, and the owners may be updated on the case.

However, there will be no vote today as originally scheduled on the Toronto group's $13.25 million offer and plans to move the Giants immediately despite the long-term lease at San Francisco's Candlestick Park. A court order issued Monday in San Francisco restrains the Giants, team owner Horace Stoneham and the league from taking any action on the matter for at least a week.

"There will be no vote. The Giants can't even bring it up," National League President Chub Feeney said on the eve of today's baseball meetings at the Adams Hotel in downtown Phoenix.

Feeney, accompanied by an attorney, met later Tuesday night for more than an hour with McDougal, president of Labatt's Breweries, and McDougal's lawyer.

"It's my understanding that the owners will have to reconvene and consider our offer after the injunction matter is dealt with," said McDougal. "We continue to be optimistic."

He added, "I don't believe anyone is going to match our offer."

San Francisco Mayor George Moscone, who hoped to talk to National League owners today, has predicted there will be a new offer, equal to or better than the Toronto one, that would keep the team in the West Coast city where it drew only 522,000 fans last season, 519,000 in 1974.

Moscone also has promised there will be a huge lawsuit filed if the team leaves. The lowest figure he's mentioned has been $10 million, the highest $3 billion.

Super Bowl Like Fine Wine....Gets Better Every Year

MIAMI (AP) — "It's like fine wine," Mel Blount said, a smile creasing his face as he savored the next sentence. "Every year it's got to get better."

For Pittsburgh's All-Pro cornerback, the National Football League's Defensive Player of the Year, Super Bowl X is indeed, like wine. He and the rest of the Steelers are back for another glass, having tingled their taste buds for the first time a year ago.

They're no longer novices. They're connoisseurs now, not overwhelmed by the attention and fanfare leading up to Super Sunday at the Orange Bowl. And, for a totally different reason, neither are the Dallas Cowboys.

"We know what to expect now," Blount said Tuesday before the Steelers began a practice session. "Before last year's game against Minnesota (won by the Steelers 16-6), some of us may have been a bit overawed by everything. Now we're all ready for it — and can put it out of our minds."

"Coming to the Super Bowl for the first time can be an unnerving thing. That's why, for the most part, teams that have been here before have beaten teams playing for the first time."

The only exceptions have been the Green Bay Packers, who won Super Bowl I, and Pittsburgh, last year's winner over the Vikings, a three-time loser. Why was that?

"Well," Blount grinned, "We were better."

And how do the Steelers rate against Dallas? Blount grinned again — and didn't say a thing.

None of the other Steelers would be so foolhardy as to predict a Pittsburgh victory, but a few of them seemed to agree that being in the Super Bowl for the second straight year gives them an emotional advantage.

Unlike last year's Vikings, many of whom were visibly uptight in the week prior to the game, the Cowboys appear as cool as the Steelers. And more high-spirited, too.

And why not? After all, they weren't even supposed to be here.

"This was supposed to be a rebuilding year for us," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry, reflecting on his club's having been depleted by retirements and defections to the now-defunct World Football League.

"Everybody was talking about how we were going to have to take a long road back — and at the start of the season I guess I believed that, too," Landry said. "But when we won our first four, my thinking began to change. And when we really started putting it together, maybe halfway through the year, I knew we had a shot at the playoffs."

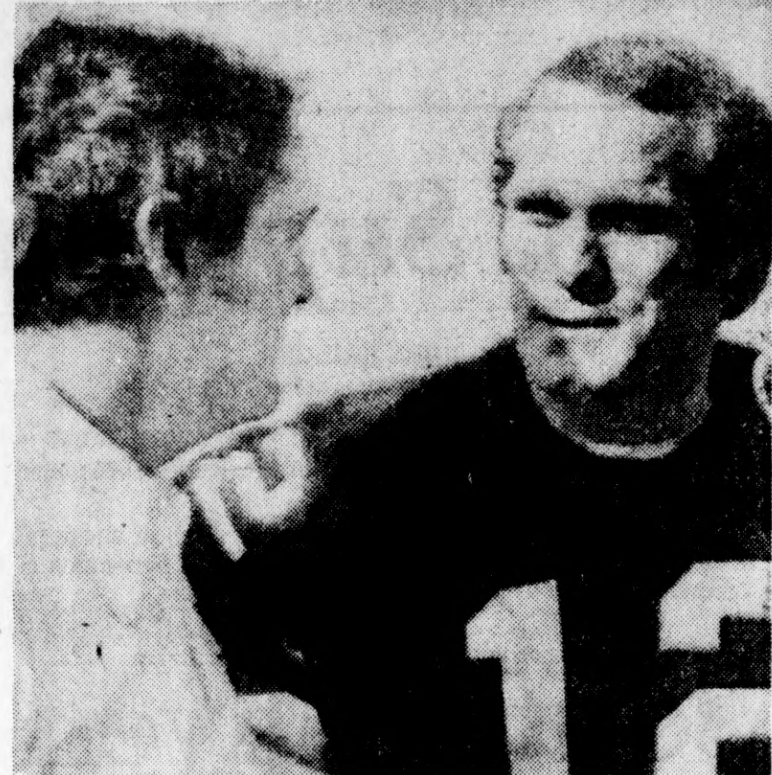

Those playoffs resulted in upsets over Minnesota and Los Angeles and the unexpected trip to the title game for a team which had been to two others and which, a few years ago, was rated a perennial powerhouse.

As defensive end Larry Cole sees it, the rebuilding tag gave the Cowboys an edge this year. "We had one thing going for us besides the real good attitude of the team ... and that was that nobody really expected too much from us. It wasn't like other years, when the Cowboys always were favored to win. There wasn't a whole lot of pressure."

And that, he says, will help Dallas on Sunday. The Cowboys are seven-point underdogs, not expected to win — just like they were not expected to win in Minnesota and Los Angeles.

They're not newcomers to this biggest game of the year. It's the third Super Bowl for 13 of the Cowboys. But unlike his 12 teammates, Preston Pearson's appearing in the championship with his third team — Baltimore, Pittsburgh and now Dallas.

"We're not as new to this thing as it might seem," Pearson said. "It's not like I was going to call all the guys together and say, 'Now let me tell you what it's like to be in a Super Bowl ...' Sure, we've got a lot of rookies (11 compared to Pittsburgh's three), but we've also got the guys like Roger (Staubach), Lee Roy (Jordan) and Larry (Cole) who have been here before."

NFL Drafts Postponed

Expansion Teams Seek Judicial Approval

MIAMI (AP) — The future of the National Football League's new Tampa Bay and Seattle franchises was clouded today after the league postponed its expansion and college draft following a federal suit filed by the two teams against the NFL Players Association.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle announced Tuesday the two drafts would be delayed pending the outcome of the suit filed jointly by Tampa Bay and Seattle, seeking a judicial green light for the stocking plan.

Rozelle said the veteran draft, which had been scheduled for Jan. 23-24 in New Orleans, would be delayed to give the federal district court time to rule on the Tampa Bay-Seattle suit. He also put off the college draft, which had been set for Feb. 3-4 in New York City, saying it would be "impractical to conduct it with the new teams participating and then find expansion to the two cities had to be postponed or abandoned because of their inability to receive the allocation of veterans."

At the heart of the issue was the suspicion by the new team that the NFLPA would seek to block the expansion draft.

Tuesday's suit cites a Dec. 19, 1975, letter from Ed Garvey, executive director of the Players Association, to Sargent Karch, executive director of the NFL Management Council, in which Garvey is quoted as saying that the veteran allocation "is in all probability, a violation of the Sherman (antitrust) Act."

It also mentions an Associated Press story dated Dec. 30, 1975, in which Garvey is quoted as telling a news conference that the union "will take steps to void" the allocation "if it takes place."

Hugh Culverhouse of Tampa Bay and Herman Sarkowsky of Seattle, principal officers of the new teams, also cited the recent Minneapolis court decision, in which the controversial "Rozelle Rule" was termed illegal, as another reason for the suit.

They charged the Minneapolis decision had produced confusion and uncertainties in the application of antitrust laws and labor laws to professional sports leagues.

In Washington, Garvey declined comment on Tuesday's action until he can read the text of the suit, which was filed in Miami's U.S. District Court.

The Players Association has taken no action against the draft, but Culverhouse said he preferred not to wait for it.

"I don't take risks," said the Tampa Bay owner. "When someone threatens me, I take action."

In the veteran allocation draft, Tampa Bay and Seattle were to receive three players from each of the other 26 NFL clubs. They were also to have the first two selections in each of the 17 college draft rounds.

Now, all they have is some legal papers and a future date in court.

Caray Rehired For Sox Games

CHICAGO — Controversial Chicago announcer Harry Caray was rehired Tuesday to do White Sox baseball games on WSNB television and WMAQ radio.

His salary, however, will be paid by the TV and radio stations instead of by the White Sox as it had been in the past.

Partners for Caray have not been named, but J.C. Martin apparently has been ruled out broadcasting plans for the upcoming season. Bill Mercer is reportedly still in the running.

FRED LYNN Off Season Fisherman

Lynn Leading Male Athlete

BOSTON (AP) — Just three years ago Fred Lynn was a senior at the University of Southern California, dreaming of a pro baseball career.

Now the young outfielder for the Boston Red Sox ranks among sports immortals as The Associated Press' 1975 Male Athlete of the Year.

Lynn, who helped the Red Sox to within a bloop single of baseball's world championship, was named winner of the AP award Tuesday in recognition of his feats, including an unprecedented sweep of both Most Valuable Player and Rookie of the Year honors.

He received 88 votes in the national poll of sports writers and sportscasters. Quarterback Fran Tarkenton of the Minnesota Vikings was second with 55 votes and heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali third with 42. Ali was last year's Male Athlete of the Year.

"I appreciate this very much," Lynn said in a telephone interview from El Monte, Calif. "It's quite an honor to be voted over such other fine athletes. I'm very happy. My wife and dad also will be very pleased."

A second round draft choice after playing on three NCAA championship teams at Southern California, Lynn spent one-half season with Bristol in the Eastern League in 1973. The next year he hit .282 with 21 homers at Pawtucket of the International League.

In a brief trial with Boston in 1974, he hit .419 with two homers and 10 RBI in 15 games. That spectacular showing earned him a trip to training camp last spring and he won a regular job.

A left-handed power hitter with good speed, Lynn batted .331 — second to Minnesota's Rod Carew. He hit 21 homers and drove in 105 runs. He also led the American League in slugging (.566), runs scored (103) and doubles (47).

Lynn, who will be 24 on Feb. 3, also frustrated opponents with his defensive play in center field. Spectacular catches became almost routine and he threw out 11 runners who tested his powerful left arm.

Monte Clark Gets San Francisco Job

MONTA CLARK

The 38-year-old Clark, who became the National Football League's youngest head coach Tuesday, recalled "Dick recommended me to Don Shula" in 1970, when the Dolphins' mentor was looking for an offensive line coach.

"I'm sorry my misfortune has turned into my opportunity," Clark said.

He declined to release the terms of his contract, but said he was satisfied with it. "I've been given all the authority I need to function properly," he said.

Perhaps foremost among his functions at San Francisco will be to rehabilitate the 49ers' inconsistent offense, which led the league in fumbles and penalties this past season. While the offense has been blamed for the team's 5-9 record, the defense performed well.

Clark must also lead the search for a new quarterback.

Veteran Norm Snead started the season, but soon was followed by Steve Spurrier and, in the final three games, by second-year pro Tom Owen. For the past few weeks, there have been reports that the 49ers were trying to lure New England quarterback Jim Plunkett.

During five years with the Dolphins, Clark molded the offensive unit into one which led the American Football Conference in rushing three times and which set a league rushing record in 1972.

Clark said his first step would be "to evaluate the team and hire a coaching staff," but he ruled out taking to San Francisco any colleagues on the Miami staff.

In coming weeks, he will face the expansion and college player drafts, and Clark said the guarantee of authority to run the club included essential control over the 49ers' draft decisions.

"But it (the 49ers' draft strategy) will depend heavily on the people who are already working on it and preparing," he added.

were Sam Williams (78), Jessie Williams (132), Sam Beathia (147) and Al Brazier (135).

Also losing by a split decision was Ken Harrington (175) of South Haven.

The next scheduled action for the local boxers is the Golden Gloves competition Feb. 4, 6, 9 and 14 at the Civic Auditorium in Grand Rapids. There are also plans for another local boxing show in March.

The local boxing group is still looking for a permanent training facility and further financial support. Interested persons should contact Napoleon Lark (926-9693) or Clarence Washington (926-2041).

BH Fighters Shine In Amateur Card

Benton Harbor fighters from the Superior Steel Athletic Club won six of 10 bouts at Saturday night's amateur boxing event in the Lake Michigan College gym.

Arthur Burkhead set the pace with a TKO victory at 175 pounds before a crowd of more than 1,000.

Adding victories on unanimous decisions were Robert Smith (95 pounds), Wallace Fly (125), Willie Campbell (147) and Clarence Washington (147). Heavyweight Johnny McComb took a split decision victory.

Capitals' 22-Game Slide NHL Record

Islanders Blank Red Wings

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — The Washington Capitals, on a treadmill to National Hockey League immortality, have extended their seemingly endless string of negative records.

After losing 3-2 to the Montreal Canadiens Tuesday night, the hapless Caps stand alone in the record book with a mark of 22 consecutive games without a victory, one more than the 1944 New York Rangers and the 1950 Chicago Black Hawks.

"This is getting ridiculous," said goalie Ron Low, one of the few players who has suffered through both seasons of misery with the expansion team, although he wasn't in the nets for the record-breaker.

"Records really don't mean that much," Low said, "but it gets to you after awhile. We've got to crack out of it."

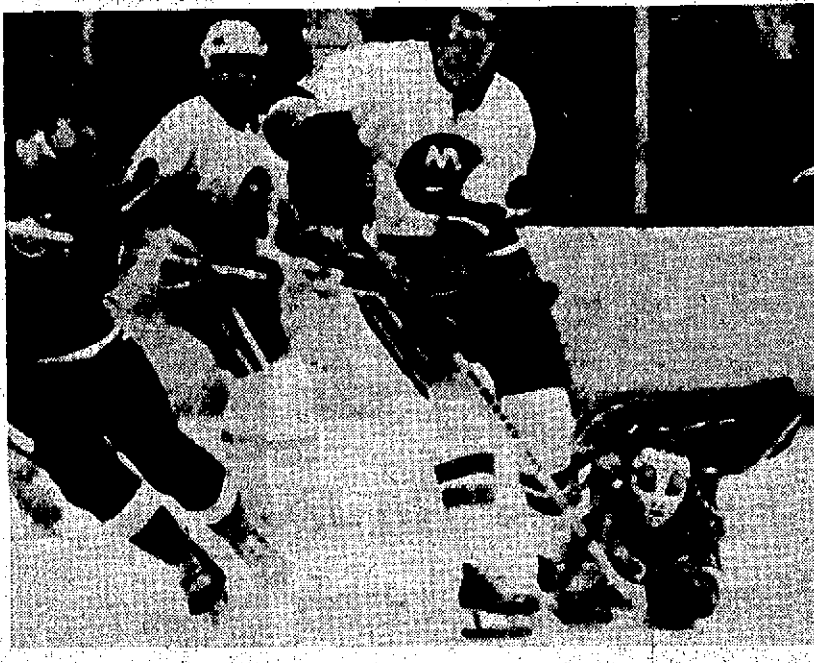

Elsewhere in the NHL Tuesday night, it was New York Islanders 1, Detroit 0; Los Angeles 3, Atlanta 0; Boston 6, Pittsburgh 1, and St. Louis 7, Buffalo 3.

Low was around last season, Washington's first in the league, when the Caps set 11 negative records while posting an 8-67-5 log. The current team is 3-36-5.

The Caps, who have managed to play three ties since last winning on Nov. 20, made a valiant effort to pull off what would approach a miracle against a team which had beaten them three times previously by a combined 22-3 score.

But Montreal, with the best record in the NHL to date, bounced back quickly after each Washington score and then used its top-rated defense to hold the lead after Mario Tremblay's tie-breaking goal at 5:45 of the second period.

WING GOES DOWN: Detroit Red Wings goalie Jim Rutherford goes down while stopping goal attempt by New York Islanders Denis Potvin Tuesday night in NHL action at Uniondale, N.Y. In on the action are Detroit's Rick Iaconte and New York's Bryan Trottier. The Islanders won 1-0. (AP Wirephoto)

Teen Grabs WHA Glory

CLEVELAND (AP) — With glittering hockey names like Hull, Howe, Mahloviach and LaCroix on the ice, the unlikely duo of Real "Buddy" Cloutier and Jim Shaw stepped boldly into the spotlight Tuesday night.

Cloutier, the teen-age terror of the Quebec Nordiques, and Shaw, a little-used reserve goaltender for Toronto, sparked the Canadian squad to a 6-1 victory over the U.S. team in the fourth annual World Hockey Association All-Star game.

Cloutier, a 19-year-old French-Canadian in his second year of pro hockey, caught the fancy of the record All-Star crowd of 15,491 at the Coliseum in suburban Richfield Township.

"I enjoyed very much being out there with stars like Bobby Hull and Gordie Howe," he said through an interpreter. "Being chosen most valuable player when there are so many great players out there is something. But one player doesn't make a team."

Jean Guy Gendron, his coach at Quebec and the guiding hand for the Canadian stars, shook his head and smiled. "He's a good scorer. He got a few chances and he put it in. Last year he was only 18 and playing part time he scored 26 goals."

"I said he'd score 40 this year and he's already got 26," Gendron added.

The Canadian coach also noted Cloutier had the benefit of playing in the All-Star game with regular linemates Chris Bordeleau and Marc Tardif. Both of those veterans came up with a pair of assists.

Shaw, known to his teammates as "Mr. Drug Man" because he's a registered pharmacist, was on the All-Star squad only because he was the closest available goalie after Winnipeg's Joe Daley failed to show up due to illness.

He relieved starter Don McLeod of Calgary with 10:22 remaining left in the second period and the score still 1-0 on the basis of Cloutier's first goal early in the stanza. He allowed only a goal by Andre LaCroix of San Diego 13:26 into the final period, while turning aside 12 shots, despite coming into the game with goals against average of 4.90.

Cloutier's two goals, sandwiched around one by Toronto's Frank Mahloviach, gave the Canadians a 3-0 lead after two periods. Danny Lawson of Calgary added a breakaway 3:30 into the final period and Ulf Nilsson of Winnipeg, and Cloutier added goals after LaCroix made it 4-1.

SPORTS CAPSULES

MIAMI — The National Football League postponed both its scheduled expansion draft to stock the Seattle and Tampa Bay franchises and its college draft in the wake of a joint suit filed by the two new teams against the NFL Players Association.

SAN FRANCISCO — Monte Clark, an assistant coach with the Miami Dolphins for five years, was named head coach of the San Francisco 49ers, replacing recently fired Dick Nolan.

HOUSTON — Wendell Mosley, an assistant coach at Oklahoma University, was named head football coach at Texas Southern University.

ST. LOUIS — Washington University's head football coach, Donald McCright, was named the school's athletic director.

BASEBALL

ST. LOUIS — The St. Louis Cardinals obtained right-handed pitcher Bill Rothman from the California Angels for outfielder Dick Sharon.

TENNIS

HOUSTON — Second-seeded Martina Navratilova of Beverly Hills, Calif., defeated Glynis Coles of England 6-3, 6-3 in first-round action on the Women's Professional Tennis Tour.

INDIANAPOLIS — Stan Smith ousted Mark Cox 6-1, 4-6, 6-3 in the first round of a $64,000 World Championship Tennis tourney.

GENERAL

NEW YORK — Outfielder Fred Lynn of the Boston Red Sox, the American League Most Valuable Player and Rookie of the Year, was named Male Athlete of the Year by The Associated Press.

Hartline, Gelerder Champs

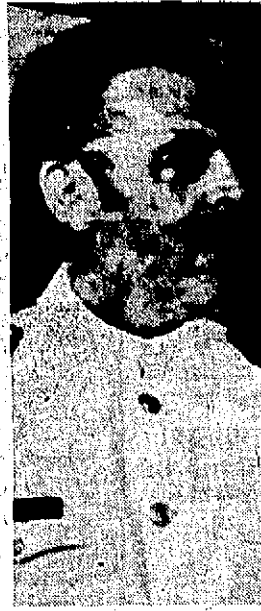

Scott Gelerder and Karla Hartline of the Stevensville elementary school captured first places over the weekend in district "Hoop Shoot" free throw competition at Three Rivers.

Gelerder, who took a first in the 10-11 boys' division, and Hartline, a winner in the 8-9 girls group, will now compete in the state meet Saturday at Alma.

State winners advance to the regionals in Toledo, Ohio. The nationals are slated for Kansas City in March.

Area youths taking seconds in the districts were Jim Campbell of Lakeshore Junior high, 12-13 boys, and Lisa Eckert of Trinity Lutheran 10-11 girls.

"Hoop Shoot" is sponsored by the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks.

Career Clips

Kari Miller of New Buffalo is listed on the roster of the Western Michigan girls varsity basketball team. She is listed as a 7-7 junior.

Lakers Take Win

Andy Rodez scored 12 points and Randy Fish 11 as the Lake Michigan Catholic freshmen downed Galien 56-28 Monday at the LMC gym. Jerry Sears hit 11 for the Guelis.

SJ Aquatics Place First

Pete Seng and Sean Bambrick of the St. Joseph Aquatics won five events each while leading the local swimming club to victory last weekend at Kalamazoo.

St. Joe finished with 383 points, followed by Kalamazoo 348½, East Grand Rapids 140½ and Muskegon 148.

Seng swam in the 9-10 boys division and won the 50 butterfly, 100 freestyle and 200 freestyle relay teams.

Bambrick competed in 11-12 boys class and took the 50 breaststroke, 50 butterfly and 100 individual medley. In addition to being on winning 200 medley and 200 freestyle relay teams.

Capturing four firsts each for St. Joe were Nancy Chinery, 9-10 girls; Todd Carter, 9-10 boys; Andrea Cross, 11-12 girls; Mike Kolenda, 11-12 boys; Audrey Flood, 15-18 girls, and Kathy Williams, 15-18 girls.

Realignment Crucial--Bryant

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Alabama's Coach Bear Bryant has promised a backdrop of strong emotion for issues facing today's opening of the National Collegiate Athletic Association's 70th convention.

Bryant, commenting Tuesday night on proposed football divisional realignment, labeled the item "the most important issue that's ever come before this convention."

"I think we should all be willing to make some sacrifices," he added in respect to a proposed 81-school football "super division" he and the Southeastern Conference favor.

"But I couldn't speak for the SEC itself," Bryant emphasized. "As a matter of fact, I really can't even speak for Alabama, because I don't have a vote."

Neither confirmed nor denied by Bryant, who in September instituted unsuccessful legal action to rescind NCAA restrictions on football traveling squads, was a published report the SEC would bolt the organization if realignment fails.

"So what if we pull out?" Bryant was quoted by the Memphis Commercial Appeal as having said earlier Tuesday at an SEC pre-convention meeting.

"ABC wouldn't televise us," the newspaper quoted him as saying, "but NBC might come in, televise us and we will get all the money."

"I think there are institutions that have the same objectives within the NCAA and the same problems," Bryant later told The Associated Press in more conciliatory tones.

"I think we should join hands," he added, "but I don't think we should join hands at the expense of other institutions."

Until the realignment issue is resolved, there appeared only a slight chance that the convention's nearly 1,000 delegates will address themselves seriously to another issue; a proposed Division I football championship playoff.

Meanwhile, other stormy issues that may heat up sessions on the convention floor include those calling for distribution of Division I television revenues among all three NCAA divisions, a sore point for Bryant and the SEC, and further restrictions on recruiting.

A proposal to provide financial aid for student-athletes on a need basis was to be brought up today during a session devoted to legislation left over from an August special convention, but it too was given little chance of reaching final action.

Shaw, known to his teammates as "Mr. Drug Man" because he's a registered pharmacist, was on the All-Star squad only because he was the closest available goalie after Winnipeg's Joe Daley failed to show up due to illness.

He relieved starter Don McLeod of Calgary with 10:22 remaining left in the second period and the score still 1-0 on the basis of Cloutier's first goal early in the stanza. He allowed only a goal by Andre LaCroix of San Diego 13:26 into the final period, while turning aside 12 shots, despite coming into the game with goals against average of 4.90.

Cloutier's two goals, sandwiched around one by Toronto's Frank Maholovich, gave the Canadians a 3-0 lead after two periods. Danny Lawson of Calgary added a breakthrough 3:50 into the final period and Ulf Nilsson of Winnipeg and Cloutier added goals after LaCroix made it 4-1.

Hartline, Gelerder Champs

Scott Gelerder and Karla Hartline of the Stevensville elementary school captured first places over the weekend in district "Hoop Shoot" free throw competition at Three Rivers.

Gelerder, who took a first in the 10-11 boys division, and Hartline, a winner in the 8-9 girls group, will now compete in the state meet Saturday at Alma.

State winners advance to the regionals in Toledo, Ohio. The nationals are slated for Kansas City in March.

Area youths taking seconds in the districts were Jim Campbell of Lakeshore junior high, 12-13 boys, and Lisa Eckert of Trinity Lutheran 10-11 girls.

"Hoop Shoot" is sponsored by the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks.

GIVES UP COACHING: U.S. Coast Guard Academy football coach Otto Graham, one of the outstanding pro and college football quarterbacks, resigned as academy coach Tuesday. Career Clips

Kari Miller of New Buffalo is listed on the roster of the Western Michigan girls varsity basketball team. She is listed as a 5-7 junior.

Lakers Take Win

ANOTHER FACE IN CROWD: Norm Van Lier (center, medallion around neck), a Chicago Bulls guard, sits with spectators during Tuesday night's Bulls-Los Angeles Lakers NBA contest in Chicago.

For just about five glorious minutes, the Caps held the lead on Nelson Pyatt's 18th goal of the season, tops among NHL rookies. But the Canadiens went ahead with goals by Rick Chartraw, his first of the season, and Larry Robinson in the final two minutes of the first period.

Bryan Trottier set up Clark Gillies' 19th goal of the season at 6:29 of the opening period, then goalie Glen Resch made it stand up by stopping 27 shots for his fifth shutout of the season for the Islanders, who drew into a tie with Atlanta for second place in the Patrick Division.

Brad Park scored twice as Boston grabbed a 4-0 lead in the opening 10 minutes and stretched its unbeaten string to eight games and continued its dominance over Pittsburgh. In the last 21 meetings, the Bruins have come away with 19 wins and two ties.

Rogie Vachon notched his fourth shutout of the season for Los Angeles, with Butch Goring, Bob Berry and Vic Venaski getting the goals. The loss snapped Atlanta's six-game unbeaten streak and 11-game home unbeaten string.

Bob MacMillan and Garry Unger got two goals apiece as St. Louis shelved Buffalo goalie Gary Bromley, making his first start of the season since being called up from Providence. Bryan Spencer had a pair of goals for the Sabres.

SJ Aquatics Place First

Pete Seng and Sean Bambrick of the St. Joseph Aquatics won five events each while leading the local swimming club to victory last weekend at Kalamazoo.

St. Joe finished with 383 points, followed by Kalamazoo 346½, East Grand Rapids 149½ and Muskegon 148.

Seng swam in the 9-10 boys division and won the 50 butterfly, 100 freestyle and 200 freestyle. He also was on the winning 200 medley and 200 freestyle relay teams.

Bambrick competed in 11-12 boys class and took the 50 breaststroke, 50 butterfly and 100 individual medley, in addition to being on winning 200 medley and 200 freestyle relay teams.

Capturing four firsts each for St. Joe were Nancy Chinery, 9-10 girls; Todd Carter, 9-10 boys; Andrea Coss, 11-12 girls; Mike Kolenda, 11-12 boys; Audrey Flood, 15-18 girls, and Kathy Williams, 15-18 girls.

Realignment Crucial--Bryant

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Alabama's Coach Bear Bryant has promised a backdrop of strong emotion for issues facing today's opening of the National Collegiate Athletic Association's 70th convention.

Bryant, commenting Tuesday night on proposed football divisional realignment, labeled the item "the most important issue that's ever come before this convention."

"I think we should all be willing to make some sacrifices," he added in respect to a proposed 91-school football "super division" he and the Southeastern Conference favor.

"But I couldn't speak for the SEC itself," Bryant emphasized. "As a matter of fact, I really can't even speak for Alabama, because I don't have a vote."

Neither confirmed nor denied by Bryant, who in September instituted unsuccessful legal action to rescind NCAA restrictions on football traveling squads, was a published report the SEC would bolt the organization if realignment fails.

"So what if we pull out?" Bryant was quoted by the Memphis Commercial Appeal as having said earlier Tuesday at an SEC pre-convention meeting.

"ABC wouldn't televise us," the newspaper quoted him as saying, "but NBC might come in, televise us and we will get all the money."

"I think there are institutions that have the same objectives within the NCAA and the same problems," Bryant later told The Associated Press in more conciliatory tones.

"I think we should join hands," he added, "but I don't think we should join hands at the expense of other institutions."

Until the realignment issue is resolved, there appeared only a slight chance that the convention's nearly 1,000 delegates will address themselves seriously to another issue: a proposed Division I football championship playoff.

Meanwhile, other stormy issues that may heat up sessions on the convention floor include those calling for distribution of Division I television revenues among all three NCAA divisions, a sore point for Bryant and the SEC, and further restrictions on recruiting.

A proposal to provide financial aid for student-athletes on a need basis was to be brought up today during a session devoted to legislation left over from an August special convention, but it too was given little chance of reaching final action.

In conjunction with the convention, the annual meeting of the American Football Coaches Association entered its second day at a hotel crosstown.

"We need to be in different convention halls," said the AFCA's outgoing president, Texas' Darrell Royal, in reference to disparities between large school and small school athletic needs.

"I don't think it's a matter of anybody's being mad at anybody," Royal said. "It's just a matter of different interests and different means. What applies to one division can't necessarily apply to another."

Sharp-Shooting Furlow Keeping MSU From Oblivion

By MALCOLM JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — With a graceful style and dead-eye shot, 6-foot-6 forward Terry Furlow is all that stands between the otherwise mediocre Michigan State University basketball team and oblivion.

Furlow believes he's being overlooked by college basketball experts. But if he continues his hot hand on the court, that should end soon.

He cooled down Monday night, with only 26 points in the Spartans' 69-57 loss to top-ranked Indiana. But that's still enough to give him 183 points in five Big Ten games for a conference-leading average of 36.6 points per game.

MSU is a disappointing 6-8 overall and 2-3 in the Big Ten. And, nobody wants to think about where the Spartans would be without Furlow.

The senior from Flint was last year's top Big Ten scorer at 21 points a game and has notched 418 points this year for almost 30 points a contest. He hit for 50, 48 and 42 points in three consecutive games.

Furlow also is the second-leading rebounder and second in assists on the MSU squad.

He almost single-handedly kept the Spartans in the game against Indiana in the first half, with precision jump shots and 18 points.

"Terry is the best pro prospect I've ever had," said MSU Coach Gus Ganakas. "He has the ability to free himself in a small area of the court, and is very agile and quick."

Other observers note that Furlow is a "pure shooter" and "plays a total game." On the floor for 40 minutes, he seldom fouls and is deadly from the free throw line himself. Only his defensive game is below par.

None of this has come easy to Furlow. As a high school junior, he was on the junior varsity at Flint Northern High School and was offered a scholarship almost as an afterthought.

"I knew I had a lot of things to work on," Furlow recalled. "I knew my game hadn't developed completely. I'm kind of satisfied now — I've proven to myself I can do a few things on the basketball floor."

"Terry is a self-made basketball player," Ganakas agreed. "He's a hard-working player, and each year he's improved. We have to rely on him having the big game — we need him to score, and we go to him as much as possible."

He wants to be the best there is. He's got good speed and jumping ability, but all the rest is self-made. He plays with zeal, and at every practice he puts out.

Furlow is team captain and leads by example more than cheerleading. Scoring-wise, he may indeed be the best in MSU history. He trails career leader Mike Robinson by just over 300 points with 13 games left.

His high scoring results in part from the Spartans' not having anybody else to carry the load. "On the team I'm on now, I have to do a lot more things," he said.

Furlow got some unwanted publicity last season that left the impression he was an unhappy player and a bothead.

He participated in a walkout of 10 black players over Ganakas' decision to start a freshman — who happened to be white — and Furlow was put on probation after hitting an Illinois player during a game.

But he and Ganakas maintain both incidents were over-publicized, and both insist everything is rosy now in Jenison Field House.

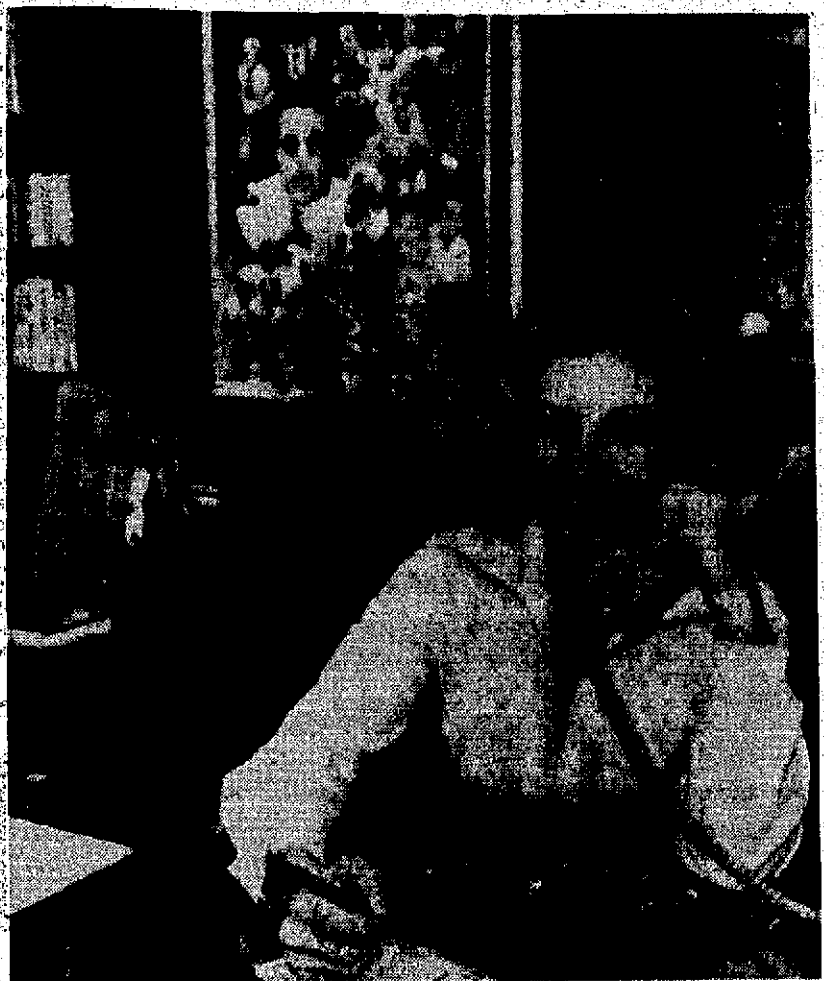

"I think I came out on the bad end of the stick last year," Furlow said. "I'm very happy with the team I'm on this year. I want people to have a changed feeling about me, and I was concerned with my image at the first of the year. We sat down and worked it out."

Furlow's image has dramatically improved, to one of a cool-headed, hot-headed shooter who threatens to spark MSU to victory over just about any team it plays.

DePaul Guns For National Attention Against Marquette

CHICAGO (AP) — Ray Meyer, the winningest active coach in college basketball, isn't concerned that his DePaul Blue Demons, despite some impressive victories, aren't ranked among the nation's top 20 teams.

"Rankings are far more important near the end of the season than they are now," said Meyer. "Who knows, by then we might be ranked."

The Blue Demons can start gaining national attention tonight when they play third-ranked Marquette for what could be the 520th career victory for their 62-year-old, mild-mannered coach.

Meyer goes into the game with unusual confidence, because his present contingent has the potential of being the greatest team I've ever had. And, of course, that includes his teams during the 1940s era of George Mikan, who was named the nation's top basketball player in the first half of the century.

"This team," said Meyer, "was to have been 'The Team' next season but it has come along very fast. The talent is there but we didn't expect the players to put it together and mature so fast."

The players include Dave Corzine, the 7-foot counterpart of Mikan, forwards Joe Ponsetto and Andy Paneratz and guards Randy Ramsey and Ron Norwood. All but Norwood are from the Chicago area.

Norwood is from New Hampshire and "not only had to adjust from being shifted from forward to guard but he played Eastern-style basketball and had to adapt to our style."

DePaul has a 10-2 record this season, defeating teams such as Louisville, Memphis State and

Providence, while they were ranked and also "Louisiana State down there when they were undefeated."

The losses have come from Arizona State and Detroit, both on second nights of tournaments, both by identical scores of 74-67 and both without the full talents of sophomore giant Corzine.

In games Tuesday night, Syracuse defeated Cornell 87-72, Princeton beat St. Joseph's 56-46, Drexel upset LaSalle 74-66, Harvard stunned Boston College 79-65, Boston University defeated Northeastern 74-68, Georgia Tech trimmed East Tennessee State 79-54, Davidson turned back Furman 77-68, Old Dominion stopped William and Mary 77-73, Creighton took a 79-78 overtime decision over Kansas State, Detroit whipped Wisconsin-Parkside 79-63, George Washington downed Connecticut 106-82, Louisville nipped Idaho State 52-51 in double overtime and Portland State outscored Air Force 67-62.

Chris Sease scored 21 points as Syracuse toyed with Cornell. The Orangemen played all 13 of their players.

Frank Sowinski scored 23 points to lead Princeton over St. Joseph's in the second game of a doubleheader at the Palestra in Philadelphia. In the first game, Drexel upset LaSalle behind Mike Kernan's 22 points.

Brian Banks scored a career-high 32 points and grabbed 18 rebounds to lead Harvard over Boston College and Boston University beat Northeastern 74-66 in the first round of the DePaul Tournament.

Mike Bottorff scored 23 points to lead Georgia Tech's victory; Jay Powell and Eppa Rixey scored 15 and 14 points respectively to pace Davidson over Furman; Jeff Fuhrmann triggered a 16-point run midway through the second half to help Old Dominion beat William and Mary; Rick Apke's two baskets and two free throws in overtime helped Creighton beat Kansas State; Terry Tyler scored 16 points and blocked eight shots to pace Detroit over Wisconsin-Parkside; Pat Tallent's 27 points paced George Washington over Connecticut; Wesley Cox tossed in an 18-foot jump shot at the end of the second overtime to give Louisville a tense victory over Idaho State and Wayne Smith poured in 22 points to lead Portland State over Air Force.

Nuggets Win Right To Host All-Stars

DENVER (AP) — The Denver Nuggets are earning a reputation as a team that knows how to rally when the pressure is on.

For the second night in a row, the Nuggets used a third-period scoring surge to carry them to an American Basketball Association victory.

The league-leading Nuggets downed the New York Nets 137-113 Tuesday night, earning the right to host the ABA All-Star game Jan. 27. Byron Beck and Claude Terry came off the bench late in the third quarter to help Denver break open a close game.

"It was the only ABA game of the night."

"Our players really felt pressure to be the host team," Denver Coach Larry Brown said after the game.

"Guys like David (Thompson), Ralph (Simpson), Bobby (Jones) and Dan (Issel) are gonna be all-stars anyway, but this is great for our team."

Beck accounted for four points in the seven-point scoring surge which put the Nuggets ahead for good with just under two minutes to go in the third quarter. He ended up with 20 points for the night.

Brown praised Beck for his performance, saying, "He's happy in his role and he knows his limitations. I've always felt if he got the steam that moves the ball, he'd be unstoppable."

Nets Coach Kevin Loughery said a crucial point in the game was when Denver built up a 16-point lead in the first half.

"We got back within one and left the court three down, but it took a bit out of us," Loughery said.

Julius Erving scored 17 of his game-high 28 points during the first half to spark the Nets' rally. John Williamson added 18.

The win was the second straight against tough opponents for the Nuggets, who now lead the ABA by four games with a 28-8 record. The second-place Nets own a 24-12 record.

DePaul Guns For National Attention Against Marquette

CHICAGO (AP) — Ray Meyer, the winningest active coach in college basketball, isn't concerned that his DePaul Blue Demons, despite some impressive victories, aren't ranked among the nation's top 20 teams.

"Rankings are far more important near the end of the season than they are now," said Meyer. "Who knows, by then we might be ranked."

The Blue Demons can start gaining national attention tonight when they play third-ranked Marquette for what could be the 520th career victory for their 62-year-old, mild-mannered coach.

Meyer goes into the game with unusual confidence because his present contingent "has the potential of being the greatest team I've ever had." And, of course, that includes his teams during the 1940s era of George Mikan, who was named the nation's top basketball player in the first half of the century.

"This team," said Meyer, "was to have been 'The Team' next season but it has come along very fast. The talent is there but we didn't expect the players to put it together and mature so fast."

The players include Dave Corzine, the 7-foot counterpart of Mikan, forwards Joe Ponsetto and Andy Pancratz and guards Randy Ramsey and Ron Norwood. All but Norwood are from the Chicago area.

Norwood is from New Hampshire and "not only had to adjust from being shifted from forward to guard but he played Eastern-style basketball and had to adapt to our style."

DePaul has a 10-2 record this season, defeating teams such as Louisville, Memphis State and

Providence while they were ranked and also "Louisiana State down there when they were undefeated."

The losses have come from Arizona State and Detroit, both on second nights of tournaments, both by identical scores of 74-67 and both without the full talents of sophomore giant Corzine.

In games Tuesday night, Syracuse defeated Cornell 87-72, Princeton beat St. Joseph's 56-46, Drexel upset LaSalle 74-66, Harvard stunned Boston College 79-65, Boston University defeated Northeastern 74-66, Georgia Tech trimmed East Tennessee State 79-54, Davidson turned back Furman 77-68, Old Dominion stopped William and Mary 77-73, Creighton took a 79-76 overtime decision over Kansas State, Detroit whipped Wisconsin-Parkside 79-63, George Washington downed Connecticut 106-82, Louisville nipped Idaho State 52-51 in double overtime and Portland State outscored Air Force 67-62.

Chris Sease scored 21 points as Syracuse toyed with Cornell. The Orangemen played all 13 of their players.

Frank Sowinski scored 23 points to lead Princeton over St. Joseph's in the second game of a doubleheader at the Palestra in Philadelphia. In the first game, Drexel upset LaSalle behind Mike Kernan's 22 points.

Brian Banks scored a career-high 32 points and grabbed 18 rebounds to lead Harvard over Boston College and Boston University beat Northeastern 74-66 in the first round of the Beanpot Tournament.

Mike Bottorff scored 23 points to lead Georgia Tech's victory; Jay Powell and Eppa Rixey scored 15 and 14 points respectively to pace Davidson over Furman; Jeff Fuhrmann triggered a 16-point run midway through the second half to help Old Dominion beat William and Mary; Rick Apke's two baskets and two free throws in overtime helped Creighton beat Kansas State; Terry Tyler scored 16 points and blocked eight shots to pace Detroit over Wisconsin-Parkside; Pat Tallent's 27 points paced George Washington over Connecticut; Wesley Cox tossed in an 18-foot jump shot at the end of the second overtime to give Louisville a tense victory over Idaho State and Wayne Smith poured in 22 points to lead Portland State over Air Force.

Nuggets Win Right To Host All-Stars

DENVER (AP) — The Denver Nuggets are earning a reputation as a team that knows how to rally when the pressure is on.

For the second night in a row, the Nuggets used a third-period scoring surge to carry them to an American Basketball Association victory.

The league-leading Nuggets downed the New York Nets 137-113 Tuesday night, earning the right to host the ABA All-Star game Jan. 27. Byron Beck and Claude Terry came off the bench late in the third quarter to help Denver break open a close game.

It was the only ABA game of the night.

"Our players really felt pressure to be the host team," Denver Coach Larry Brown said after the game.

"Guys like David (Thompson), Ralph (Simpson), Bobby (Jones) and Dan Issel are gonna be all-stars anyway, but this is great for our team."

Beck accounted for four points in the seven-point scoring surge which put the Nuggets ahead for good with just under two minutes to go in the third quarter. He ended up with 20 points for the night.

Brown praised Beck for his performance, saying, "He's happy in his role and he knows his limitations. I've always felt if he got the steam that moves the ball, he'd be unstoppable."

Nets' Coach Kevin Loughery said a crucial point in the game was when Denver built up a 16-point lead in the first half.

"We got back within one and left the court three down, but it took a lot out of us," Loughery said.

Julius Erving scored 17 of his game-high 29 points during the first half to spark the Nets' rally. John Williamson added 18.

The win was the second straight against tough opponents for the Nuggets, who now lead the ABA by four games with a 29-9 record. The second-place Nets own a 24-12 record.

PROTESTING: Libyan students talk with reporters on the steps of the Libyan Embassy in Washington Tuesday after an estimated 50 to 100 Libyan students staged a sit in at the embassy. Studies Just Raise Further Questions

NEW YORK (AP) — This is the age of the study committee. In business, government and academic life the phrasing is similar. "The matter was referred to the committee for further study."

If after due study the committee fails to reach a conclusion, it might hand off the problem to a subcommittee, from whence it might then be passed on for further "action" by a foundation or institute, where study is permanent.

Name the subject and it is being studied, but name the subject and the chances are you won't find the answers. Studies raise questions, like beating a rug raises dust, sometimes bedouing rather than clarifying.

And so, in the spirit of not expecting much, a few unanswered questions are hereby cast into this murky oblivion, offered as subjects that might be studied somewhere, sometime, without the least expectation of resolution.

—Is a gentlemen's club a social rather than business establishment? There is an intriguing tax angle to this.

In some parts of exclusive city

HEALTH PROPOSAL
NEW YORK (AP) — President Ford will propose relinquishing control of $10 billion in federally funded health care programs, including Medicaid, to the states, the New York Daily News says.

"social" clubs, in a taproom perhaps, you are forbidden from writing or shuffling papers on the surface of the table. Such conduct suggests business rather than socializing.

The rules are enforced too, and people so rude as to require reminding are watched carefully and might find themselves asked to leave if they persist in such crude behavior. The line has to be drawn somewhere.

Oddly, almost everyone at one such club on a certain day were gathered for the specific purpose of talking business. Their memberships, in fact, were obtained through business associations. Their firms paid the dues.

When they were through, their checks were offered to the Internal Revenue Service as business lunch tax deductions, and the waiters who enforced the "no business" rule gladly provided receipts for that purpose.

The questions for the study committee are many, of course, but an especially intriguing one is whether this cultural schizophrenia should be recognized by the IRS.

—Who is the mysterious "they," perhaps the most widely quoted alleged authority on everything and anything but who nevertheless remains unknown? A saboteur, perhaps? "They" always seems to have bad news.

One effort to find the elusive "they" led only to more "theys," suggesting the need for a multiple attack, such as can be launched by a committee, rather than a solo effort.

Referring to the economy, a casual informant commented, "They say we're headed for more bad times and..." The informant was interrupted by a question: "Who says we're headed for bad times?" The answer: "Oh, they all say we are."

Who is "they?" He or she must be found.

—Do high interest rates help cause inflation or do they help arrest inflation?

You think you know the answer, but can you prove it? High rates add to the cost of doing business, don't they? And we know that business passes on increased costs to the consumer, right?

Okay, but high interest rates discourage borrowing, agreed? And when borrowing is discouraged there is less inflationary pressure, no? Isn't it true then that high rates arrest existing inflation?

While this really is a very important matter, one that is at the very foundation of the nation's fight for economic stability, can we ever hope for a clearcut, clean-cut answer? Probably not, and so it makes an ideal question to put to a study committee.

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Does the Michigan Lottery threaten to turn state residents into compulsive gamblers, intent only on striking it rich at the cost of jobs and loved ones?

That worry has plagued the lottery from its inception but has been disputed by supporters who point out that voters approved the game at the polls, and that individuals choose whether they'll play.

Nevertheless, the concern has surfaced repeatedly in recent months with the astounding success of the instant lottery.

The appeal of the new game is apparent even to those who shun the game or only buy a ticket or two. Plunk down a dollar and in seconds you might be a prospective millionaire.

The problem comes when people plunk down not one dollar, but $50 or $500. In the first instant game, bars reported workers blowing whole paychecks in an attempt to hit the jackpot. Reports of people spending $20 or $50 on tickets — then returning with winnings to purchase more — were routine.

The second instant lottery game — almost identical to the first — began Tuesday with 55 million tickets up for grabs at a buck apiece. The latest game brought a resumption of charges that people are becoming lottery junkies.

Gamblers Anonymous, a Detroit-area organization modeled after Alcoholics Anonymous, refrains from any official stand on the game. But a spokesman said he personally viewed it with dismay.

"It will make it tougher for the man in the street to stay away from gambling. It plays to the compulsive nature in people," said the spokesman, who identified himself only as "Dale."

"They're living in a compulsive dream-world state. Personally, I think the state is very greedy — these are people who basically can't afford it."

But Dale, the lottery was unlikely to touch off a compulsive gambler if the person did not have a tendency to gamble anyway. Gamblers Anonymous has helped "less than half a dozen" persons caught up in the lottery, and all gambled on horses or other sports before, he said.

Gamblers Anonymous approaches gambling as a sickness, and puts great faith in the individual's ability to stop gambling for good. "It's a matter of being able to relate to others who understand," Dale said.

He said he saw no discrepancy in his involvement with the organization and the fact he runs a pharmacy which sells lottery tickets.

"If a person wants to quit, he can quit," Dale said. "I don't feel I'm contributing to the delinquency of a compulsive gambler."

It is that individual responsibility that the state uses as a defense for its instant game — that, and the fact voters approved the whole idea in the first place.

"Participation in the lottery is voluntary," a lottery spokesman said. "Our advertising is pretty low-key because we know there are people who object to the concept.

"There are people who over-indulge in anything," he said. "There is little we can do to control it. It is a personal choice, and we're dealing with grownups."

Arabs Agree On UN Resolution

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Arab delegates say they have agreed in principle on a resolution to put before the Security Council calling for Israeli withdrawal from all occupied Arab territory and recognition of the "inalienable national rights" of the Palestinians as the basis for any Arab-Israeli peace settlement.

High-level sources said differences remain over what to stress and assessment of the U.S. position, but a draft of the resolution is expected by the end of the week.

The sources said the United States may be amenable to a resolution promoting the "legitimate interests" of the Palestinians but will veto one that calls for Israeli withdrawal from all occupied territories.

Speaking Tuesday in the second day of council debate on the Arab-Israeli dispute, Ambassador Mouaffak Allaf of

meeting to consider "peace requirements and guarantees." Egyptian delegate A. Esmat Abdel Meguid also called on Israel to withdraw from all the occupied territories and recognize the rights of the Palestinians, "not only for the sake of abiding by the numerous United Nations resolutions but to win acceptance in the Middle East." He also called for a resumption of the Geneva peace conference, which met once in December 1973 and then adjourned while Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger tried to work out a series of limited agreements between Israel and each of its Arab adversaries.

Arab sources said the Palestine Liberation Organization in its speech at the start of the debate Monday indirectly recognized Israel's right to exist for the first time and indicated it would accept the creation of a separate Palestinian state alongside a shrunken Israel.

The PLO previously demanded that the Jewish state be replaced by a secular Palestinian state which in effect would be dominated by the Arabs. But the sources said chief PLO delegate Farouk Kaddoumi signaled the policy shift by indicating approval of a partition plan proposed in 1948 by the U.N. mediator in the first Arab-Israeli war, the late Count Folke Bernadotte.

Two Mile Bus Ride With School Two Blocks Away

WARREN, Mich. (AP) — Darren Westergaard only lives two blocks from Alwood Elementary School, but school officials want to bus him more than two miles because he makes the fifth-grade class at Alwood too big.

The Westergaards moved recently to a new home in the Alwood area and enrolled Darren, 10, in class. But after the first day, officials in this Detroit suburb — where anti-busing sentiment for integration has reached perhaps its highest level — said he would have to be bused to Redwood Elementary School.

The boy's father, George Westergaard, objected and kept his son out of school. But officials said the transfer was necessary because Darren was the 33rd student in the class, one more than allowed by the district's contract with its teachers.

School Supt. Robert Tower said the board had the choice of either splitting the class and hiring another teacher for $10,000 or sending Darren to Redwood. A lack of funds forced the board to accept the later decision.

Carl Roloff, school board president, called the situation "deplorable."

"But this board had little choice. The board understands the concerns about busing one child to a new school. We have to do what we think is best for all the students."

There was no word Tuesday on whether the family would continue to hold Darren out of school or put him on the bus.

Schlesinger Gives Reagan Course In Defense Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Secretary of Defense James B. Schlesinger has given Ronald Reagan a short course in defense policy, but sources say he has no intention of backing Reagan against President Ford for the Republican presidential nomination.

Sources close to Schlesinger, who was fired by Ford more than two months ago, said he recently flew to California at Reagan's invitation and is available to discuss defense issues with any and all presidential hopefuls, Republican or Democratic.

So far as is known, no other candidate has issued any similar invitation to Schlesinger.

However, Schlesinger long has held views close to those of Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., and there are indications they have been in contact since Schlesinger was ousted from the Ford cabinet.

Jackson is seeking the Democratic presidential nomination.

Schlesinger was wounded by his abrupt dismissal but has refrained from any personal criticism of Ford in public. At the same time, he has made it clear on the record that he fears Ford may cut the defense budget too deeply for the national good.

Schlesinger has told visitors he would resist any effort to identify him with any particular political faction or party and feels he can be most effective in promoting his views on defense and foreign policy if he remains outside partisanship.

Regardless of any disclaimers, it appears Schlesinger risked identification with Reagan's anti-Ford cause when he accepted Reagan's invitation to Los Angeles in late December. Such identification could be furthered if Reagan's speeches in the primary battles to come should parallel Schlesinger's widely known positions.

Schlesinger declined to discuss details of his talk with Reagan. But sources said Reagan, who was a two-term governor of California, displayed limited familiarity with complex defense issues.

Now that the sting of his dismissal has eased, Schlesinger gives callers the strong impression he feels he is better off outside what he considers to be a faltering Ford administration.

With a base at the prestigious Johns Hopkins School for Advanced International Studies, Schlesinger is embarking on a study project which will lead to papers and reports he hopes will be influential in shaping future U.S. policies.

Meanwhile, there were these campaign developments Tuesday:

—The United Auto Workers indicated support for former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter in his Florida campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination. A union spokesman said UAW President Leonard Woodcock will campaign for Carter in Florida, where he hopes to defeat Alabama Gov. George Wallace in the state's primary.

—Reagan campaigned in Wisconsin, where he continued to defend his plan to transfer many federal social and welfare programs to state and local governments. Reagan said he stands behind his proposal and charged in a statement that his plan has been "distorted."

Top Scientists Still Uncertain On Cyclamate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The best brains in science cannot answer the question of whether the artificial sweetener cyclamate is totally free of cancer risk, says a blue-ribbon panel that spent six months studying the problem for the government.

The committee concluded Tuesday that it could say only with 95 per cent probability that cyclamate, 30 to 50 times sweeter than sugar, does not cause cancer. The panel said there remains a nagging doubt over whether it may be a weak carcinogen.

The small degree of uncertainty seems certain to touch off a debate over what degree of safety should be required by government regulators.

The scientific panel said that not even a proposed five-year experiment costing $8 million-$10 million and using 32,000 rats and hamsters could establish, with absolute certainty, that the government was wrong in 1969 when it banned the chemical from foods and drugs.

"Science today is just not good enough to answer this question to everyone's satisfaction," said the chairman, Dr. Arnold L. Brown of Mayo Medical School.

The panel's final report, to be submitted within a few weeks to the National Cancer Institute director for relay to the Food and Drug Administration, cautiously concludes that "present evidence does not establish the carcinogenicity of cyclamate or its metabolites in experimental animals."

The six scientists from universities expressed concern, however, that because some cyclamate-fed animals developed cancerous bladder tumors, this might indicate the sweetener is a weak carcinogen. Noting the relatively limited sensitivity of current scientific methods, the committee concluded, "Although no chemical can be proven unequivocally to lack carcinogenicity with these techniques, ones with a significant carcinogenic hazard for humans could escape detection."

The careful wording of the report raised the question of how it would be received at the FDA. Commissioner Alexander M. Schmidt of the FDA said he would "really not be too happy about putting it (cyclamate) back on the market" if there was even the slightest chance it could cause cancer in any human.

"I'm looking for a clean bill of health, not a wishy-washy lily answer on cyclamates," he said last month.

But Abbott Laboratories, which asked the FDA two years ago for permission to resume marketing cyclamate, argued that science's inability to show 100 per cent certainty should not be the basis for keeping it off the market.

The Calorie Control Council, representing diet soft-drink manufacturers who want to resume using cyclamate, also heralded the committee's conclusions as a victory for industry.

GEORGE WASHINGTON frequently resorted to a baffling series of decimal points and numbers, somewhat like a dot dash telegraph code, to communicate with his spies behind British Redcoats' lines. Along with ciphers, Washington also used invisible ink. Many of the General's messages from his spies can still be read. The World Almanac reports, at the Library of Congress.

CONGRATULATIONS: Farouk Kaddoumi, left, Palestine Liberation Organization's political department head, shakes hands Tuesday with Syrian United Nations Ambassador Mouaffak Allaf, right, after Allaf's speech before the Security Council. In his speech, Allaf charged that Israel's "Zionist-racist regime" had not carried out a 1974 U.N. resolution that would partition Palestine into Arab and Jewish states. (AP Wirephoto)

SOME DIFFERENCES REMAIN

Arabs Agree On UN Resolution

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Arab delegates say they have agreed in principle on a resolution to put before the Security Council calling for Israeli withdrawal from all occupied Arab territory and recognition of the "inalienable national rights" of the Palestinians as the basis for any Arab-Israeli peace settlement.

High-level sources said differences remain over what to stress and assessment of the U.S. position, but a draft of the resolution is expected by the end of the week.

The sources said the United States may be amenable to a resolution promoting the "legitimate interests" of the Palestinians but will veto one that calls for Israeli withdrawal from all occupied territories.

Speaking Tuesday in the second day of council debate on the Arab-Israeli dispute, Ambassador Mouaffak Allaf of

Syria called for four steps to a peace settlement: "total Israeli withdrawal," recognition of Palestinian rights, a declaration of peace and a Security Council meeting to consider "peace requirements and guarantees." Egyptian delegate A. Esmat Abdel Meguid also called on Israel to withdraw from all the occupied territories and recognize the rights of the Palestinians, "not only for the sake of abiding by the numerous United Nations resolutions but to win acceptance in the Middle East."

He also called for a resumption of the Geneva peace conference, which met once in December 1973 and then adjourned while Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger tried to work out a series of limited agreements between Israel and each of its Arab adversaries.

Arab sources said the Palestine Liberation Organization in its speech at the start of the debate Monday indirectly recognized Israel's right to exist for the first time and indicated it would accept the creation of a separate Palestinian state alongside a shrunken Israel.

Big Pot Probe Continues In Detroit

DETROIT (AP) — Federal drug enforcement officials are continuing a probe of a massive drug ring involving a government-estimated 15,000 tons of marijuana with an estimated street value of over $2 billion.

Six of 21 defendants named in a sealed indictment handed down Dec. 19 and made public Jan. 4 have been in federal court already as a result of a three-year probe of the drug ring, which operated nationwide using marijuana supplies in Mexico and South America.

Agents of the Drug Enforcement Administration of the U.S. Department of Justice said the quantity of marijuana seized in the raids in eight states was relatively small. But the information pieced together from the raids proved it was one of the biggest operations in U.S. drug history, they said.

Agents said the coast-to-coast activity included a shooting in which one of those named in the indictment killed a co-conspirator and wounded a second man in a burst of gunfire in suburban Farmington Hills, Mich., in May 1974.

Asst. U.S. Atty. Peter M. Rosen said the shooting climaxed an argument over a dump truck loaded with nearly a ton of marijuana.

James Spencer Thornton of Detroit was convicted on a first-degree murder charge in that slaying and was sentenced to life imprisonment in Southern Michigan prison in Jackson. He has appealed the conviction.

Rosen said the probe by the federal grand jury in Detroit produced evidence of large-scale drug transactions.

The indictment charged Roger Alstair Williams Fry, 28, of Mill Valley, Calif., and Robert Craig Chipman, 30, of San Diego, were to supply tonnage quantities of marijuana to Charles Sargent Hewett, 29, of San Diego, and Edward Joseph Rosen, 29, of San Francisco. The second two may be accused of breaking the drug into 100-pound lots for distribution in Michigan and elsewhere.

The indictment said some of the marijuana was shipped to New England for redistribution. It said the operation was so big a fleet of trucks and a San Diego warehouse were used in the transcontinental operation.

Chipman was picked up by Royal Canadian Mounted Police at St. John's, Newfoundland, last week. He said he was in Canada to negotiate purchase of a small vessel.

Chipman was held by the RCMP while U.S. authorities went ahead with plans to return him to the United States, either through voluntary cooperation or by extradition.

David Day, a St. John's lawyer representing the U.S. government in the matter, told the Canadian court he needed time to visit Washington to get instructions on how the case should be processed.

He indicated it would take three weeks to begin extradition proceedings.

Rosen said that in addition to the 21 persons indicted in the continuing inquiry, another 22 were named as co-conspirators, not co-defendants, in the sweeping inquiry.

One woman, Maria Blanca Reid, 53, executive director of the San Diego County Health Association, was named in the indictment.

However, Rosen said Tuesday that after a further inquiry into the case against her, he felt the government would drop the proceedings against her. He did not amplify his view.

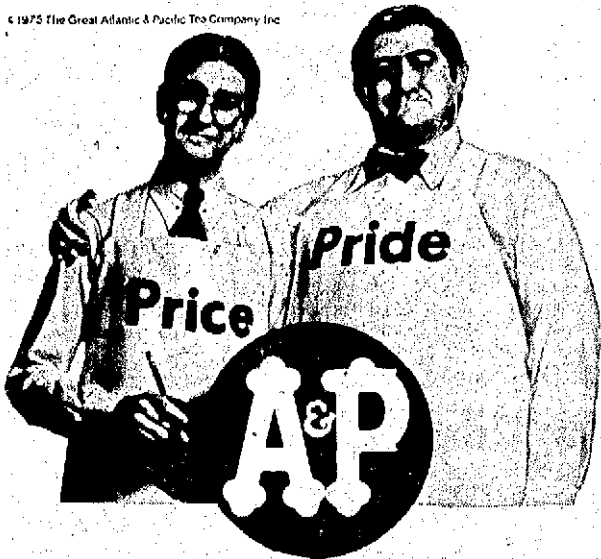

One-Man Jury Is Refused

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Kent County's Circuit Court judges refused Tuesday a request that a one-man grand jury probe possible illegal lending.

Four of the county's five judges said they denied the request since they were not convinced a grand jury is necessary to investigate such matters. The fifth judge was Stuart Hoffus, the one-man grand juror.

BANKER DIES

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Edward Potter Jr., chairman of the Commerce Union Bank which he founded with a $5,000 loan at the age of 21, died Monday night following a brief illness. He was 78.

Rosen said that in addition to the 21 persons indicted in the continuing inquiry, another 22 were named as co-conspirators, not co-defendants, in the sweeping inquiry.

One woman, Maria Blanca Reid, 53, executive director of the San Diego County Health Association, was named in the indictment.

However, Risen said Tuesday that after a further inquiry into the case against her, he felt the government would drop the proceedings against her. He did not amplify his view.

One-Man Jury Is Refused

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Kent County's Circuit Court judges refused Tuesday a request that a one-man grand jury probe possible illegal lending.

Four of the county's five judges said they denied the request since they were not convinced a grand jury is necessary to investigate such matters. The fifth judge was Stuart Hoffius, the one-man grand juror.

BANKER DIES

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Edward Potter Jr., chairman of the Commerce Union Bank which he founded with a $5,000 loan at the age of 20, died Monday night following a brief illness. He was 79.

One of the problems constantly encountered in discussions of the Soviet regime is the standard conservative argument that the Communists want to replace capitalism with public ownership and eliminate private property. This is considered a Bad Thing. The difficulty is that this attributes to the Soviet elite a set of ideals, when in fact it is a crew of cynical gangsters. Gangsters who, by the way, live a life of luxury worthy of top American capitalists and whose children grow up in a private universe comparable to the old Grotten-Harvard syndrome. True, Brezhnev doesn't own his "dacha," but does the President of American Widgets own that nice cottage "Conference Center" in Barbados?

In other words, the argument between the Communists and advocates of a free society does not hinge on the nature of property. To coin an original phrase, this is a red herring—as is the talk about "godless atheism." Stalin gave up "godless atheism" during World War II, shot the old militants of the "League of the Militant Godless," and co-opted the Orthodox church. He decided religion had utility, provided it knew its place. This has paid off: the Metropolitan of Leningrad, a Communist stooge, has just been elected one of the presidents of the World Council of Churches. He has stated authoritatively there is no religious persecution in the Soviet Union.

One of the main reasons why Soviet Communism is treated as an ideology rather than a racket is probably — ironically enough — the body of literature by ex-Communists, most of whom were intellectuals who simply didn't recognize a brutal con game when they saw one. On my shelves there must be 15 or 20 volumes in this genre ranging from the collection "The God That Failed," Koestler's "Darkness at Noon" and Poretsky's "Our Own People" to the more realistic "Case of Comrade Tulayev" by Victor Serge. To one degree or another, they all treat Soviet totalitarianism as a set of principles, derived from Marx and Engels, that have been twisted and perverted by a Stalinist bureaucracy.

This has led some Soviet dissidents to sponsor a "Back to Lenin!" movement. The historian Roy Medvedev has devoted two volumes to this thesis, but members of this school refuse to recognize that Lenin opened the casino. In the December issue of "Midstream," the historian and biographer Joel Carmichael emphasizes the fact (actually on the record since 1921) that the Kaiser's secret service — in addition to providing the Bolshevik leader with a train from Switzerland to Russia — supplied the Communists with the equivalent of $800 million 1976 dollars to undermine the democratic Provisional government that overthrew Czarism in February, 1917. How's that for a "destabilization" operation? The Germans temporarily got their money's worth: the Bolshevik Revolution took Russia out of the war.

No, despite its patina of high theory, and the commitment of some genuine idealists, at ground zero the Soviet system has always been a sanguinary racket. The terror was introduced by Lenin (whose favorite N. Bukharin got off the jolly quip that he believed in the two-party system: "one in power and the other in jail"), and perfected by Stalin in the great purges.

Solzhenitsyn in a joke has given us the central operational code of the elite: a guard asks a "zek" en route to Siberia what he got, "25 years — and for nothing!" "None," says the guard. "For nothing you got 10."

What triggered this historical excursion is the news that Moscow has, since the great Helsinki Jamboree, clamped down on emigration and in general taken a very hard line on "Basket 3," the section dealing with improved international communications. Of course they have: The got what they wanted from us, a legitimization of their post-World War II conquests. Now all bets are off. When will Chairman Kissing realize that the normal 19th century rules of diplomacy do not apply to gangsters?

U.S. Truck Sales Fall

DETROIT (AP) — U.S. truck sales, beset by the same recession slump that battered the new car market, fell eight per cent in 1975 to a four-year low. Despite the overall decline, however, 1975 was a strong year for the mushrooming van market and for Japanese imports, which took a record share of the U.S. truck market. Imports also took a record share of car sales in 1975.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Intelligence Committee says it has no evidence that suggests the CIA has renewed the practice of infiltrating private domestic organizations for clandestine purposes.

Paris Paper
Lists Agents

PARIS (AP) — The ultra-left newspaper Liberation today published a list of 12 more Americans it said work for the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency in Paris.

The paper on Monday published another list of 32 men and women it said were CIA personnel working in Paris during 1975.

NASA Will Try
For Launch Today

WALLOPS ISLAND, Va. (AP) — The National Aeronautics and Space Administration will make another attempt today to launch a rocket that will brighten skies along the entire eastern seaboard.

Unfavorable weather and mechanical problems with the rocket caused a second postponement Tuesday. The rocket is to be the first of a series of 21 scientific rockets.

NEWS OF MARKETS

Stock Prices Lower

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices moved lower today in a continuation of the profit taking that sent most issues lower Tuesday in near-record volume.

The opening Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was off more than two points, and stocks falling in price outnumbered gainers by nearly 2 to 1 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts continued to believe that the rapid advance in stock prices witnessed in the opening seven sessions of the new year was a strong invitation to profit taking.

They also said, however, that the extremely heavy trading of the past several sessions could mean that the public at large is participating in the market right now, taking the ball from the larger institutional traders at least temporarily.

Among today's prices, Procter & Gamble dropped 1 1/4 to 83, ASA Ltd. was off 1/4 to 27 1/2, and Johnson & Johnson lost 1/4 to 91 1/4.

On Tuesday, the second most active day in Wall Street history, the Dow Jones industrial average took its first loss of 1976, a 9.45-point decline to 912.94, following a 70-point runup in the past seven sessions.

Volume was 34.53 million shares, second only to 35.16 million changing hands last Feb. 13.

Losers topped gainers 916 to 631 of the 1,929 Big Board stocks traded. The NYSE's composite stock index lost 0.38 to 50.61.

On the American Exchange, the market value index dropped 0.24 to 89.99.

LAWRENCE

Liquor-By-Glass Due On Ballot

LAWRENCE — The Lawrence village council last night agreed to put on the village's March 8 election ballot the issue of sale of liquor by the glass in licensed establishments within the village.

At present, only wine and beer can be purchased by the glass. Hard liquor is sold only by the bottle in the village, according to Mrs. Joyce Alburtus, village clerk. Similar proposals have been defeated in recent years, she said.

The decision to allow the liquor proposal on the March 8 ballot was made after the council received petitions for the proposal from Arthur Haney, owner of the Red Arrow bar.

In other areas, the board adopted a zoning amendment which will allow homeowners in residential areas to use their houses for business purposes. The amendment stipulates that only one person other than the owner can be employed in the house and no more than 25 percent of the house can be used for business purposes.

The amendment passed by a four to one vote. In favor were Patton Alburtus, Paul McGowan, Glen Thompson and Charles Moden. Opposed was Ray Allen. Mrs. Virginia Sanborn was absent.

Previously, houses in residential areas could not be used for business purposes. The council agreed to enter into a contract with the E. Dapollonia consulting engineer firm for construction of a water tower foundation at a cost of $1.875.

The council also decided to advertise for bids on the demolition of the Noach building on Paw Paw street which was purchased by the village in November. No use for the property has been designated yet.

It was announced that the village received federal revenue sharing funds of $1,819.

Councilmen agreed to approve an unspecified sum for the purchase of Christmas decorations for next year.

Decatur Board Hears Bus Plan

DECATUR — The Decatur township board last night learned that the township's estimated 660 senior citizens are in line to receive public transportation services two days a week.

Supervisor Joseph Miller told the board that the Van Buren county transportation task force, of which he is also a member, is expecting delivery in April of two 15-passenger mini-buses which will be used to provide transportation for the township's estimated 9,000 senior citizens.

Miller said a bus would run scheduled routes in the Decatur area two days a week from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Four other areas in the county will also get bus service two days a week, Miller said.

Birthday Beauty Pageant Canceled

WASHINGTON (AP) — Plans have been dropped for a nationwide Bicentennial beauty contest after the Postal Service accused the event's sponsors of using the mails for false representation.

The sponsors signed a consent order agreeing to stop promoting the contest through the mails, a Postal Service spokesman said Tuesday. Entry forms will be stamped "out of business" and returned to the senders, he said.

Postal inspectors contended the sponsors lacked the financial resources to conduct pageants in each of the 50 states plus a final event in Washington in July.

Entry fees for the state contests were $200 and $50 for a Miss Teen-Age Bicentennial contest, the Postal Service said. The Postal Service said it could not determine how many entry fees had been paid.

Under the consent order, the sponsors, Diadem Enterprises, did not admit any wrongdoing. The Postal Service agreed to drop its false-representation case against the company.

At one time the contest was entered into the computer listing of Bicentennial events by the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission, a federal agency. The contest was removed from the listings after a call from postal inspectors, a commission spokesman said.

Contest sponsors have said they sent hundreds of publicity releases to newspapers across the country.

In Pittsburgh, where Diadem operated the contest out of a post office box, a "Miss Pittsburgh-Allegheny County Bicentennial Queen" was chosen.

Alison Kay Holmes, daughter of the pageant coordinator, was designated the queen and her picture appeared in local newspapers. However, the Postal Service says no contest was ever held for the title.

The entry forms said, "The Miss Bicentennial Queen Pageant Division of Diadem Enterprises is a charitable, nonprofit organization whose proceeds will benefit the handicapped."

CREDIT ADS, HALF THE STORY
"A dream come true...This beautiful Colonial Homestead, easy to buy, down payments are low, as low as 5 per cent!...Seven spectacular models, from an unheard-of $27,995 to $38,995, $475 down on contract, only 5 per cent total down payment." Or: "Just think, your own custom-built and maintenance free lakeside vacation retreat...Just $125 a month and $1,750 down. The full price $16,499...Includes house and land."

They sound familiar — yet these are hypothetical ads prepared by the Better Business Bureau of Metropolitan New York to highlight for you how the ads violate the disclosure rules of the 1969 Federal Truth in Lending Act and its subsequent amendments. Among other things, this law requires that if an advertiser mentions one feature of credit in an ad — such as the down payment total — the ad must disclose all other vital terms, such as the number, amount and period of payments that follow.

In the first ad, for instance, the down payment was mentioned as a percentage and the cash price. The ad also should have revealed number of payments (18,24,36, etc.), amount due each period, period of payments (weekly, monthly, etc.), and annual percentage rate expressed as a "per cent" and labeled "annual percentage rate."

In the second ad, the same disclosures should have been made. Also, it used the phrase "full price" — but that was, in fact, the cash price. "Full price" would include interest payments and would be nearly double.

"Unfortunately, some advertisers are not aware of their obligation to disclose credit terms under the law, while others simply do not believe the consumer needs this information," says Woodrow Wirsig, president of the New York BBB. "But an intelligent consumer does need the credit information and businesses advertising credit must supply it. Check all ads for full disclosure, as one means of evaluating the company."

Don't take anything for granted. You cannot expect the media to check out each ad completely. They haven't the time, personnel or expert knowledge. The best way to protect yourself is to be sure you understand the terms of any deal you are considering. In the automobile financing field in particular, and in installment buying in general, credit double-talk is a real threat to the innocent consumer. "Instant credit," "credit guaranteed," "no credit application refused" or "no money down" — all these should be dismissed as come-ons. The advertiser who lures you with "no money down" may in fact require you to obtain a separate loan for part or all of the down payment in order to qualify for this "no money down" offer.

In the automobile leasing field, ads will multiply this year. A sample: "A luxurious 1976 automobile, $217 a month, equity lease, minimum maintenance included, additional maintenance optional." Basically, there are two types of auto leases: "closed-end" and "open-end." The open-end lease is also known as an "equity" lease. Under this open-end or equity lease, the lessee may be required to pay an additional expense at the end of the lease period based on the price at which the vehicle may be sold at the end of the lease agreement. According to BBB standards, when a specific rate is advertised, this obligation, if it exists, must be advertised.

Sodus Splits Up Delinquent Taxes

SODUS — Sodus township board last night spread $3,709 in collected delinquent taxes, according to Carroll Cox, township clerk.

Cox said the Benton Harbor school district will receive $3,593 and the township $116. He said the delinquent tax collections were all from property owners in the township's portion of the Benton Harbor school district.

In other areas, the board approved a request from the township volunteer fire department to use the fire station and its parking lot for a proposed Bicentennial festival on July 3. The festival will include a dance and fireworks, according to Cox.

The board agreed to host the Berrien county Township Officer's association meeting in April. No date has been set for the meeting.

Ronald Schroeder, township treasurer, announced he will be at the township fire station tonight from 7 to 9 to receive property taxes and to supervise the issuing of dog licenses and rabies shots.

BH Firm's Parent Has New President

The board of directors of Curtice-Burns, Inc., one of the nation's largest regional food processors, and parent company of Michigan Fruit Canners of Benton Harbor, has named Hugh E. Cumming president, replacing Morton Adams who retired at the end of 1975.

Cumming, 54, has been senior executive vice president of Curtice-Burns and was named chief executive officer last April in anticipation of Adams' retirement. Cumming is also general manager of Pro-Fac Cooperative, Inc., a companion corporation comprised of nearly 600 growers from which Curtice-Burns purchases most of its raw agricultural products.

He is director and chairman of the American Frozen Food Institute; a director of the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives; past president of the Associated New York State Food Processors; and has been a director of the National Canners Association. Cumming is a graduate of Yale university and received an MBA degree from Harvard university.

Accuse Woman Of Trying To Have Sheriff Killed

ONEONTA, Ala. (AP) — The head of Blount County's board of registrars, Milene Stevenson, has been charged with trying to hire someone to kill Sheriff J.C. Carr.

Mrs. Stevenson, 39, was arrested early Tuesday and held without bond. A preliminary hearing was scheduled for Thursday.

"We've been fairly bitter political enemies for years, but I never thought it would come to this," Carr said.

Mrs. Stevenson was arrested in a motel room, where officers said she offered a Jefferson County deputy sheriff posing as a "hit man" $1,000 to kill Carr.

As the alleged offer was made, state police officers and deputies from Blount and Jefferson counties moved in from an adjoining room and arrested the woman.

She was charged with inciting to commit a felony, authorities said. Carr said he testified against Mrs. Stevenson before a grand jury and at a trial in which she was convicted of trying to register voters illegally.

Mrs. Stevenson is expected a new trial in the case. She was fined $200 and sentenced to 30 days in jail.

The sheriff said he was warned last week by a police informer that someone had a contract out on him. Carr said he reported the warning to the Alabama Bureau of Investigation and asked Jefferson County Sheriff Mel Bailey and private detective W.W. Self for help.

An assistant to Bailey, David Orange, said Mrs. Stevenson and the police informer arrived at the motel about 1:30 a.m. Tuesday. He said Jefferson County Sgt. A.R. Bracewell, whom Mrs. Stevenson had not met, posed as the hired killer.

Special Jury Says Police Official Lied

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — A special grand jury says State Police Commissioner James Barger lied in his testimony about a policy to keep incidents of state police drinking off accident reports.

In a report Tuesday to a Dauphin County Court, the jury recommended criminal charges against Barger and two of his top officers.

Barger and Lt. Col. Roy O. Wellendorf, the deputy commissioner, claimed they did not learn until June 1975 of the policy of omitting mention of trooper drinking from accident reports, the jury said.

But, the panel said, Maj. Charles Buchinsky, former director of the agency's Bureau of Patrol, testified he and Barger had agreed on the policy in March 1974.

Under the policy, which never was in written form, a separate report on accidents involving troopers who had been drinking was to go to the troop commander, the jury said. State law says accident reports must note if a driver in an accident has been drinking.

The jury asked that Barger be charged with perjury and criminal conspiracy to tamper with public records. And it called for perjury charges against Wellendorf.

The jury also said Buchinsky should face charges of conspiracy and criminal solicitation to tamper with public records.

Dauphin County Judge Warren G. Morgan must now decide whether to order Dist. Atty. Leroy Zimmerman to file charges. The county was one of 40 in Pennsylvania which on Jan. 1 abandoned grand jury indictments.

Morgan said he would decide promptly on the jury's report.

The panel of 23 men and women began taking testimony in November after Zimmerman asked for the investigation.

The disputed policy stemmed from complaints Buchinsky said he had received about public ridicule of the state police because of troop car accidents.

Buchinsky testified that he announced the policy at a troop commanders' conference in March 1974. Barger and Wellendorf were there, he said.

Perjury, a felony, carries a maximum sentence of seven years in prison and a $15,000 fine.

Way Cleared For Naming Political Ethics Panelists

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Gov. William Milliken has signed into law a bill which permits immediate appointment of a newly created commission to oversee the state's new political ethics law.

The law, which takes full effect in April, regulates campaign financing, provides partial public funding of gubernatorial campaigns, requires registration and disclosure by lobbyists and requires public officials throughout the state to disclose their financial interests.

Quick appointment of the Political Ethics Commission was sought in order to give it a chance to begin drafting the rules to implement the new law. Otherwise, it was feared, the law would not affect the 1978 elections.

The bill also is subject to an opinion from the attorney general. Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley has been asked whether the legislature can make one section of the law effective before the entire law takes effect.

"It is important that we take whatever steps we can to implement our political reform act in time for this year's elections," MILLIKEN SAID, "and so I am signing this bill in order to be ready to move as quickly as possible—as soon as possible."

Milliken said he felt it was important that the commission move quickly to implement the act and clarify its requirements — including financial disclosure requirements — by drawing up the needed rules.

The commission will be made up of six members selected by the governor from lists drawn up by House and Senate Republicans and Democrats and the state chairmen of the two major parties.

Milliken said he intends to make the appointments as soon as possible after he receives the six lists.

Milliken signed several other bills, including one which would direct the Office of Services to the Aging to establish food delivery systems for older persons and coordinating efforts with other delivery services.

Another new law makes it an unfair labor practice to elicit or keep information about the arrest record of an employee or prospective employee unless the arrest resulted in a conviction.

Horse Thief Foes Turn To Banquets

BENTONVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Like the old Army's cavalry, the 123-year-old Anti-Horse Thief Society of Adams County ain't what it used to be.

"They rode the counties looking for horse thieves," recalls Sherman Beam, a member for 45 years. "When they couldn't do that anymore, they donated and bought things, just like they bought the first set of electric lights for Bentonville."

"But now, we don't do much of anything except get together at the banquets to eat."

The banquets draw quite a crowd. As many as 200 persons usually show up for the group's annual gathering, and the coffers have swollen to $1,040.

"We don't do much anymore," says Beam. "Most of the members are farmers, and the majority of them have passed away."

"We were in the notion of disbanding once, but we gave up on the idea when a woman who loved horses came to our meeting and told us to stay together."

Beam, a farmer, says his fellow club members worry more about tractor and farm equipment thefts than they do horse thefts. That's because most of the local farmers don't keep horses anymore.

When the group was formed in 1853, there was a real need to protect the horses owned by farmers along the Ohio River.

"In those days, stealing a person's horse meant something pretty serious," Beam says. "When they caught you, they either gave you a necktie party, a long prison sentence or a stiff fine."

"But to be honest, I think we only had three horses stolen in the history of the society."

At that time, horse thief catchers in rural Adams and Brown counties were known as "The Riders" and their fame soon spread throughout the West.

"It's called the Anti-Horse Society of Adams County," Beam says, "but actually it didn't cover all the county at that time. If it had, we would have captured Morgan's Raiders when they invaded Ohio from the South during the Civil War."

NEW ZEALAND EASES A-SHIP BAN

Aussies Open Navy Base To U.S. Ships

CANBERRA, Australia (AP) — Australia's new conservative government will open the new naval base in Western Australia to American and British fleets in the Indian Ocean and may let nuclear-powered warships tie up there.

New Zealand's new conservative prime minister, Robert D. Muldoon, announced in Wellington, his capital, that he would allow American nuclear ships to enter New Zealand ports.

In its first major foreign policy move, the new Australian regime also announced firm support for expansion of the U.S. naval base on the Indian ocean island of Diego Garcia. But government spokesmen said they hoped there would not be a full-scale arms race in the Indian ocean.

Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser said Tuesday that the $63-million naval base at Cockburn Sound, near Perth, would be available for allied naval vessels. The base is scheduled to be completed in 1978 and will have facilities to service four destroyers and three submarines simultaneously.

Ships are already using the base, which officials said is a support base with no facilities for major repairs or overhauls. But it will provide some services that ships in the Indian Ocean have been able to get only by sailing to Singapore or to Sydney, on Australia's eastern coast.

Defense Minister Jim Killen told newsmen today the government will consider requests by foreign governments to berth nuclear-powered ships at Cockburn Sound. Prime Minister Gough Whitlam's Labor government, defeated in a general election Dec. 13, and previous conservative governments permitted no nuclear-powered ships to dock at Australian ports because of the possibility of radiation leaks.

Government sources said

Killan probably would accelerate a government survey, largely neglected during Whitlam's administration, to determine how much of a risk nuclear-powered ships really are.

New Zealand's prime minister said his government decided to welcome nuclear ships following talks with visiting members of Congress.

HOLD ON, MOMMA BEAR: Hilda, a Polar Bear at the Overton Park Zoo in Memphis, Tenn., brought her two cubs out for some fresh air Monday, and she used the normal Polar Bear method of carrying them by their heads. The six-week-old cubs are named Snowflake and Snowball. The zoo has two other Polar Bear cubs, Frosty and Borealis, born five weeks ago to another of the zoo's females. Zoo director Joel Wallach said all four cubs will be on public display this summer after they are weaned. (AP Wirephoto)

POLICE ROUNDUP

Theft Of $5,000 In Pipe Reported

Aluminum irrigation pipe, valued at $5,000, was among four thefts reported to Berrien sheriff's deputies and Benton Harbor police Tuesday.

Deputies said 128 pieces of pipe of various lengths and miscellaneous fittings were stolen from a site at the corner of Hollywood and Lincoln roads, Oronoko township. The pipe is owned by the Santa Fe Pipeline company, 5903 Red Arrow highway, Stevensville.

Another theft investigated by deputies was a 16-mm movie projector, valued at $500, stolen from a closet at the Niles Community Church, 3800 Niles road, Niles township.

Thefts reported to Benton Harbor police were:

—A color television, valued at $260, and 50 half dollars, from the apartment of Ella Davis, 401 Vineyard street.

Booked at the Berrien county jail was Henry Warren, 24, of 000 Riverside road.

Deputies said a clerk at the St. Joseph Secretary of State's branch office, 2009 Niles avenue, reported a man fled from the office about 10:15 a.m. after giving a false name for a license application. Deputies said the man was allegedly under investigation by the Secretary of State's office. Warren was arrested a short time later in his car at the intersection of Niles and Kingsley avenues.

Rep. Aspin Blasts U.S. Food Aid To Ethiopia

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States sent more than $15 million worth of food to Ethiopia during that country's 1974 famine, even though Ethiopia had a commercial grain surplus and refused to aid its own starving people, according to a State Department document.

Rep. Les Aspin, (D-Wis.), released the State Department inspection report on Tuesday. He accused the Ethiopian government of "duplicitous" conduct and the U.S. Agency for International Development of "incredible mismanagement."

AID administers foreign food relief and credit sales programs under the direction of an interagency committee.

The inspection report by the Office of the Inspector General of Foreign Assistance, was dated Nov. 25, 1974. It estimated that 100,000 to 200,000 persons had died as a result of the drought that preceded the famine.

Aspin said the report says the United States and international donors spent about $25 million during the 1974 fiscal year "to supply free food grains, to Ethiopia while the Imperial Ethiopian government spent nothing for grain for its needy; despite the fact that it had stated it would do so."

An earlier report by the Carnegie Endowment for Peace accused the U.S. government of aiding Ethiopia in covering up until December of 1974 the existence and extent of the famine.

The State Department report disclosed that while thousands were starving, Ethiopia's foreign exchange reserves increased from $100 million to $300 million in 17 months, its grain exports doubled and its 1973 grain harvest left a surplus of 45,000 metric tons, the State Department paper said.

Aspin noted that Ethiopia has asked the United States this year for 200,000 metric tons of grain and AID tentatively has decided to provide 25,000 metric tons. He asked the State Department to hold up any shipment until Ethiopia's current food and foreign-exchange supplies are determined.

Geritol Maker Settles

NEW YORK (AP) — The maker of Geritol and Femlon, accused by the Federal Trade Commission of providing misleading television commercials, have agreed to settle with the government by paying a $125,000 civil penalty.

The J.B. Williams Co. was ordered earlier to pay $177,000 in fines and interest by U.S. District Judge Lawrence Pierce. He ruled that advertising for Femlon between June and October 1969 violated the FTC's 1967 ban on misleading commercials.

The firm agreed to the $125,000 settlement Tuesday without admitting any violation of a 1967 FTC cease and desist order. The case had been due for a jury trial.

The FTC order had prohibited advertising which implied that Geritol or Femlon would alleviate fatigue, weakness, nervousness or irritability, unless the advertisements pointed out that most such symptoms do not result from iron deficiency or anemia and that most people would not benefit from the preparations.

California Girl's Letter Gets Prompt Results

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — Seven-year-old Laurie Vermillion recently wrote a letter to the congressman of her district, Rep. Bill Ketchum, asking the 18th district congressional representative for an American flag that had flown over the U.S. Capitol in Washington.

And she got results. Not only did she get the flag, but it was delivered in person by Ketchum. Now it flies over the Frank West Grade School in Bakersfield.

South Haven Bank Names Director, Promotes Three

SOUTH HAVEN — The appointment of a new director and promotion of three staff members has been announced by the board of directors of Citizens Trust and Savings Bank.

The board also declared its regular quarterly dividend and announced a year-end extra dividend of ten cents per share on the bank's stock. The quarterly dividend of 45 cents a share and the year-end extra brings to $1.90 the dividends paid in 1975.

James R. Pence, chairman of the board, reported that operating earnings before loan and securities gains or losses were up almost 13 per cent over the comparable 1974 figure.

The new director is Albert L. Witmer, general manager of National Motor Castings company of South Haven, a division of Campbell, Wyant and Cannon which is owned by Tectron. He replaces L. E. Quade of Douglas who died last October.

A native of Iowa and formerly employed in Warsaw, Ind., Witmer came to South Haven in 1966 to assume his present position. He is a graduate of St. Louis university and serves as a member of the board of Burnside Manufacturing company, Spring Lake.

He and his wife reside on Delaware court. They are the parents of two grown sons.

Promotions of staff members include Ernest L. Langreder to vice president and Glenn W. Pietenpol to assistant trust officer and Miss Cynthia Sorensen to assistant cashier.

Special Jury Says Police Official Lied

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — A special grand jury says State Police Commissioner James Barger lied in his testimony about a policy to keep incidents of state police drinking off accident reports.

In a report Tuesday to a Dauphin County Court, the jury recommended criminal charges against Barger and two of his top officers.

Barger and Lt. Col. Roy O. Wellendorf, the deputy commissioner, claimed they did not learn until June 1975 of the policy of omitting mention of trooper drinking from accident reports, the jury said.

But, the panel said, Maj. Charles Buchinsky, former director of the agency's Bureau of Patrol, testified he and Barger had agreed on the policy in March 1974.

Under the policy, which never was in written form, a separate report on accidents involving troopers who had been drinking was to go to the troop commander, the jury said. State law says accident reports must note if a driver in an accident has been drinking.

The jury asked that Barger be charged with perjury and criminal conspiracy to tamper with public records. And it called for perjury charges against Wellendorf.

The jury also said Buchinsky should face charges of conspiracy and criminal solicitation to tamper with public records.

Dauphin County Judge Warren G. Morgan must now decide whether to order Dist. Atty. Leroy Zimmerman to file charges. The county was one of 40 in Pennsylvania which on Jan. 1 abandoned grand jury indictments.

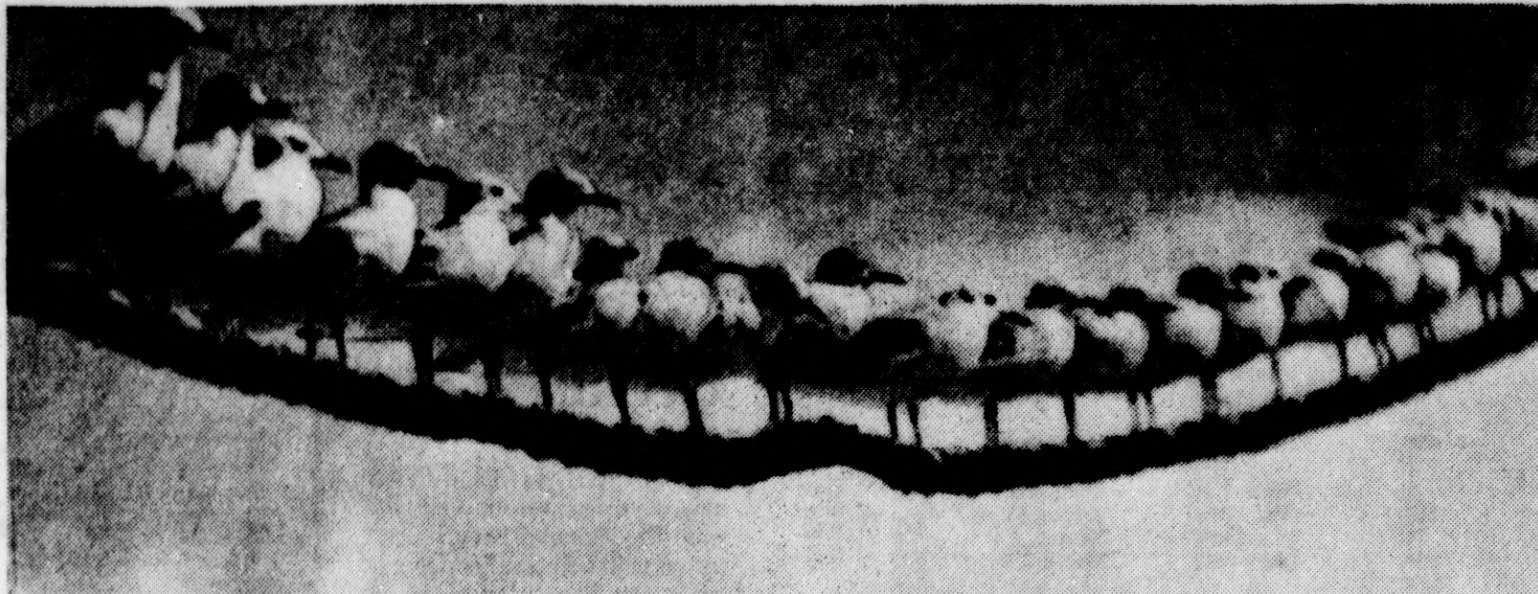

Morgan said he would decide promptly on the jury's report.

The panel of 23 men and women began taking testimony in November after Zimmerman asked for the investigation.

The disputed policy stemmed from complaints Buchinsky said he had received about public ridicule of the state police because of troop car accidents.

Buchinsky testified that he announced the policy at a troop commanders' conference in March 1974. Barger and Wellendorf were there, he said.

Perjury, a felony, carries a maximum sentence of seven years in prison and a $15,000 fine.

Way Cleared For Naming Political Ethics Panelists

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Gov. William Milliken has signed into law a bill which permits immediate appointment of a newly created commission to oversee the state's new political ethics law.

The law, which takes full effect in April, regulates campaign financing, provides partial public funding of gubernatorial campaigns, requires registration and disclosure by lobbyists and requires public officials throughout the state to disclose their financial interests.

Quick appointment of the Political Ethics Commission was sought in order to give it a chance to begin drafting the rules to implement the new law. Otherwise, it was feared, the law would not affect the 1976 elections.

The bill also is subject to an opinion from the attorney general. Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley has been asked whether the legislature can make one section of the law effective before the entire law takes effect.

"It is important that we take whatever steps we can to implement our political reform act in time for this year's elections," MILLIKEN SAID, "and so I am signing this bill in order to be ready to move as quickly as possible—as soon as possible."

Milliken said he felt it was important that the commission move quickly to implement the act and clarify its requirements — including financial disclosure requirements — by drawing up the needed rules.

The commission will be made up of six members selected by the governor from lists drawn up by House and Senate Republicans and Democrats and the state chairmen of the two major parties.

Milliken said he intends to make the appointments as soon as possible after he receives the six lists.

Milliken signed several other bills, including one which would direct the Office of Services to the Aging to establish food delivery systems for older persons and coordinating efforts with other delivery services.

Another new law makes it an unfair labor practice to elicit or keep information about the arrest record of an employee or prospective employee unless the arrest resulted in a conviction.

Horse Thief Foes Turn To Banquets

BENTONVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Like the old Army's cavalry, the 123-year-old Anti-Horse Thief Society of Adams County ain't what it used to be.

"They rode the counties looking for horse thieves," recalls Sherman Beam, a member for 45 years. "When they couldn't do that anymore, they donated and bought things, just like they bought the first set of electric lights for Bentonville."

"But now, we don't do much of anything except get together at the banquets to eat."

The banquets draw quite a crowd. As many as 200 persons usually show up for the group's annual gathering, and the coffers have swollen to $1,040.

"We don't do much anymore," says Beam. "Most of the members are farmers, and the majority of them have passed away."

"We were in the notion of disbanding once, but we gave up on the idea when a woman who loved horses came to our meeting and told us to stay together."

most of the local farmers don't keep horses anymore.

When the group was formed in 1853, there was a real need to protect the horses owned by farmers along the Ohio River.

"In those days, stealing a person's horse meant something pretty serious," Beam says. "When they caught you, they either gave you a necktie party, a long prison sentence or a stiff fine."

"But to be honest, I think we only had three horses stolen in the history of the society."

At that time, horse thief catchers in rural Adams and Brown counties were known as "The Riders" and their fame soon spread throughout the West.

"It's called the Anti-Horse Society of Adams County," Beam says, "but actually it didn't cover all the county at that time. If it had, we would have captured Morgan's Raiders when they invaded Ohio from the South during the Civil War."

NEW ZEALAND EASES A-SHIP BAN

Aussies Open Navy Base To U.S. Ships

CANBERRA, Australia (AP) — Australia's new conservative government will open the new naval base in Western Australia to American and British fleets in the Indian Ocean and may let nuclear-powered warships tie up there.

New Zealand's new conservative prime minister, Robert D. Muldoon, announced in Wellington, his capital, that he would allow American nuclear ships to enter New Zealand ports.

In its first major foreign policy move, the new Australian regime also announced firm support for expansion of the U.S. naval base on the Indian ocean island of Diego Garcia. But government spokesmen said they hoped there would not be a full-scale arms race in the Indian ocean.

Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser said Tuesday that the $63-million naval base at Cockburn Sound, near Perth, would be available for allied naval vessels. The base is scheduled to be completed in 1978 and will have facilities to service four destroyers and three submarines simultaneously.

Ships are already using the base, which officials said is a support base with no facilities for major repairs or overhauls. But it will provide some services that ships in the Indian Ocean have been able to get only by sailing to Singapore or to Sydney, on Australia's eastern coast.

Defense Minister Jim Killen told newsmen today the government will consider requests by foreign governments to berth nuclear-powered ships at Cockburn Sound. Prime Minister Gough Whitlam's Labor government, defeated in a general election Dec. 13, and previous conservative governments permitted no nuclear-powered ships to dock at Australian ports because of the possibility of radiation leaks.

Government sources said

Killen probably would accelerate a government survey, largely neglected during Whitlam's administration, to determine how much of a risk nuclear-powered ships really are.

New Zealand's prime minister said his government decided to welcome nuclear ships following talks with visiting members of Congress.

HOLD ON, MOMMA BEAR: Hilda, a Polar Bear at the Overton Park Zoo in Memphis, Tenn., brought her two cubs out for some fresh air Monday, and she used the normal Polar Bear method of carrying them by their heads. The six-week-old cubs are named Snowflake and Snowball. The zoo has two other Polar Bear cubs, Frosty and Borealis, born five weeks ago to another of the zoo's females. Zoo director Joel Wallach said all four cubs will be on public display this summer after they are weaned. (AP Wirephoto)

POLICE ROUNDUP

Theft Of $5,000 In Pipe Reported

Aluminum irrigation pipe, valued at $5,000, was among four thefts reported to Berrien sheriff's deputies and Benton Harbor police Tuesday.

Deputies said 128 pieces of pipe of various lengths and miscellaneous fittings were stolen from a site at the corner of Hollywood and Lincro roads, Oronoko township. The pipe is owned by the Santa Fe Pipeline company, 5503 Red Arrow highway, Stevensville.

Another theft investigated by deputies was a 16-mm movie projector, valued at $550, stolen from a closet at the Niles Community Church, 3800 Niles road, Royalton township.

Thefts reported to Benton Harbor police were:

—A color television, valued at $260, and 50 half dollars, from the apartment of Etta Davis, 401 Vineyard street.

Booked at the Berrien county jail was Henry Warren, 24, of 600 Riverside road.

Deputies said a clerk at the St. Joseph Secretary of State's branch office, 2609 Niles avenue, reported a man fled from the office about 10:15 a.m. after giving a false name for a license application. Deputies said the man was allegedly under investigation by the Secretary of State's office. Warren was arrested a short time later in his car at the intersection of Niles and Kingsley avenue.

MERV GRIFFIN

Is Merv's Popularity Bugging Johnny?

TROUBLE IN TV LAND? Johnny Carson and Merv Griffin are reported just about ready for a duel. We hear that Johnny has been saying rather cutting things about Merv and they've gotten back to Griffin. Observers think that the increasing popularity of the Merv Griffin Show has gotten to Carson, who considers himself king of the talk show roost.

ON THE TOWN: That old prisoner of sex, the champ himself, Norman Mailer, was seen squiring aspiring young Arkansas writer and beautiful model Norris Church about Manhattan. Norris is from the Ozarks.

Q: I have always been baffled by the early demise of one of my favorite singers, Marie Lanza. Can you throw any light on it? — G.L., Passaic, N.J.

A: We can't, but there is a sensational book in the works by an author who claims the famed singer was the object of a bizarre "hit," as a direct result of his refusal to do a charity benefit for a big mob capo.

Q: Is it now established that there are no "snuff" films in which people are really killed? — L.K., Mobile, Ala.

A: Supposedly originating in Argentina, the "snuff" films are now considered just a hoax or rumor. There is, however, an Italian movie being made about an actual party which took place outside of Rome last year where two girls who had been picked up were brought to the affair and brutally slain by the celebrants just for kicks.

Q: Is it true that Olympic swimmer Mark Spitz has broken up with his wife? — J.V., Seattle, Wash.

A: Don't despair. We understand that although Mark and wife Susan were having difficulties and took up separate residences they have been seeing a marriage counselor and hopes are high.

Q: Where is Henry Wynberg?

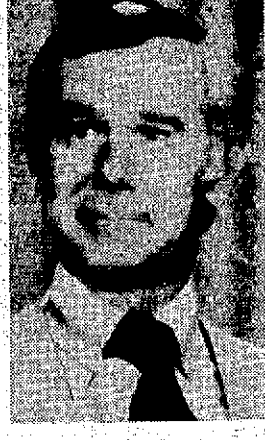

PEOPLE
By Robin Adams Sloan

Does he have a job? — V.R., New Rochelle, N.Y.

A: Liz Taylor's ex-beau was living in London but recently returned to America. No, he does not have a job and his contract to take still photos for 20th Century-Fox ended in November. But there is a chance Fox will rehire him to work further on "The Bluebird" and it is thought Miss Taylor gave Henry a goodbye present that keeps him going.

PITTSBURGH — "Teachers are not supposed to want so much money," says fifth-grader Wanda Williams. Besides, she says, "I need help with my math."

For almost seven weeks, 82,000 school children in Pittsburgh have had little or nothing to do while their teachers walked the picket lines. The teachers, who earn $8,700 to $16,700 a year, are asking for more money, smaller classes and other changes.

"The teachers have reasons — good reasons, I guess," said Chris Jones, an eighth-grader. But he added, "You can learn a lot more in a crowded class than you can in no class at all."

Parent and neighborhood groups in some areas of the city have set up modified classrooms to help the pupils keep up with their math and reading. The city school board itself has conducted classes for seniors to help them graduate in time.

Under orders issued Tuesday by Judge Donald Ziegler, board members joined negotiators for a late-night bargaining session. Ziegler instructed those involved to continue the talks until further notice.

Al Fondy, president of the striking Pittsburgh Federation of Teachers, said that including board members in the negotiations "may not help, but it can't hurt."

In a separate court action Tuesday, the judge fined the union an additional $10,000 for failure to comply with an earlier back-to-work order, bringing total fines against the union to $35,000 since Monday.

The judge did not mention daily fines of $100 which he had said on Monday would be levied against individual teachers.

The city opened 19 of its 104 schools Tuesday, the first openings since the strike began. Supt. Jerry Olson said 363 teachers and 181 aides crossed picket lines to conduct classes with the help of certified administrators. School officials said about 2,300 of the district's 62,000 pupils were in school.

Saadia Stewart, a sixth-grader, said she thinks teachers are setting a bad example by not working.

MAILER: Squirting the aspiring.

LANZA: Possible light on his death.
